It's Boy For Meg, Tony; He's Fifth In Line For Throne

Both Mother, Child Doing Well; Royal Family, Nation Excited

LONDON (UPI)—Princess Margaret gave birth today to her first child, a boy who is fifth in line of succession to the British throne.

Princess Margaret, 31-year-old younger sister of Queen Elizabeth apparently had a short labor and easy delivery. She and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon and Viscount Linley (formerly Antony Armstrong-Jones) went home to mother only last night. And the child was born this morning at the Clarence House residence of Queen Mother Elizabeth.

An official announcement posted outside the royal residence about an hour after the birth said the princess "was safely delivered of a son" and added that "both mother and baby are well."

There was no immediate indication of the weight or size of the baby, details which a spokesman said would be disclosed later.

There also was no immediate announcement of a name for the child, who is technically a commoner, although he will automatically have the courtesy title of Viscount Linley from his father.

The little princess apparently had less trouble than her sister with childbirth.

The queen is reported to have had long and difficult labors with her three children —Prince Charles, 13, Princess Anne, 11, and Prince Andrew, 21 months. These three and Margaret herself are in line for the throne before the child born today.

Both the Queen Mother and Margaret's husband waited outside the delivery room and were permitted a brief visit with her immediately after the birth. Queen Elizabeth drove over from Buckingham Palace later in the day for a short visit.

A spokesman said the Queen Mother had a smile a mile wide when she heard of the safe arrival of her newest grandson. And Tony was as delighted as any new father—so delighted, in fact, that he gave his wife one bouquet of roses and then sent out for another bouquet.

The queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, smiled and exclaimed, "That's jolly good," when he heard the news. And that seemed to sum up the feelings of most of Britain and the Commonwealth.

Nikita Hints Concessions Over Berlin

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev indicated today that the Soviet Union is willing to "make concessions" in negotiations over Berlin and the German problem.

Khrushchev made the remark during a 65-minute interview with Italian parliamentarian Giuseppe Codacci Pisanelli.

"The Soviet Union wants negotiations," highly informed sources quoted the Soviet Premier as saying. "The international situation is very bad now and the only thing to do is to negotiate.

"We must have negotiations, and negotiations mean not only to receive concessions but to make concessions."

Pisanelli was delegated by the Interparliamentary Union in Brussels last month to tell the leaders of the United States, Britain, France and Russia of the need for negotiations on the Berlin crisis.

According to the sources, when Pisanelli asked whether he could pass on the subject of his talk to other leaders, Khrushchev replied:

"Yes, what I have said are my feelings."

The sources said Khrushchev repeated that he expected no deadline on negotiations.

"We are in no hurry," he was quoted as telling Pisanelli.

Pisanelli told Khrushchev of the Interparliamentary Union's objections to the resumption of Soviet nuclear tests.

Khrushchev repeated the Soviet explanation that Russia was forced to test because of Western "threats," the sources said.

CLEM WHITAKER, PUBLICIST, DIES

Co-Founder Of 1st Professional Campaign Firm In United States

Clem Whitaker, 62, co-founder of the first professional campaign management firm in the United States, died today in a San Francisco hospital of a respiratory ailment after an illness of several weeks.

For the past three years he and his wife Leone Baxter operated Whitaker and Baxter International, a consulting firm in Washington and abroad.

He and his wife for several years had resided at 22 South Ridgewood Road, Kent Woodlands.

They organized Whitaker and Baxter International in 1959, at which time they sold Whitaker and Baxter, their state and national political public relations firm, to their son Clem Whitaker Jr. of Hillsborough and two others, James Dorais of Greenbrae and Newton Stearns of San Rafael.

An article in Time magazine Dec. 26, 1955, described the Marin husband and wife team, which had operated for 31 years at the time of his death, as "the world's only permanent specialists" in the field of political public relations.

Before organizing their international firm, Whitaker and his wife had operated under four firm names: Campaigns, Inc., their original company founded in 1930, Whitaker and Baxter, Whitaker and Baxter Advertising Agency, and California Teachers Service.

Whitaker was born in Tempe, Ariz., and spent his boyhood in Los Gatos, Willits, and Sacramento.

He attended University of California at Davis and served with the Army Engineers in France and England in World War I.

He was a newspaperman from 1919 to 1930. He was city editor for the Sacramento Union and Sacramento political writer for the San Francisco Examiner.

In 1921 he founded Capitol News Service in Sacramento, which served 80 newspapers with state capitol news. He sold it to the United Press in 1930. (Another service under the same name was established later by Henry MacArthur.)

After he and his wife founded Campaigns' Inc., in 1930

NO PLANNING

They Really Didn't Meet After All

The San Rafael Planning Commission met today, but was promptly informed that legally it did not meet.

The commission held a special meeting this morning to grant Citizens Federal Savings and Loan Assn. permission to occupy a building in the Northgate Shopping Center in Terra Linda.

But City Manager Dan E. Andersen, learning of the meeting after it was held, informed the commission: "You'll have to do it over." He pointed out that 24 hours' notice in writing had not been provided before holding the meeting. City Atty. A. E. Bagshaw several years ago had held a similar special meeting of the planning board was illegal for lack of such notice.

"They didn't really meet," said Andersen. "They'll have to do it over."

Snipers Take Pot Shots At School Buses

Snipers armed with air rifles took pot shots at two school buses in Homestead Valley yesterday afternoon, the bus drivers complained to sheriff's deputies.

Right side windows of both buses were cracked by pellets, but no one was hurt. Both buses were hit on Almonte Boulevard near Almonte Improvement Club about 2:45 p.m.

Harold Joseph Kordik of 11 Meadow Drive, Mill Valley, and Joseph Fostine Teixeira of 78 Buena Vista, Mill Valley, were driving the buses en route to Park School. Repairs will cost $17 for each broken window, the drivers reported.

Vote Of Confidence Won By Ben-Gurion

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Premier David Ben-Gurion's new four-party coalition government won a narrow vote of confidence last night in the Israeli Knesset (parliament).

Ben Gurion said he would do his utmost to insure that the new government would be a stable one.

U.S. Employment, Jobless Hit Highs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of Americans with jobs climbed to an October record last month but unemployment failed to drop significantly, the Labor Department reported today.

The unemployment rate held fast at 6.8 per cent of the labor force for the 11th month in a row.

'HAVE A RIGHT'

Couple Challenge D.A. Ban On Book

A young Fairfax couple, who allege they have the constitutional right to buy and read Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer," filed suit in Marin Superior Court today to stop a criminal action filed against a San Anselmo bookseller yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Brown of 253 Forrest Avenue filed a petition for a writ of prohibition through their attorney, Carl B. Shapiro of Fairfax.

Shapiro contends that Richard and Helen Brown have the right to purchase, own and read "The Tropic of Cancer."

If Dist. Atty. Roger P. Garety is allowed to prosecute a bookseller for selling the book, the rights granted in the First and 14th Amendments of the United States Constitution would be violated, says Shapiro.

The educational, moral and social stature of Marin residents "will suffer if the district attorney or any other law enforcement officer can control books, papers and magazines which are available for purchase, ownership and reading," says Shapiro. He asks the superior court to stop municipal court from proceeding against Frank Beyers Pershina, 32, manager of Golden Hind Bookshop at 560 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo.

FILED COMPLAINT

The district attorney yesterday filed a complaint against Pershina, charging him with knowingly selling an obscene book to Investigator Antoan W. Adam Jr. Pershina, free on $525 bail, was to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

Pershina's attorney, Charles W. Pierce of San Anselmo, denied that his client had read the book.

"When Mr. Adam asked my client to point out lurid passages, my client told him the only part he had read was the preface," Pierce declared.

'GREAT SCHOLARS'

"Some of the great scholars of the English speaking world have declared the book to be a masterpiece," attorney Pierce continued.

District Attorney Garety declared from the outset that he does not "intend to act as self-appointed censor and will not presume to tell the sellers of books and magazines what they may offer for sale."

Garety said the only reason he brought charges against Pershina was that the bookseller knew the contents of the book when he sold it to Investigator Adam. Adam said Pershina pointed out lurid passages in the book before he sold the copy.

U THANT
New secretary-general

Thant Takes Over Dag's Place In U.N.

Named Secretary-General For Term Ending April '63

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—U Thant of Burma was elected and sworn in today as acting secretary-general of the United Nations.

The 52-year-old practitioner of Buddhist philosophy was named by the General Assembly, upon the unanimous recommendation of the Security Council, to serve out the unexpired term of the late Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, which extends to April 10, 1963.

Thant was agreed upon as the U.N. interim chief after six weeks' U.S.-Soviet bickering in which Russia insisted that he be compelled to act in agreement with a cabinet of deputies to be chosen in advance on the basis of distribution among the world's political blocs. He took the post with no strings attached.

MAKES VOW

He solemnly promised "not to seek or accept instructions in regard to the performance of my duties from any government or other authority external to the (U.N.) organization."

Agreement to elect Thant without advance commitment on his policies or the appointment of his "cabinet" was reached by Russia and the Western Big Three powers yesterday after U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and British Minister of State Joseph B. Godber announced they favored his election without qualification.

ZORIN BACKS DOWN

Soviet Ambassador Valerian A. Zorin backed down on his demand that Thant's principles be submitted to the big powers for advance agreement, although he planned to tell the Assembly exactly what the Kremlin wanted him to do about appointment of his deputies.

Informed sources said that throughout a series of hasty last minute conferences, no deals were made with Thant.

Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic — like Burma, members of the Afro-Asian group—formally presented a resolution recommending Thant's election, in a secret meeting of the Security Council, customary for choosing a secretary general.

The crisis touched off by Hammarskjold's death in a plane crash in Rhodesia on Sept. 18 was ended in the council by a unanimous show of hands vote.

Thant was not present. He awaited the outcome of the council meeting in a small office down the corridor from the council chamber.

SURVIVAL PLANS

Terra Lindans Busy For (Against) Shelters

Two meetings in Terra Linda last night took opposite courses in plans for man's survival.

One was for bomb shelters, with a pessimistic presumption as to peace. The other sought peace with no faith in shelters.

Grim but concrete tidings reached the second session of the Steering Committee for Atomic Survival in the Dixie School District, held at Bernard Hoffman School with about 15 persons present. Speakers gave facts on the kind and size of bombs to be expected and on shelter costs, working out at around $8 per year per $100 assessed valuation, over a 20-year period.

About 20 peace-seekers, meeting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Bertram Koel at 855 Penney Royal Lane, decided to pick a name soon and to embark on study of specific problems of world tensions and their cure.

Mrs. Koel, appointed temporary chairman, said the study is to lead to "appropriate action" toward peace so far as something specific could be found—such as petitions, letters, etc.

"We feel that nuclear testing, fallout shelters and throwing bombs around aren't the answers," said Mrs. Koel. "Peace seems the only answer. Our membership is not to be limited to the Dixie School District, for if anyone else wants to join we won't keep them out."

This group's second meeting is to be at 8:30 p.m. next Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brandon of 649 Bamboo Terrace.

"Most of all this talk about the neutron bomb is by Joe Blow, not anybody who knows," said Paul Jones, alerting officer at Hamilton Air Force Base, at the pro-shelter meeting at the school. He said it "is not a problem to worry about," for apart from the fact that it doesn't exist yet, it should turn out an anti-missile rather than a blast device.

He said that the sort of shelters under discussion for Dixie district should give not only fallout protection but also protection from a blast over San Francisco as big as 20 megatons, though he warned that such a city might rate atten-

Blackwell Acts To Sell City's Land To Kaiser

Mill Valley's Vice Mayor George T. Blackwell has proposed to Kaiser Foundation that it buy 17.2 acres of city-owned land, but whether the city is willing to sell the land is in question, it was learned today.

The acreage is in the marshland area. Several times in recent years, the city has turned down proposals for its purchase or lease, City Manager A. E. Almcrants said.

TURNED DOWN

Last fall the council turned down a request from Reedland Heights, Inc., that it be allowed to move 300,000 yards of dirt onto the property in return for some option or agreement to purchase the land or part of it. On Oct. 5 the council turned down the proposal, 4-1, Blackwell dissenting.

Blackwell wrote to Kaiser Foundation Hospitals in Oakland on Oct. 6 as vice mayor, it was learned today. His letter said he had read that the foundation was considering purchasing property in Garden Hills from Manuel Gomez.

'STILL AVAILABLE'

He said the 17.2 acres of city-owned property "is still available and if any of your representatives are coming to Mill Valley in the near future in connection with the proposal reported in the press, perhaps you would like once again to consider the property outlined in my letter of May 9, 1958." At that time, Blackwell said, the same land was being considered by Kaiser.

"It's news to me that Mill Valley's acreage was for sale,"

Humorist James Thurber Is Dead Of Pneumonia At 66

COMBINED AP & UPI

NEW YORK — James Thurber, writer-humorist and cartoonist, whose lop-eared dog drawings put people and events in perspective, died yesterday at 66.

Thurber died of pneumonia at Doctors Hospital after undergoing surgery a month ago for a blood clot on the brain.

A master satirist, with what a colleague once described as "a firm grasp on confusion," Thurber delighted millions with his wit in his books, short stories, fables, articles, and cartoons.

He never lost his sense of humor, even when he went completely blind several years ago. An accident cost him the sight of one eye when he was six years old. He lost the sight of the other eye despite a long series of cataract operations.

In his last month of life Thurber, who then had difficulty in speaking, occasionally hummed little tunes to amuse his nurses.

Thurber, who attended Ohio State University at Columbus, Ohio, where he was born, was a newspaperman in that city, Paris, and New York.

He joined the New Yorker magazine in its infancy. For some years Thurber and E. B. White wrote "The Talk of the Town," a column-like preface to the magazine, and it was White who persuaded Thurber to make his doodled drawings public.

Thurber collapsed in a New York hotel room Oct. 4.

Burial is scheduled in the Thurber family plot in Columbus, the town where he was born "on a night of wild portent and high wind in the year 1894."

A modest, even self-deprecatory, man, Thurber once noted that his birthplace at 147 Parsons Avenue had no plaque and was never pointed out to visitors. Then he added, writing of himself in the third person:

"Once Thurber's mother, walking past the place with an old lady from Fostoria, Ohio, said to her, 'My son James was born in that house,' to which the old lady, who was extremely deaf, replied, 'Why, on the Tuesday morning train, unless my sister is worse.' Mrs. Thurber let it go at that."

In its obituary today, the New York Herald Tribune called Thurber "perhaps the greatest humorist this country has known since Mark Twain, but, like Twain, he was far more."

Danny Kaye, the comedian who starred in the movie made from Thurber's short story "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," said he believed Thurber was a humorist of Twain's stature and that "Walter Mitty" would be as universal and immortal as "Huckleberry Finn."

Gen. Walker Quits, Hits 'Censorship'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army was ready today to accept the resignation of Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, who is ending a 30-year service career in protest against military "censorship."

Walker said that as a civilian he would be able to continue his anti-Communist fight which he had "found it no longer possible to do in uniform."

"I must be free from the power of little men who, in the name of my country, punish loyal service to it," he said.

The veteran officer, removed from command of the 24th Division in Germany over alleged political activities, which critics said were based on principles of the right-wing John Birch society, said he would refuse the $1,012.50 a month retirement pay he is due.

In a bitter statement yesterday announcing his intention to resign, he said it would be a "compromise with my principle" to accept the pay.

The Army said Walker could, in effect, be ordered to remain on duty, but a spokesman added there was no thought of doing that.

Walker's statement, sent to the Senate military preparedness subcommittee, which resumes hearings on the "muzzling" hassle Nov. 17, was released by Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.) a Walker supporter.

Walker, who is staying in San Antonio, said he had no further comment on his resignation because his statement to the subcommittee speaks for itself.

He declined to say if he would accept an invitation to appear before the subcommittee. But he added that he agreed with Gen. Douglas MacArthur that executive power has become so strong that military men are being treated ruthlessly for speaking their minds.

Walker was relieved of his command last April, and, after investigation, was admonished for "participating in controversial activities" and for making "derogatory remarks of a serious nature about certain prominent Americans."

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara later testified that Walker had attempted to influence the votes of his troops in the 1960 election.

The northeast corner of Arizona is the only place in the United States where four states join (Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Utah).

Union Reaches Agreement With Chrysler

DETROIT (UPI)—Technicians of the United Auto Workers Union and Chrysler Corp. today polished final language of a master contract reached an hour before a strike deadline last midnight.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther and Chrysler Vice President John D. Leary said the three-year national contract for 60,000 workers is similar to new pacts at General Motors and Ford which provide moderate wage increases but greatly improved fringe benefits.

The agreement was expected to be signed early today.

In the only major departure from the industry pattern, Reuther said, the Chrysler contract was designed to "meet the problem of extremely high unemployment" at the firm. He said the contract "provides for a special reserve fund to insure benefits to laid off workers and workers on short work weeks."

Details were not revealed pending a meeting of the UAW National Chrysler Conference Monday.

Africa Nobel Prize Winner Gets Passport

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—The South African government today granted Zulu leader Albert John Luthuli a passport so he can go to Oslo to collect the 1960 Nobel Peace Prize awarded him for his fight against the government's racial segregation policy.

The government said Luthuli would be granted 10 days for his trip. This means he will not be able to accept any of the numerous speaking offers he has had from the United States and Britain.

Luthuli, 61, has been restricted to a native reservation in the eastern province of Natal since the 1960 race riots at Sharpeville. He was banished as leader of the African National Congress, which was later outlawed.

The government previously had spoke disparingly of the Nobel award to Luthuli and there had been considerable speculation that he would be refused a passport.

The Peace Prize Committee cited Luthuli for his advocacy of nonviolent methods in resisting racial segregation.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Stalin Son Demoted

MOSCOW (AP) — Joseph Stalin's son, Vassily, has lost the top job his father gave him but is still in the Soviet Air Force.

According to friends, he is no longer a general but has been demoted to major.

Stalin's daughter Svetlana still lives in the apartment her father assigned to her across the river from the Kremlin.

Six Survive Crash

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—A British Royal Air Force jet bomber crashed and burst into a wall of flames on a busy highway today moments after takeoff from Offutt Air Force Base.

A spokesman at Strategic Air Command headquarters said all six of the men aboard escaped with their lives.

The four-engine British Vickers Valiant took off at 9:14 a.m. (CST), gained a little altitude and "just pancaked onto the highway."

Riches In Poverty

BERKELEY (AP) — When the late Nathaniel Worthy, 92, was evicted from his secluded home last April, movers found mostly trash.

Later, they guessed they might have thrown out inadvertently as much as $22,000 that had been stuffed in unnoticed cans and jars.

Worthy, a former U.S. Treasury Department attorney, died last August.

He and his spinster daughter, Frances, had lived in seclusion and apparent poverty for 30 years but only yesterday did a family attorney disclose the value of Worthy's estate—$400,000.

Taylor Returning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor returns from his Southeast Asia mission today to give President John F. Kennedy his ideas for bolstering South Viet Nam against growing Communist guerrilla assaults.

The president's special military adviser was scheduled to report to the chief executive late this afternoon.

Taylor's recommendations for a "crash" program and the president's subsequent action may mark a turning point in U.S. strategy in Southeast Asia.

Plea From Pope

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII, with a possible eye on the grim East-West nuclear race, today urged mankind to recall its "duty . . . to use well the time given them to act in favor of peace."

The pontiff made his appeal in a French-language address to diplomats from 48 nations accredited to the Holy See. They came to wish him well on the third anniversary of his coronation and his 80th birthday.

Pope John, looking fit and recovered from a nagging cold, received the diplomats in the vaitcan palace after a busy morning in which he recited a special mass in St. Peter's Basilica for 20,000 officials of Young Catholic Action.

Rayburn Stronger

Bonham, Tex (UPI) — House Speaker Sam Rayburn felt strong enough yesterday to ask that he be moved from Risser Hospital to his home but his doctor said the chance is slight.

Rayburn, 79, has cancer. Dr. Joe Risser, who operates the hospital where Rayburn is being treated, said the speaker "had a comfortable day."

Risser said Rayburn may live for "weeks or months."

Cold Wave

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The season's first major cold wave, spawned in the far north, knifed deep into the midlands today. Residents braced for possible sub-zero temperatures and heavy snow.

The killer storm already had claimed a number of lives, including five in the Colorado-Wyoming areas which got an unwelcome preview of the mighty Arctic front yesterday.

The clash of the cold front with tropical air from the Gulf of Mexico touched off tornadoes in the southwest and flooding in Kansas and Nebraska. Elsewhere, it produced strong southerly winds which brought record high temperatures to Chicago, Indianapolis, Nashville and other midwestern cities.

Second-Hand Rocket

POINT MUGU (AP)—The Navy has launched a secondhand rocket.

The 17-foot Aerobee missile was fired from the sea off Point Mugu yesterday, just nine days after being used in a similar experiment.

The rocket soared to 5,000 feet, then parachuted back to earth.

Supporters of the water-launch system say rockets could thus be launched almost any place in the sea, at remote distances from inhabited areas, and without the vast expense of fixed pads.

Shotgun Deaths

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—An Air Force captain went berserk early today and killed his wife, their two children and the family dog before turning his 12-gauge shotgun on himself.

The victims were Capt. Frank D. Pickard, 28; his wife, Carole Frances, 24, his son, Franklin Scott, 4, and daughter, Andrea Kay, 2.

Police and Lincoln Air Force Base Officials could give no reason for the killings.

Blasters Sentenced

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Two men were sentenced to eight years in prison yesterday for blowing up two microwave towers and a relay station in the Nevada-Utah desert.

Bernard Brous, 51, and Dale Jensen, 23, pleaded guilty to conspiracy and obstructing vital communications. The government dropped sabotage indictments.

Brous said he was commander in chief of the "American Republican Army." Jensen was his only known follower.

When arrested, Brous said the explosions last May 28 were set off to arouse interest in his "army."

Brous and Jensen still face a 2.75 million dollar damage suit for damage to telephone company property.

KTIM SAMPLES RESPONSE ON A-SHELTERS

Thirty persons responded to a radio KTIM invitation to telephone their opinions on building fallout shelters after a "Marin Sounding Board" debate on the subject yesterday — and only five were strongly in favor of shelters, reported KTIM news editor Karl Barron.

Calls came from homes in San Rafael, San Anselmo, Fairfax, Larkspur, and Mill Valley, he said.

All but five of the callers were housewives, Barron reported. Most spoke against shelters as either inadequate or tending to lead toward acceptance of war as inevitable.

Mystery Ship Owner Believed Lost At Sea

Efforts were being made by insurance men today to salvage the 40-foot boat Rogues ashore near McClure's Beach, while evidence accumulated that its owner, Don W. Farris, had been lost at sea.

The vessel's electronic gear was removed yesterday. At that time it appeared that the boat itself was beyond hope. But further study of its position between Elephant Rock and McClure's Beach indicated the vessel might be hauled off.

Search for Farris's body by the Point Reyes Lifeboat Station remained unsuccessful today, nor had he been heard from, though known to have left Brookings, Ore., last Sunday.

"It looks like he (Farris) had been lost overboard at sea," said Chief Lee Smith of the station. "But this is strictly a conjecture."

Ferris registered the boat at Monterey but had not been there for some months.

Hurtles To Death

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Mrs. Calvin R. Lindenmuth, 26, was hurtled to her death in a thrill ride at a fair here last night as her husband looked on helplessly.

Coroner Jennings Cauthen said Mrs. Lindenmuth was alone on the "dive bomber" when a portion of the bullet-shaped capsule broke loose and hurtled to the ground.

Cauthen said her husband, a welder at the Navy Yard, had not taken the ride with his wife because "he didn't like them."

Tam Valley Seeking Action For Library

Tamalpais -Valley Improvement Club directors today claimed the county board of supervisors is dragging its feet on relocation of the Tam Valley branch of the county library.

The club has proposed moving the library branch from its clubhouse to a building under construction by Neil Martin on Flamingo Road, where more space would be available. County Librarian Virginia Keating has approved, said Mrs. Midge Hamburg, club president, but the board of supervisors has stalled on giving its approval.

The library branch, open three nights a week, averages loans of 1,400 to 1,500 books per month, she said. For 20 years, she declared, the county has been paying only $7.50 per month to cover cost of utilities for the branch, with the club proving space rent-free. The club now needs the space for its own activities, she said.

An estimated 17 million Americans depend on tobacco for all or some part of their livelihood.

Spinnaker Pays Fine Of $686

Payment of $686.20 by the Spinnaker Restaurant on the Sausalito Sandspit has staved off a threatened 15-day license suspension by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control.

Sale of liquor to minors and consumption by them on the premises last June 27 had been charged by the department.

The payment was made by MacMarin, Inc., principally controlled by state Sen. J. Eugene McAteer of San Francisco. Disposition was to grant a permanent stay of five days of the 15 and to wipe out the other 10 by "offer in compromise" procedure.

Now, the fidelity of your records can last a lifetime.

Rusk Hopes U.S. Allies Understand About Tests

HANKONE, Japan (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said tonight he hoped America's friends around the world would understand the position of the United States if it becomes necessary to resume nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

Rusk spoke at a news conference on the eve of completion of an historic joint economic conference of U.S. and Japanese officials at this resort 50 miles outside of Tokyo.

The U.S. and Japanese cabinet level delegates to the three-day conference completed dismussions of all agenda items today. They will meet briefly tomorrow to approve and issue a joint communique.

Rusk said the text of President John F. Kennedy's statement yesterday on the possible necessity of resuming atmospheric nuclear tests deserves careful study and detailed attention.

Referring specifically to Japan, Rusk said the United States fully understood the historical circumstances which make this country highly sensitive to nuclear testing.

"We hope we would have at last a degree of understanding here about the particular problems," Rusk said.

Earlier Rusk bluntly told the Japanese delegates the United States expected Japan to shoulder a bigger burden in aiding undeveloped nations.

Rusk went into the aid question during the afternoon session of the second day of the three-day cabinet level Japan-U.S. joint economic conference here.

The conference, moving along at a workmanlike pace, completed discussion today of the last of the eight-point agenda. It will hold a final session tomorrow to discuss and approve a final communique.

declared Gomez. "Was this in a secret meeting? Where does the record show it is for sale?" He said he attends all council meetings and has never heard the policy declared that the land was up for sale.

Mayor Robert D. Huber said he knew nothing about Blackwell's suggestion until he received a copy of the letter from the city manager. He said the city's stand has been and still is that the land is not for sale.

Councilman George D. Monardo said: "I never knew about it until I received a copy of Blackwell's letter from Almcrants. I don't think George has the right to make the commitment and I shall not vote to have the land sold. I would vote to have it leased to private enterprise, but I wouldn't vote for a hospital."

Clyde Diddle, public relations officer with Kaiser, said his firm is not considering buying either the city property nor that of Gomez at this time.

Ross Town Council Meets As Planners

Ross Town Council, meeting as a planning commission, last night went through part of the third draft of the town's proposed zoning ordinance but took no action.

Town Clerk Carroll Snyker said the council will meet next Thursday at 8 p.m. in the town hall at a regular council meeting. Councilmen will again wade through the proposed zoning ordinance on Nov. 16, sitting as a planning commission.

"The council will probably get to the hillsides lots section of the ordinance on Nov. 16," Snyker said. "This will affect many of the persons in Ross."

Lease Is Renewed For Pistol Range

The San Rafael Sanitation District Board yesterday renewed for five years a lease to the County of Marin and City of San Rafael for district property on which the police pistol range is located.

The property, off Francisco Boulevard in east San Rafael, has been under lease to the county and city at $1 a year for the past five years. The present lease will expire next month.

The terms of the lease must now be approved by the Marin County Board of Supervisors and the San Rafael City Council.

A new man has joined the San Rafael Police Department, Chief Charles J. Chiesa announced today.

His hiring must be confirmed by the city council. Stogner was working for a welding firm in Sebastopol before joining the San Rafael Police Department. He has a wife and five children.

Chief Chiesa said the new man will replace Leon DeLisle Jr., who resigned last month.

Mystery Fans Must Now Pay

Mystery story fans will now have to pay to find out "whodunit" at the Sausalito Public Library.

Starting Monday, a nickel per day will be levied on all books borrowed from the detective fiction shelves. Revenues, according to the Library board, will be used to purchase new titles in this field.

The board plans to use the current library budget for purchase of popular fiction and non-fiction titles as well as classical literature.

SHELTER

tion as high as 25 to 50 megatons.

Hamilton Field wouldn't be worth more than a kiloton bomb to an enemy, Jones surmised. A kiloton is equivalent to 1,000 tons of TNT and is about what Hiroshima got.

Financial figures were provided by Elmer Johnson, Terra Linda civil defense officer. He said present plans work out at around $100 per person for 100-person shelters if enough were built for the whole Dixie district.

The cost of $8 per $100 assessed value would mean $368 per year for 20 years on a $20,000 home, said Johnston. He also thought that space under school playgrounds could be used.

R. J. McCarten brought a model of a "radiation-proof" school which he said could be safeguarded at cost of 10 per cent over its usual price.

On a basis of brief study requested by the group attorney V. Judson Klein reported that just as Supervisor Chairman William D. Fusselman has intimated district. A 3-2 majority of the supervisors could start things, he said. Even if more than half the property-owners opposed, this could be overridden by 4-1 vote of the supervisors.

The group passed a motion to continue as an organization. James Sanger of 440 Nova Albion Way, was elected chairman in succession to Joseph Alumbaugh, who withdrew because of press of personal business.

It was planned that another meeting would be held in about two weeks.

Man, 21, Jailed On Attack Charge

Robert Alexander Donohoe, 21, of 42 Hillview Avenue, San Rafael, was jailed last night on suspicion of statutory rape involving a 16-year-old Mill Valley girl.

Donohoe was being held in Marin County Jail today in lieu of $1,155 bail.

San Rafael Police Inspector Lincoln Borba said the girl met Donohoe in San Rafael on Oct. 22, had some drinks at various bars, and then went to his home. She said she passed out from the drinks, and when she awoke found herself in the nude.

Soil drainage is an important factor for farmers to consider in choosing a forage seeding mixture.

Miller Challenges Medics To Devise Aid Plan For Aged

By CHAPIN A. DAY

Rep. Clem Miller of Corte Madera last night challenged the medical profession to "devise a program satisfactory to them" which would "solve the problem of medical aid to the aged."

"Do it on realistic, practical terms," Miller told a meeting of the Marin Medical Society. "Then go with it to the politicians. We will make our counter offer and we'll start discussing and compromising until we make the differences between the two plans bridgeable."

The congressman told the doctors the American Medical Assn. had "turned your fortunes (in Washington) over to representatives who haven't represented you. The doctors haven't put their best foot forward; they haven't presented their case."

He cited a comment from an unidentified "chairman of a vital committee": "I'm for the AMA, but if I relied on AMA representatives, I would have to be against them."

Pressed for details in the question and answer period, Miller said "until recently the doctors' representatives have had an 'I'll tell you' attitude toward congressmen. They have been dictatorial, authoritarian and patronizing."

As an example, he mentioned a note sent him on a prescription blank, the prescription reading, "Drop Dead."

Miller urged the doctors to try to understand the democratic process better.

Most politicians are convinced there is a problem of aid to the aged, he went on. "We must look at it as a factual situation. Whether you call it socialism or what, we have to deal with facts as they exist."

"I'm not particular about the details of how the problem is solved," he said. "The present Kerr-Mills bill is one approach, but it isn't solving anything except for the indigents. Every citizen who has served a useful life and reached the age of 65 deserves some form of medical care. Kerr-Mills certainly doesn't handle the whole problem."

In answer to questions Miller also said.

1. Building fallout shelters for the populace is a federal responsibility, but as yet there is no policy set and the federal government will not move until policy decisions are made. He said his personal opinion is that the individual "certainly should build an individual fallout shelter if you have a strong back or can afford it."

2. The Point Reyes National Seashore bill should be passed by the House in February and signed into law by the president. He worried, however, that Marin isn't doing a good enough job of planning for neighborhood playgrounds and local parks.

3. It is helpful to write thoughtful letters to congressmen on matters with which one has information or experience. However, letter writers should understand that congressmen have party loyalty which sometimes conflicts with the personal feelings of an individual congressman.

Dr. Russell Klein, president of the society, presided over the meeting at the Meadow Club, Fairfax. Dr. Joseph J. Arons, president-elect, was program chairman and introduced the speaker.

Witness Says Ranch Trains Ministers

Those aren't lumberjacks or cowpunchers but "student ministers" at the 3,200-acre Palomarin Ranch near Bolinas Bay, according to Mrs. Marian T. Huff, secretary of the Elected Delegates Committee of the Ecclesiastical Society, otherwise called Christ's Church of the Golden Rule.

Mrs. Huff made this point in Federal Tax Court in San Francisco yesterday as basis for a claim that the ranch and many other business operations of the Church of the Golden Rule are entitled to religious exemptions.

"They are training centers for our student ministers," said Mrs. Huff of the ranch, a Napa County hot springs resort, a coffee shop, a nursery, a manufacturing plant, and various other enterprises. This, she said, was the vital point in which these operations differ from normal commercial firms.

Prosecuting for the Internal Revenue Service, Sidney U. Hiken was interested in the fact that not only did the "student ministers" serve as basis for a tax exemption claim but that Mrs. Huff added that "they volunteer their services without salary."

"Wouldn't this make it possible to charge lower prices?" he asked.

"That would not be the Golden Rule," replied Mrs. Huff. "It has been our policy, rigidly adhered to, that our services should be available at prevailing prices. This is the Golden Rule in action."

She explained that what she meant related not to the customers but to rival businesses, which might be hurt by a cut-rate policy.

The Golden Rule was similarly well regarded by Werner Tobler, a Swiss who said he had given everything he owned to the group when he joined.

San Rafael Doctor Is New Medics President-Elect

Dr. C. Ray Leininger, San Rafael pediatrician, is the new president-elect of the Marin County Medical Society. Official announcement of his election, and that of new society officers to serve with him, was made last night at the society's monthly meeting.

Dr. Leininger, who ran unopposed, will take over as president-elect in January from Dr. Joseph J. Arons of San Rafael, who will become president. Under the society's by-laws the president-elect serves one year before automatically becoming president for a one-year term.

Dr. Calvin Plumhof, San Rafael pathologist, was elected to his third term as secretary, unopposed.

New directors elected were Drs. William A. Galeno, San Anselmo surgeon, and Arthur R. Ablin, San Rafael pediatrician, to three-year terms, and Alexander H. Beaton, San Rafael otorhinolaryngologist, to a two-year term. They outpolled Drs. Joseph P. Gutstadt and G. William Magladry for the posts.

Elected delegates to the California Medical Assn. for three-year terms were Drs. Roger W. Hedin, San Rafael general practitioner, and Robert F. Schell, San Rafael surgeon.

Drs. J. Lyman Hurlbut, Kentfield general practitioner, and Robert L. Mills, San Rafael plastic surgeon, defeated Drs. Russell Bernhard and Sam Hanzel as CMA alternates for three-year terms.

Slayer Of Patrolman Executed

James Kendrick, who had been concerned about sending out Christmas cards, was executed today for the murder of a California highway patrolman.

Today's execution date was set last August after Kendrick petitioned the courts that it was cruel and unusual punishment to keep him on Death Row and not tell him when he was to die.

The bond slayer went quietly to his death in the San Quentin Prison gas chamber. Sixteen witnesses watched as the cyanide pellets were released at 10:02 a.m. into the vat of acid beneath the chair in which Kendrick was strapped.

At 10:12 a.m. he was pronounced dead.

For his last supper, he ate most of a banana cream pie. He asked for no spiritual help and said little to guards during the night.

Kendrick, 31, was fleeing the scene of a robbery in Grand Terrace, Feb. 26, 1960, when he was halted by officer Richard Duvall on Highway 66 near Victorville.

He though Duvall was chasing him and pumped shots into his head and chest with a .32-caliber revolver. Later investigation showed that Duvall apparently was stopping him only for a minor traffic violation.

He broke out of San Quentin Dec. 7, 1959, while serving consecutive terms for robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Prison officials said he escaped by hiding in a furniture truck but Kendrick said he scaled the wall with a rope and hook.

Drug Use Urged For Treatment Of Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Sidney Farber, a leading cancer specialist, today urged more widespread use of drugs in the treatment of cancer patients.

While final control of cancer is still in the future, he said, achievements of great importance have been made in the treatment of the disease by chemicals.

Farber is professor of pathology of Harvard Medical School and director of research at the Children's Cancer Research Foundation, Boston. He spoke at a conference of 1,000 cancer specialists sponsored by the Cancer Chemotherapy National Service Center.

"Although more than 260,000 patients will die of cancer this year," he said, "it is doubtful whether more than 10,000 of these will be systematically treated and studied by doctors skilled in cancer chemotherapy.

"For the most part, chemotherapy is not administered to the patient with cancer until he is in a state of advanced cancer or actually moribund (dying)."

Most doctors rely on more conventional treatment, such as surgery or radiation, especially in the early stages.

Farber said that "chemotherapy should be used early when metastases spreading of the disease are found, and not reserved until the patient is moribund."

The meeting at which Farber spoke is a two-day conference called to review progress in the field of cancer chemotherapy. The agency sponsoring it is a branch of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Dr. Isidor S. Ravdin, past president of the American College of Surgeons, said yesterday that it is now certain cancer will come under control just as diabetes has.

And he also said in a speech to the conference that it is highly likely that "before another year is passed, we may well find that certain of the common human malignant lesions" may be caused by viruses.

"We may have information on the control of such lesions by chemical agents," he said.

Security Talk

Charles H. Shreve, San Francisco district manager of the Social Security Administration, will speak on "Social Security in Financial Planning" at the quarterly meeting of the Marin Estate Planning Council at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Stay Is Obtained For Connell Boy

Attorney Benjamin Dreyfus of San Francisco said yesterday he has obtained a new stay of extradition, until next Thursday, to prevent removal of Jeffrey Kelley Connell, 18, of Mill Valley to Reno to face trial for the holdup murder of a grocer there last March.

Dreyfus said he will file a habaes corpus write for Connell with the State District Court of Appeals in San Francisco on or before Thursday. The writ was denied in Marin Superior Court Oct. 23.

Two other youths, Chester Blum and Richard Worrell, pleaded innocent in Reno to the charge last Oct. 26. Date for their trial was set yesterday for Jan. 22 before District Judge Clel Georgetta.

2169 CARS SOLD SINCE JAN. 1, 1961

There must be a reason!

And there is! It's a simple, logical reason. Ames Ford sells more cars because they have more cars to sell and can give better deals than any other dealer. Volume dealing has long been the measure of success in the automobile business and Ames Ford has proven it time and time again. The big city dealers have tremendous overhead, the small country dealers have poor selection. Both require more profit per car. So why not be logical? Check the deal at Ames Ford before you buy any car.

Luau Dinner Is Pleasing At Bob's; Brides At Alta Mira? Ramona's Back

For reasonable dining you might like to try Bob's of Marin "luau dinner" at $2.50 which has a selection of entrees to please most everyone — a roulade of beef, roast beef, baked ham, chicken and a daily special.

Other menu items run from steaks to seafood. A real treat is the culotte steak. There are only four of these to a steer.

Also there is a low calory luncheon.

KIRBY ATTERBURY of Tiburon, insistent about staying in the restaurant business, has changed his Caprice restaurant to "El Borraquito Gordo," and made it Mexican.

Vicente Aguilar, five years at the Papagayo Room, three at the Santa Barbara Biltmore and 15 with the Fred Harvey chain, is the chef.

It's open 5 to 10 p.m. week nights; 1 to 8 p.m. Sundays; closed Mondays.

The new Caprice at 2000 Paradise Drive will not be opened until sometime in January.

IMAGINE MY SURPRISE at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito to find three brides circulating through various parts of the premises.

"What goes?" asked I of Bill Wachter. "Hit the jackpot or something?"

"Not especially," quoth he. "This goes on all the time. Stick around a while and you'll see another one. These were comparatively small wedding parties. We take them up to 300."

CHEF JEAN JOAQUIN'S proposed restaurant training program may soon get off the ground.

At a meeting this week, Bob Maher, coordinator of the work experience program, and counselor of the Tamalpais Union High School District came up with a dozen qualified, serious-minded lads eager to make it a profession.

Pat Dailey of the Culinary Workers Union says his local will go along with them. Jean says top chefs in the county will do the same. Everyone's looking hopefully for the College of Marin to come up with a curriculum.

LA PETITE AUBERGE hosted the North Bay Wine and Food Society again last month and we hear that owner Paul De Vaux, maitre Pierre Grigaut and chef Roger Poli outdid themselves with dishes from the Provence region of France.

Two mentioned were Brandade de Morue which Roger was reluctant to prepare at first, doubting Americans would enjoy it but finding otherwise—and Estouffade de Boeuf Provencale.

Brandade, a dish of disintegrated salt cod, mixed with fine olive oil, cream and garlic, was greeted with joy and raised wine glasses. The estouffade, a stew served with macaroni and parmesan cheese and olives, was also appreciated.

WE'RE GLAD TO FIND Ramona, who has been ill lately, now able to spend more time at her San Rafael restaurant Mexicana again.

New food offerings include costilla a dovados (barbecued Mexican spareribs). It will be on the regular evening menu.

Biste a la Mexicana (Mexican steak), not on the menu, can be ordered for lunch or dinner — try it.

Ramona's salad dressing now is on sale to take out.

BLUE ROCK INN has made an anniversary discovery. We understand from Don Bennett who's mining-wise and knows about things around Larkspur that there are garnets in the fireplace stone which was quarried here in Marin. You have to look for them, but they're there.

The week-long 66th birthday festivities at Blue Rock starting today should be something to take in.

CONNOISSEUR'S DELIGHT — Maitre Pierre Grigaut and owner Paul De Vaux of La Petite Auberge Restaurant, San Rafael teamed up in the serving of Estouffade de Boeuf Provencale to a visiting gourmet group.

Hub Chamber Launches Drive For Membership

San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday called for an all-out drive for increased membership and launched a study to see if a full-time chamber of commerce manager should be hired.

President Jack Phillips appointed a committee headed by Richard Kientz to see if there is enough work and enough revenue to justify a fulltime chamber manager. His committee includes Sidney Braverman, Robert F. Seeba, A. N. Nipper, and City Administrator Douglas Flautt.

The chamber also decided on an intensive campaign to sign up more merchants as members. The drive will begin with the Nov. 11 countywide auto show to be held on the old railroad right-of-way between Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and San Anselmo Avenue near Safeway Store. For two weeks after the auto show, letters will be mailed to merchants who are not yet members.

Then, two-man teams will make personal calls on the merchants to encourage them to join. As an added incentive, two free trips to Los Angeles (sailing to Los Angeles and airplane ride back) will be given as prizes during the membership drive.

Nipper also suggested that a countywide chamber of commerce idea, similar to the former Marvelous Marin organization, be reactivated.

MARIN FILM FARE

Jazz Film For San Rafael Romance Slated For Hub

By LES DARD

Here we go 'round the movie circuit for the weekend on Marin County screens:

RAFAEL THEATER

"Paris Blues" is Hollywood's newest attempt to throw light on the world of jazz and jazz musicians. It has a topnotch cast, topnotch music, interesting backgrounds and unusual faces. It opens Sunday at the Rafael.

Paul Newman and Sidney Poitier star as American musicians living and working in Paris, Joanne Woodward and Diahann Carroll as American tourists.

The girls have two weeks to spend in Paris, and find quick romance after meeting Newman and Poitier at the small Left Bank club where both play nightly.

There is much frank conversation between Miss Carroll, who plays a Negro school teacher, and Poitier about the racial situation in the United States, and about a musician who is a narcotics addict.

The picture's musical score is by Duke Ellington, and it really comes to life when Louis Armstrong takes up his trumpet and moves in front of the camera.

TAMALPAIS THEATER

A romance closely tied to recent history is told in "Bridge to the Sun," taken from Gwen Terasaki's autobiography about a Tennessee girl who met and married a Japanese diplomat before Pearl Harbor.

The picture starts Wednesday at the Tamalpais.

Carroll Baker and James Shigeta star in the unusual drama which shifts from peace to war, from Washington to Toyko, from a dreamy romance to the hard facts of life in a hostile nation.

"Bridge to the Sun" is generally engrossing, and of particular value for the insight it gives of life in an enemy nation during World War II.

FAIRFAX THEATER

"The Naked Edge," Gary Cooper's last movie, is now showing at the Fairfax Theater. Co-starred is Deborah Kerr, who plays Cooper's wife.

Cooper plays a clerk who suddenly comes into money after testifying at the murder trial of an office associate. Years later, suspicion is thrown on him, indicating he killed his boss and made off with the company funds.

SEQUOIA THEATER

Fannie Hurst's poignant novel in modern dress, "Back Street," comes to the Sequoia screen Sunday.

It is the familiar story of the alcoholic wife, the neglected husband and the woman who falls in love with him knowing she can never really possess him.

Susan Hayward gives a frank new interpretation of the role as the other woman in the life of John Gavin. Vera Miles plays the wife who will not let him go.

NOVATO THEATER

Purely to please your funnybone is "Come September," coming Sunday to the Novato.

It stars Rock Hudson, Gina Lollobrigida, Sandra Dee and Bobby Darin.

Hudson plays an American millionaire who owns a villa in Italy, to which he journeys each September for a vacation in the company of the comely Gina. This year, he turns up a month early and there's chaos and comedy to greet him.

TIBURON PLAYHOUSE

Two fine comedies are now showing at the Tiburon Playhouse.

"Pleasure of His Company" is the sophisticated, San Francisco-based comedy starring Fred Astaire as an aging playboy who stops off to see his daughter, Debbie Reynolds. He hasn't seen Debbie since she was a tot, but decides he's opposed to her forthcoming marriage to Tab Hunter.

In "On the Double," Danny Kaye romps through no less than 19 characters as he plays an American GI assigned to impersonate a British general marked for death by the Nazis.

MOTOR MOVIES

"Portrait in Black" is now on screen at the Motor Movies, starring Lana Turner and Anthony Quinn in a drama of illicit passions heightened by murder.

Miss Turner appears as the wife of a shipping tycoon, Lloyd Nolan. Quinn, her lover, is also Nolan's doctor. And even though Nolan is dying, the couple decides to speed his demise.

The story is set in San Francisco.

LARK THEATER

What would your neighbors think if your teen-age daughter wrote an overnight best-seller titled "Naked Revolt."

Well, there's all sorts of fun when that happens in "Please Turn Over," a British comedy about a family nearly torn apart by daughter's inventive novel, now in its third week at the Lark.

You'll love it if you can find it

Most people, when they partake of the incomparable international cuisine at Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club House, know the sweet serenity of fulfilled self-indulgence.

The only catch is, the Club House is tricky to locate. Even our renowned chef, formerly accustomed to the simple centrality of the Hotel Claridge in Paris, sometimes gets lost wending his way to his Peacock Gap domain.

Actually, all you have to do is go east on Third Street in San Rafael and proceed 4.1 miles on along San Pedro Road until you reach miraculous Marin Bay. There, if it's evening, you trail the tiki torches to your delightful destination. By day, stop at the Marin Bay Display Pavilion and ask for complete clues.

Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club House is open to the public for luncheon, 11 to 3, Tuesday through Sunday. Exceptional dinners are served 6 to 10, Saturdays and Sundays. Closed on Monday. For reservations, call San Rafael, GLenwood 3-4122. Tables for two or twenty.

Blair Vs. Behr Debate Held—Without Blair

An expected debate between Supervisor J. Walter Blair and his recall election opponent Peter H. Behr last night turned out to be a case of playing Hamlet without the Dane.

Blair wasn't there. Behr was there, but in the audience gathered in Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club Hall.

On the platform with Mrs. Midge Hamburg were attorney Albert Bianchi of Sausalito, for Blair, and Mill Valley real estate man Stephen Kramer, for Behr. The seconds had to do the boxing except for subsequent audience participation when Behr joined in.

Leading off for Blair, Bianchi attacked the basic theory of recall as applied to a man whose honesty and integrity, he felt, hadn't been questioned.

Blair has faithfully tried to carry out his platform promises, said Bianchi, therefore a recall proceeding against him lacks validity.

Taking up the Behr cudgel, Kramer said Blair has consistently acted first and investigated second. This isn't the way a good supervisor should behave but the very reverse, declared Kramer.

Both speakers evidently felt handicapped by having to represent somebody else. Though a number of previously discussed points came up, such as the famed temporary shutdown of work at the civic center, nothing new developed.

When audience participation was permitted, some queries were put to Behr about the proposed Mill Valley small boat harbor and points on land acquisition. Behr said nobody has gotten at the sources of the difficulties and that a more positive stand is called for.

A telephone exchange has recently been installed in Carmacks, Yukon Territory, the frontier town named for George Carmack, whose gold discovery sparked the Yukon gold rush.

Minister Says Asian Missions On Increase

"When my dentist had his dentist tools in my mouth, he asked if Christian work is dwindling in areas overseas," said Dr. Winston Crawley, who was interviewing young people for overseas missionary posts yesterday at the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary.

"The fact is," Dr. Crawley said he told his dentist, "the responsiveness to the gospel is increasing and opportunities for Christian missions are increasing in most Asian countries. This does not apply to Red China, however."

Dr. Crawley, who reads and writes Chinese fluently and who first went to Asia as a missionary to China in 1947, is looking for reinforcements, he said, to be sent to Taiwan and Pakistan. The Southern Baptist Foreign Mission board, of which he is secretary for the Orient, sends people to 14 countries and territories in the Near and Far East.

Dr. Crawley has just returned from a 15-month stay in Hong Kong with his wife and three children. He said his mission and other missions helped provide blankets and clothing for 10,000 families who were burned out in a fire in the refugee squatter area.

The boyish-looking Crawley is the son and grandson of Baptist ministers and was born in Tennessee. Forced to leave China, he became a missionary in the Philippines prior to becoming secretary.

He has lived in Korea (and was there during the student uprising 18 months ago), in Singapore, Indonesia, Thailand and Tokyo.

In July he spent some time in Viet Nam.

He spoke of Viet Nam as being in its golden age and having a desire for strength and status.

With regard to the Viet Nam crisis, he said he would not try to predict the outcome. "It does give some perspective," he said, "for people to realize there was a time when there was a Communist military threat in Malay and that, with passing of 10 years, that threat is a thing of the past." There was also a threat in the Philippines, he added.

Dr. Crawley said that living in Hong Kong, a listening post to Red China, is "very thrilling and impressive. If our teen-age children had been given a vote as to whether we came home to Richmond, Va., or stayed in Hong Kong, they would have voted to stay."

Tiburon Sanitation Unit Meets Monday

The Tiburon Sanitary District board will discuss the qualifications for employment of a new plant operator at its regular meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Tiburon Boulevard Sewage Treatment Plant, according to Secretary Robert A. Sterling.

Also on the agenda is a review of the prerequisites for sewage treatment in Marinero subdivision residences No. 2, Sterling said.

Tiburon Scouts Receive Honors

Tiburon Peninsula Boy Scout Troop 48 awarded honors in recent court of honor ceremonies at Paradise Park, according to Scoutmaster Jack Averill.

Life Scout honors were awarded to Norman Hantzsche and Star Scout to Jim Hite.

Recognition Given For United Crusade Support

Employees of two Marin County corporations, a hospital and a private school received special recognition today for "greatly increased gifts" to the United Crusade campaign.

Topping the list, said Carroll Walker, campaign chairman, is the Fairchild Corp., whose employees contributed a total of $2,119. The firm matched this gift, making a total of $4,238 from Fairchild. This is eight times last year's total donation of $538, Walker said.

The second corporation cited was Dumont, whose employees gave $780, more than twice last year's donation of $358.

Ross General Hospital's employees contributed a total of $619, nearly three times as much as their 1960 gift of $213.

The faculty and staff of San Rafael Military Academy made a combined gift of $676, more than twice their $259 donation last year.

These illustrate "a rather consistent pattern of increases by individual givers and employee groups," Walker said.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING A BOMB SHELTER?

This new air view of the civic center administration building shows what architect Aaron Green had in mind when he said that some of its lower area, burrowing into a hill, could make a good shelter in case of enemy attack. On the finished dome surface at the other end light blue undercoat has just been tried in preparation for an eventual bright "sky blue" which Green has just revealed as final choice. Landscaping of the fair grounds area in the cleared area beyond the civic center will be up for bids soon. In this picture North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia, stretches across the base while Highway 101 angles across the upper left. (Aero Photographers)

Car Does Fair Job By Itself

SPRING VALLEY, Minn. (AP) —Mrs. John Kenning wonders if she could have done as well IN the car.

After she fell out on a turn, the car crossed a highway, skimmed through a lot without touching some 1962 models, slipped between a pole and guy wire and went down an alley.

Only blotch on its record—the car crashed into a garage at the end of its weird run.

Young Man Was Hard To Please

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A young man entered Lew Lipton's restaurant, said he was broke and asked for a free meal.

Lipton said, "What'll you have — name it."

"Waffles," said the young man.

"No waffles at this time of day," said Lipton.

"I'll go somewhere else then," said the young man. And he left.

They Work Way Through College

WALESKA, Ga. (AP) — The president of Reinhardt College, James Rowland Burgess Jr., says he feels that "any good student who's willing to work for his education" should be able to attend the Methodist-supported institution in the north Georgia hills.

Almost half the 236 students are working their way through Rainhardt this year, cooking, waiting on table.

COMPLEX, SIMPLE

New Stereophonic Sound Is 'Phase 4'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The newest development in stereophonic sound, London Records' "Phase 4," is extraordinarily complex yet relatively simple.

It is complex only if it must be explained in the gobbledegook argot of the hi-fi and stereo fanatics.

But if described in simple English, "Phase 4" is easy to understand.

Hitherto, record companies have been making stereophonic discs by diverting a "first" sound to one side of the record groove and a "second" sound to the other side. When the record is played on a stereophonic phonograph, the sound emerges from two directions.

Each company has its own process. Some companies have failed to prevent one sound from drifting from one speaker to another. Other companies have made separation of sound so distinct that it loses the goal of three-dimensional unity that is ultimately desired.

A few companies have produced stereo records that are realistic beyond imagination. One of them is London, which is introducing "Phase 4" throughout the world after many months of research.

London's first "Phase 4" record is called "Pass in Review." It permits the listener to feel he actually is watching troops and bands march by. The movement of sound from one speaker to another is gradual instead of sudden and thus becomes lifelike.

Most companies have found it difficult to record big bands in stereo because of microphone problems yet Ted Heath's "big band percussion" on "Phase 4" overcomes the obstacles.

But in order to get this truly third-dimensional sound, London literally took Heath's band apart.

Heath's band consists of five saxophones, four trumpets, four trombones, a rhythm section and a percussion section. Each of these sections was recorded separately and merged into a whole through electronic ingenuity.

Instead of using the two tracks ordinarily designed for recording stereo, London experimented with four. Let's say the first and third tracks were recorded clockwise and the second and fourth counterclockwise.

For instance, the engineers put the rhythm section of Heath's band on lane one, which is intended for the left speaker. The percussion section was placed on track two, whose sound goes into the right speaker. The saxes were taped on track three (left speaker) and the brass instruments on track four (right speaker).

The engineer was able to bring these separate sounds together by using special arrangements and putting headphones on the musicians so each group could hear what the others had recorded.

By criss-crossing the tracks, London succeeded in closing the gap between the speakers, eliminating what stereophiles call "hole in the middle."

Bob Sharples, who produced and directed the "Phase 4" series, spent four months making "Pass in Review." He spent 80 hours editing the music and weeks in transferring it to the master record.

The possibilities of this "Phase 4" system are almost unlimited. London's most popular bands are those of Heath, Mantovani, Frank Chacksfield, Eric Rogers and Edmundo Ros. If London so desired, it could record Heath's trumpets, Rogers' percussion section, Mantovani's strings, Chacksfield's saxes and Ros's bongos separately and in different locales and bring them together on one record.

Why is this process called "Phase 4"? London feels that stereophonic sound had evolved through three stages since its introduction in 1957 and that their process took stereophonic sound into a fourth phase.

"Phase 5"? To reach this phase, London will have to bring their orchestras into your home.

Freud Put Too Much To Blame— He Was 'Old-Fashioned' Moralist

NEW YORK (UPI)—In a sex education lecture aimed at physicians by a physician-scientist, the point was made that Sigmund Freud is in no way to blame for "the current laxity in sex morals," and the many people who so blame him are doing him "a great injustice."

The fact is, said Prof. Max Levin of the New York Medical College, Freud in his personal life upheld the "old-fashioned" morality. He was an excellent husband, the father of six children, and "lived a blameless personal life."

The reason why this "great injustice" is imposed by so many people upon a founder of modern psychiatric and psychologic science, is "almost laughable," continued Levin. These many people don't know the difference between repression and suppression.

"When Freud revealed the unfortunate consequences that may follow the repression of sex impulses, many people gleefully jumped to the conclusion that he was referring to the suppression of sex desire."

As a neurologist as well as a psychiatrist, he found nothing harmful in suppression of sex desire. Indeed, he recommended it in certain specific circumstances.

One involved a young woman whose suitor kept telling her she was not living "in the days of Queen Victoria and today the watchword is 'sex without guilt.'" Furthermore, she was afraid if she maintained her "old-fashioned" morality much longer her college classmates would consider her a square.

"But you ask her one little question that opens her eyes," Levin said. "The question is this: 'Your boy friend says he loves you, but what do you think? Does he really love you or himself?'"

He was lecturing physicians because they are often called upon to give advice concerning sex and sex morality. He did so in the technical journal, Current Medical Digest, of which he is the psychiatric adviser.

His theme was that "anyone who thinks it's time to discard the 'old-fashioned' standards" should pause and give the whole complex subject of sex deeper thought. And the person who thinks so has completely misunderstood Freud if he believes Freud "indorsed sexual license."

He recalled the furor which the idea of "companionate marriage" caused 40 years ago, and rejected it along with any other variant of a "trial" arrangement before marriage. None of these violations of "old-fashioned" sex morality is "the answer to the uncertainties of life."

"Marriage is a gamble," he said. "It is inevitable that some marriages will end in disaster. But a young woman's chances are best if she waits for the man who feels and believes his life would be empty and flat without her, and who has enough respect for her and faith in the future to publish his love without evasion before he asks her to become his woman."

Not An Annual

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Baking Industry Exposition, held here recently, is held only once every six years, mainly because the equipment is so bulky that it is expensive to move. Manufacturers said too, that the design of the machinery doesn't undergo drastic changes very often.

Span Board To Weigh Park On Marin Side

IJ Special Report

EUREKA — Golden Gate Bridge's building and operating committee will reconsider plans for constructing a parking area on the west side of the Marin end of the bridge.

Chairman Dan Del Carlo told the bridge directors here he will call such a meeting in the near future and invite both Fred Bagshaw of the Department of Public Works and Marin Supervisor J. Walter Blair to attend.

Del Carlo's decision came after Marin Director Leland Murphy told the bridge board that it should take another look at the state's plan for a west side parking area, with pedestrian undercrossing to Vista Point. State highway officials had said they had dropped plans for such a project after the City of Sausalito had urged construction of a $263,000 roadway connection under the bridge approach to Vista Point.

The state would spend $40,000 on such a project, but the remainder of the total cost would have to come from elsewhere. Blair had supported the Sausalito stand.

In answer to a question, Bagshaw pointed out that with the widening project on the bridge, scheduled to start next month, all parking on the west side would be eliminated. Southbound traffic would be unable to stop at the bridgehead.

President Matt Graham, the other Marin director, joined Murphy in urging reconsideration.

Governor Speaks Out On Traffic

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—Gov. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina has a theory that impulse is at the bottom of most traffic violations.

In a talk at his annual highway safety conference here he said, "A traffic law violation, unlike most other crimes, is a crime of impulse, not premeditation. A man who wouldn't think of stealing your wallet will steal your right of way."

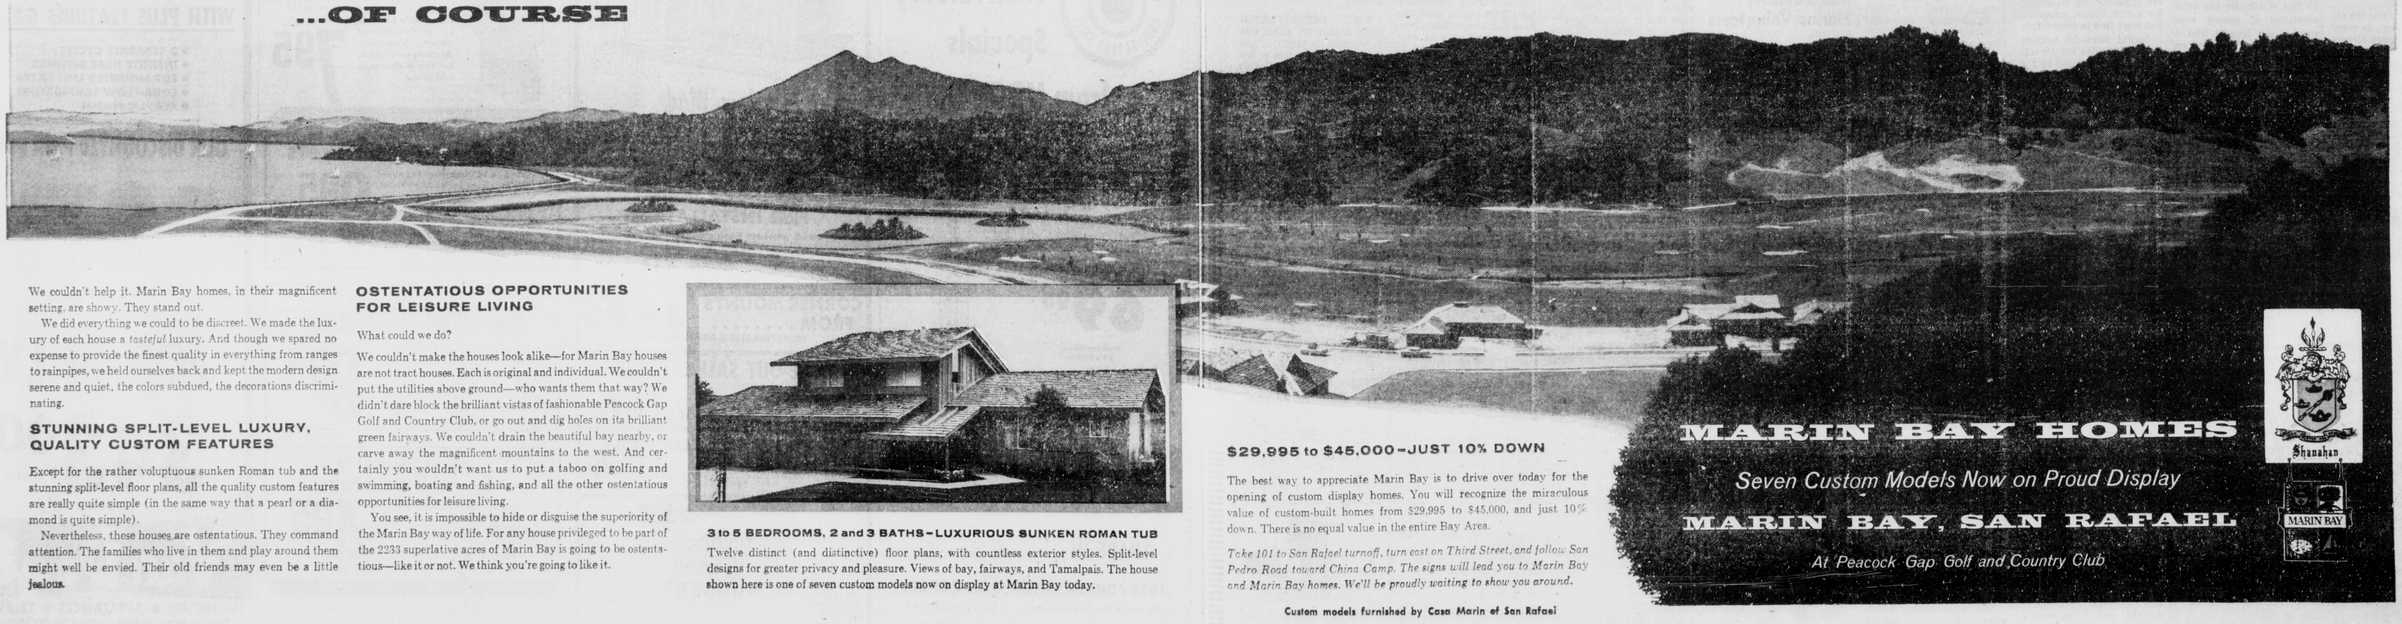
ARE MARIN BAY HOMES OSTENTATIOUS?

...OF COURSE



We couldn't help it. Marin Bay homes, in their magnificent setting, are showy. They stand out.

We did everything we could to be discreet. We made the luxury of each house a tasteful luxury. And though we spared no expense to provide the finest quality in everything from ranges to rainpipes, we held ourselves back and kept the modern design serene and quiet, the colors subdued, the decorations discriminating.

STUNNING SPLIT-LEVEL LUXURY, QUALITY CUSTOM FEATURES

Except for the rather voluptuous sunken Roman tub and the stunning split-level floor plans, all the quality custom features are really quite simple (in the same way that a pearl or a diamond is quite simple).

Nevertheless, these houses are ostentatious. They command attention. The families who live in them and play around them might well be envied. Their old friends may even be a little jealous.

OSTENTATIOUS OPPORTUNITIES FOR LEISURE LIVING

What could we do?

We couldn't make the houses look alike—for Marin Bay houses are not tract houses. Each is original and individual. We couldn't put the utilities above ground—who wants them that way? We didn't dare block the brilliant vistas of fashionable Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club, or go out and dig holes on its brilliant green fairways. We couldn't drain the beautiful bay nearby, or carve away the magnificent mountains to the west. And certainly you wouldn't want us to put a taboo on golfing and swimming, boating and fishing, and all the other ostentatious opportunities for leisure living.

You see, it is impossible to hide or disguise the superiority of the Marin Bay way of life. For any house privileged to be part of the 2233 superlative acres of Marin Bay is going to be ostentatious—like it or not. We think you're going to like it.

3 to 5 BEDROOMS, 2 and 3 BATHS—LUXURIOUS SUNKEN ROMAN TUB

Twelve distinct (and distinctive) floor plans, with countless exterior styles. Split-level designs for greater privacy and pleasure. Views of bay, fairways, and Tamalpais. The house shown here is one of seven custom models now on display at Marin Bay today.

$29,995 to $45,000—JUST 10% DOWN

The best way to appreciate Marin Bay is to drive over today for the opening of custom display homes. You will recognize the miraculous value of custom-built homes from $29,995 to $45,000, and just 10% down. There is no equal value in the entire Bay Area.

Take 101 to San Rafael turnoff, turn east on Third Street, and follow San Pedro Road toward China Camp. The signs will lead you to Marin Bay and Marin Bay homes. We'll be proudly waiting to show you around.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

10 San Rafael, Calif. EDITORIAL PAGE Friday, Nov. 3, 1961

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

We Need To Start Thinking About Future Of Pt. Reyes

Charles A. DeTurk, new director of the new State Department of Parks and Recreation, had some eye-opening statistics to give delegates at the Redwood Empire Association convention in Eureka last weekend. The figures have immense implications for Marin County.

DeTurk, former chief of the State Division of Beaches and Parks, reported that $850,000,000 is spent in California every year by tourists. That between ⅓ and ½ of the 17 billion auto miles traveled each year in California are for recreational purposes.

Regarding specific projects, DeTurk called attention to the fact that last year, the year of the Winter Olympics, 650,000 persons went to Squaw Valley. This year up until Sept. 1, and without the Winter Olympics, more than 750,000 had visited the state park there.

The tiny recreated Gold Rush town of Columbia, far away from the freeways or other easy access, has 800,000 visitors a year. It is estimated they spend $12,000,000 a year in the tiny Tuolumne County community.

Hearst Castle, open only three summers, had its millionth visitor this year; and to go through that state park it costs $2 per person.

Even more impressive and interesting to Marin County, however, was the experience of San Luis Obispo County when the state accepted the castle as a gift and took it off the county tax rolls.

Loss to the county was $800,000 in assessed valuation. Now, just three years later, the motels and hotels alone which have been constructed within three miles of the castle are assessed at more than $1,250,000. Needless to say, the county fathers are more than happy about the situation, particularly because each motel and hotel is a new payroll in the county and carries with it other industries such as eating establishments, gasoline stations and the like to serve the tourists.

All this is important to Marin County because it looks nearly certain that Pt. Reyes National Seashore will be established by the Congress next year. The Senate has already approved it and Rep. Clem Miller is certain the House will follow suit when Congress convenes again. This is just the start. They have no money yet to purchase it.

But it does mean it is none too soon for us to be thinking about what will happen in West Marin. Are zoning, building, land use regulations appropriate there to handle facilities for large numbers of persons? We certainly don't want the area to just grow like Topsy. What about the highways and roads to carry the people? Who's planning what needs to be done?

These questions don't need immediate answers. They do need to have concerned people thinking about them. Then when the answers will be imperative, we'll have some good ones.

Some Thoughts On Tulip Planting

The tulip bulbs which we buy for a dollar a dozen and pop into the ground now for blooms next spring, were once the subject of speculation more frenzied than that on Wall Street in 1929.

During Holland's now famous Tulipmania in 1637, prices for a single rare bulb went as high as 2600 guilders. According to one estimate, this is what 2600 guilders would have bought at that time—one thousand pounds of cheese; a dozen fat sheep; four fat oxen; eight fat pigs; two loads of wheat; four loads of rye; two hogsheads of wine; four barrels of beer; two barrels of butter; a complete bed; a suit of clothes and a silver wine beaker.

Tulips were more expensive in Holland in those wild days. But it seems safe to say they are nowhere more appreciated than when blooming in the backdrop of Marin's own gardens.

Office Bachelors Come In Every Possible Size, Shape And Form

NEW YORK (AP)—No office zoo is complete without its quota of bachelors.

Most of the men in the average business firm, as every secretary knows, are already married—some for so long they have no memory of a previous state of life.

But sprinkled among them are a few faster-footed brethren who have managed to escape the marital yoke. They are in turn pursued or denounced by all the unwed maidens in the office.

Office bachelors come in all ages, shapes and sizes, but if you look around where you work here are a few types you may recognize:

Nervous Ned — He turns pale if a woman gets within 10 feet of him. He has been suspicious of women ever since a girl brought him a rose in kindergarten, and he stuck his finger on the thorn.

Hungry Henry — "What's cooking tonight, baby?" he asks each stenographer in turn. But the wise ones know he isn't asking for a date—he's just fishing for a free invitation to a home-cooked dinner.

Practical Phil—He's interested in girls' figures, all right, but only the figures in their bank account. His slogan is, "Heaven helps the poor working girl, but a poor working boy has to look out for himself." He is looking for a rich widow, something you don't find in every office.

Soulful Sam—He believes in the Bohemian life. He will spout poetry to a girl by the hour, but the moment she makes him pause to look at the rings in a jewelry store window he turns and flees for safety.

Cynical Sid—"All women are alike—they're just looking for a meal ticket," he tells one and all. But when this skinflint squires a girl out for the evening, she's lucky if he buys her a hot dog.

TROUBLED Tom — When he leans on a girl's shoulder it isn't romance. He merely wants to get closer to her ear so he can pour into it the sad story of his life of woe. He really doesn't want to get married. He wants to be adopted.

Curious Charlie — Every Thursday he takes the boss' secretary to lunch. She has the lurid idea he is courting her. Actually he is merely pumping her to find out what really is going on behind the scenes in the office.

EXPERIENCED Edward — "Never again—I'm a three-time loser," he wails after his third divorce. But a month later he elopes with a college coed half his age. "Just like a man," agree the prim old maids in the office.

Available Albert — For 20 years the married men have regularly invited Albert home when they needed an extra man at a dinner party. He is safe and single, and plans to stay that way. "Who needs a wife?" he asks. "I know how to sew on buttons."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Grand Opening For Christmas?

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

May I offer a suggestion? Would you, in your position of leadership in our community, please lend your editorial support to the belief that the spirit of Christmas might be better served if the "Christmas Season" was begun after Thanksgiving?

At this moment there are stores in San Rafael who have already begun their annual race to see who can get the most first from the buying public. Any reasonable person knows that businessmen need to make a profit, and no one would deny them the need. However, I fail to see the necessity for Christmas decorations in store windows even before Halloween has come and gone. It sickens me to see evidence of such greed and money-grabbing.

Each year the decorations seem to go up sooner, and I fear, sir, that unless this trend is stopped, our "after-Christmas sales" are going to run headlong into our "pre-Christmas sales."

Would it be possible for the merchants of this city, through their association or Chamber of Commerce, to agree upon a reasonable date when all those who wish to decorate their businesses could do so, and have a "grand opening" of the season in San Rafael? Perhaps a special evening when the "unveiling" could take place? A band playing on the courthouse lawn?

But spare us, please, from Christmas in October.

ALAN L. GORDON
San Rafael

(NOTE: San Rafael merchants have agreed on such a date to open the Christmas season. It is Thanksgiving Day, a holiday in which all the merchants can unveil their Christmas windows. But people are already shopping for Christmas and Christmas Club checks are being delivered. The I-J's Christmas special edition ties in with this opening date and will be delivered to your homes the night of Nov. 22.)

Funds For Schools Not Civil Defense

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Raising my voice to join the housewife, the contractor, the professor and the columnist in protest against bomb shelters, I ask:

How about starting a civil offense? As the descendants of the intrepid pioneers who built this nation, giving us a heritage of freedom and belief in the sanctity of the individual, we should be ready to act vigorously for our ideals.

Let us give all our children the best education we can afford. Let us spend that billion for civil offense, EDUCATION, instead of civil defense. Let us build enough classrooms so that we can reduce class size to 20 students. With classes of 20 to 25 and an abundance of books and supplies we can achieve excellent education. Then each child can grow to his maximum ability. Then teachers can really do the job they love, and many who have left the profession in frustration will gladly return.

Our whole society will benefit. The battle against communism will be won in the minds and hearts of men. Time is on our side. WHY ARE WE WASTING IT?

Bad Publicity Harms Volunteers

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

In regard to your recent news items concerning property purchases by our Marin Junior College board, I am quite sure that your objective has been to encourage conformity with state law. This is commendable. However, it seems to me that your reporter was unduly harsh in his frequent use of the words "secret meetings."

His news items suggested that something was rotten. I feel sure you must have known that the Marin Junior College board consists of high minded, good intentioned citizens who are trying to do a sound job for the county. The kind of publicity you have given these people must surely be a discouragement to them and to anyone contemplating service to the community.

Your vigilance in regard to all public matters is absolutely necessary if we are to assure proper and legal procedures in government, but your quickness to criticize in this instance was unfortunate.

This matter reminds me of problems your reporter, Mr. Anderson, created some months ago when he attended a meeting of the Boy Scouts in San Rafael and emphasized a very small part of the discussion which was critical of the United Crusade. He created a matter quite out of proportion to its relative importance. This caused trouble and problems for both organizations, each of which is trying to do a proper job for the community.

It seems to me that your newspaper has a particular responsibility to fairly report all news. I am inclined to the opinion that you have not done this in connection with the Marin Junior College matter and I am strongly of the opinion that you did not do this in regard to the Boy Scout-United Crusade matter.

As one who has often defended your opinions and general position in the community, even at times when I have been in disagreement with you, I write this letter to appeal for a more objective approach to reporting, particularly in matters applicable to volunteer and public service groups where it is so important that we encourage the support and active participation of the very best of our citizens.

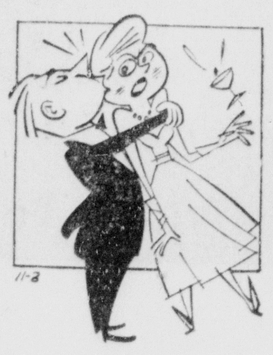
TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

At a gay literary party, a slightly spifficated author embraced a stranger by mistake. He apologized, "No offense intended, madam; I thought you were my wife." "A fine husband you must be," she snorted. "You overstuffed, miserable, incompetent lout!" "You see," exclaimed the author triumphantly. "You even talk like her!"



John Rosenfeld tells about the lady musician who was fired in disgrace from a nationally famous orchestra. "We had a concert date in Dallas," she explained tearfully, "and I forgot my harp."

Jerome Weidman characterized one married pair he met backstage as "perfect material for an airport; he's idle, and she's wild."

Phil Silvers says a girl who has a different date every night is like an inveterate poker player: she loves a good deal.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By FRED WYATT

Many Marinites Were Present At Alcoholics Anonymous Dinner

Many Marin residents were among about 800 men and women who dined and danced in the Palace Hotel in San Francisco Saturday night.

No one passed out, no bottles were broken, no fists swung. No one built a hangover.

The Sheraton chain is still speaking to the outfit sponsoring the event: The society or fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous, once called the Children of the Night by its surviving co-founder, ex-Wall Street broker William G. W.

EACH FALL the birthday party is held to mark the miracle of 365 more days of sobriety of its members who abstain from drinking one day at a time; who realize that for themselves one drink is too many, a thousand aren't enough; who are grateful for the wonder of each new day and its opportunities for building a new life.

AA's founder became sober 27 years ago after a "hot flash," a spiritual regeneration that hit him as he lay in a drying-out sanitarium on Manhattan's upper west side.

"Whatever it is you've got, hang on to it," said the late Dr. William D. Silkworth, who'd seen patient after patient drink himself to death.

WITH THE LATE Dr. Robert Smith of Akron, another up-to-then hopeless alcoholic, William W. formed what Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, a non-alcoholic friend of AA, has termed "the greatest miracle to come out of our age."

The method was and is one drunk talking to another. No hard sell. It can't be sold, can only be given away—not to those who need it but to those who want it.

Not all the salvaged sots in AA are ex-basket cases, jailbirds or tenants on fidget farms, though plenty have been on that route. Many have been fired numerous times, divorced, otherwise put on the rack.

But increasingly the ranks of the 300,000 or so across the world are joined by persons who still have jobs and spouses and by more youthful persons.

THE LATE John W. Curley of the New York Daily News, a contemporary of Gene Fowler and other ink-stained wretches now gone who served in the Era of Wonderful Nonsense, once said, "There's nothing so terrible as the power of a sober alcoholic!"

Curley went a good measure toward proving this in his own way. Some weeks besides putting in full shifts writing sparkling lines for Daily News picture pages, he put in full or nearly full shifts at the New York Post.

Then blew the extra loot putting up a still suffering alcoholic at Knickerbocker Hospital—or otherwise supporting him.

NOW TO COMPLETELY change the subject:

Kent O. Seymour has denied that he voiced "regret" at the time the Recall Blair movement began over having been J. Walter Blair's 1960 election campaign manager.

I did not say in my Oct. 19 column that Mr. Seymour had switched sides. But by failing to make clear that he still backed Blair, I implied that he had switched. It is my turn to voice regret.

Reference to John B. Ehlen's political writing for Blair was not intended as disdain of ghostwriting. Particularly when done by a pro such as Ehlen.

Answering speculation in the same column, the consensus is that William D. Fusselman will resign as supervisors' chairman, but not from the board, if Blair is recalled.

Adenauer, Kennedy Must Come To Full Understanding On Germany

WASHINGTON—When Dr. Adenauer has been re-elected chancellor, as we must hope he soon will be, he and the President will want to come to a full understanding. It is badly needed.

A satisfactory understanding will need to be something more than a superficial agreement on what may be mentioned and what may not be mentioned in a negotiation with the Soviet Union. A true understanding will have to be found at the level of the highest policy, and it will have to deal with the future of Germany and the future of the United States in this period of world history.

LOOKING BACK, we can now see that the great issues which confront us today were generated between 1949 and 1954—between the formation of the Coal and Steel Community and the admission of West Germany to the NATO alliance.

During those five years or so, decisions were taken to integrate a re-armed Western Germany in the political, military, and economic community of the West.

Dr. Adenauer played a leading part in these decisions. They have had two enormous consequences, both of which have come to fruit simultaneously in the past few months.

ONE IS THE movement towards Western unity, which took a decisive turn when Great Britain moved to join the European Economic Community.

The other consequence of the action of 1954, by which West Germany joined NATO, is that reunion with East Germany ceased for the time being to be practical politics.

The President and the chancellor will need to come first to an understanding on how they can work together as loyal and effective partners in the construction of the Atlantic Community. They will then need an understanding on how—given the fact of German partition — West Germany and the Western Alliance are to deal with East Germany and Eastern Europe.

THE DEMONSTRATED truth is that the status quo in Germany is partition, and it is on that fact that policy has now to be formed. This is regrettable. But if anyone is to be blamed, it is Hitler, who started the war and lost it.

If we and the Germans are to go forward together, it will be as partners in the Atlantic Community, neither questioning the loyalty of the other, neither treating the partnership as fragile and subject to operatic tantrums.

We shall have to decide how we will adjust ourselves to the revolutionary changes which the greatly enlarged Common Market is precipitating.

It is not unreasonable if we say to Dr. Adenauer that the Federal Republic will have to take more responsibility for working out livable relations with Eastern Germany and Eastern Europe.

Shelter Protection Is Negligible

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I would like to answer the letter of Oct. 27 and explain why the construction of fallout shelters is an important and significant step toward war; while the protection they afford is, for us, negligible.

It is likely that in isolated, relatively uninhabited areas like the Sierra, fallout shelters could conceivably save a few lives which would otherwise be lost. In urban and suburban areas, the problem is not mainly fallout but blast, prompt gamma radiation and firestorms, against which the fallout shelter is not designed.

A surface burst of a single 10 megaton bomb produces severe blast injury out to nine miles, third degree burns to 20 miles and firestorms to 25 miles. The effect of the 50 megaton weapon has not yet been documented.

We in the Bay Area live among a vast complex of military and industrial targets. Our fallout shelters would serve as family or community crematoriums.

The current civil defense program provides only fallout shelters. If we do decide to dig way, way down to provide protection against blast and thermal effect, how do we propose to prevent potential enemies from building bigger bombs to make those shelters obsolete? . . .

Praise For Deputy Sheriffs

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Perhaps I am over-enthusiastic about the fine protection that we on the Tiburon Peninsula received from the Marin County Sheriff's Department, the California Highway Patrol and the Corte Madera Police Department in the recent shooting incident that took place in our area.

I would like especially to commend the two officers of the Marin County Sheriff's Department — Nielsen and Johnsen, who risked their lives in order to maintain law and order.

This certainly makes me feel that there could not be a safer place to live, as this was an instance of all agencies of the law working in cooperation with each other.

I have been known to have been against incorporation. I have also felt that incorporation of the Tiburon Peninsula would deprive us of the excellent coverage afforded by the sheriff's department and the California Highway Patrol and felt that it would leave us with inadequate and inexperienced police protection.

I have also long been in favor of a sheriff's sub-station, situated about half way between the Alto Wye and Main Street in Tiburon . . .

Miller's Report Not Published

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

During the past month our congressman, Clem Miller, has been making numerous reports to the people of this and other counties in the First Congressional District regarding a number of very, very important matters. One of these was made to the San Rafael Rotary Club on Oct. 16 at a time when members of your staff were present. This was an excellent and important report which was well received by Republicans and Democrats alike.

If any account appeared in the newspaper, I missed it; and if accounts of other Miller reports have appeared in the paper they must have appeared very inconspicuously on back pages. This has long been construed by Miller supporters as a campaign of silence which has caused him to be unknown only in his own County of Marin.

May I remind you that in the long run freedom, including freedom of the press, can exist and be beneficial only amongst responsible and fair-minded people? Freedom and responsibility are counterparts. Furthermore, the people of this county would like to know what goes on in Congress and what their congressman may have to say about it.

SAMUEL W. GARDINER

(NOTE: No I-J editorial staff member attended the meeting to which Reader Gardiner refers. We cannot cover all the "numerous reports" Congressman Miller makes. When we cover them, we report them. It seems like a strange "campaign of silence" when we published the congressman's weekly column from Washington.)

I Am Thinking Of Humanity!

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

"Humanitarians" tell us today that it is sinful for people to talk of active resistance to Communist conquest of the world, because it would mean that we would subject humanity to a horrible fate. We must think of "humanity."

Believe me, I am thinking of "humanity!" I think of that part of humanity that we are gratefully feeding to the Red monsters so that we might save our segment of humanity from a like fate.

In the meantime, our diplomats pore over endless notes and messages from the dictators trying to find some small clue on paper that there has been some miraculous change in heart. We meet the dictators at Geneva, Camp David, and Paris, and are encouraged to read that "cordiality reigned." We negotiate in the U.N. on whether to welcome the Red Chinese dictators to this body dedicated to peace. It does not seem to concern us that to do so seals the fate of the enslaved and starving millions of Red China; we can justify such negotiation on the grounds that such recognition is "inevitable" and certainly safer than losing our popularity with their allies and sympathizers . . .

We here in America say that we believe in freedom. Our laws guarantee our freedoms. They protect our rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. But, on second thought, is it the laws that protect our freedoms? Or is it our mutual respect and preservation of these laws that protect us?

If the Communists were to take over our country, would the laws protect us? If the rest of the world were enslaved, would our laws protect us then? The U.N.? World law? A World Court?

The answers to these questions are not comfortable. I I do not like having to face them anymore than any other peace loving American. But, like it or not, I must. Like it or not, I am involved. And, admit it or not, I am responsible!

The people of the world want "peace." They also yearn for freedom. Herein lies our great hope. Because of this we can be optimistic, IF we dare to be courageous. The Communist dictators can only enslave the peoples of the world with our help. We cannot be satisfied with winning a "peace." We must win the cold war, or the enemy must recognize the Communist as the enemy; an enemy dedicated to the destruction of freedom . . .

We are the only hope for a truly free world, and Providence has thrust upon us the responsibility of leading it to a real peace . . .

Ashamed Of People Of Marin

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

It is with a feeling of shame that I read in your esteemed newspaper, that nothing has been done yet to make the old folks' home in Marin County safe and decent.

How we, the people, stand pat and refuse this elementary need for our own, is beyond my understanding.

We surely spend money from taxes on various things less important, and less dutiful . . . on which we do not vote either.

The Ten Commandments or Decalogue (q.v.) in the Bible is a summation of Mosaic ethical teachings, which are considered concise statements of divine law of Judaism, Christianity and Islam.

One of these Commandments says:

"Honor thy Mother and thy Father."

How far are we from fulfilling what this means?

Last week one of the daily newspapers published an article giving the results of some 3,000 interviews of adults, about what they were willing to do for their aging parents. This was carried out by the Survey Research Center with financial support from the Ford Foundation and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

By 2 to 1 margin, adults expressed the opinion that relatives should be financially responsible for older, needy persons.

The principal reason given, who felt support of relatives was a family responsibility and was that "families should care for their own."

However, the group in favor of government responsibility gave such reasons as "this is the government's job," or "relatives cannot support older people, they cannot afford it."

Most of them are opposed (5 to 1) to the idea of having older persons at home, living with children . . . (yet, how many kids have been reared by grandparents, and are the better for it?)

All in all, it is clear that the trend in U.S.A. is that no one wants to be bothered with old parents. No other country in the world assumes such feelings and we are becoming the most selfish, hypocritical people of all . . .

Yes, I am ashamed and so should be all and every one of us.

Highway Must Be Watched

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Your paper reports tonight (Oct. 28) that "the state's recommendations on location of two Marin County highways, long the subject of disagreement, will be made before the end of the year." You then list the Shoreline Highway from Manzanita to Stinson Beach as one of these two highways, according to R. Arthur Hayler, state district highway engineer.

How does this square with the repeated statements by the State Division of Highways that this highway would not be realigned or improved for 10 years? I think the suspicions of many of us have been confirmed that the Division of Highways was trying to divert public attention from the project and allay protests.

The fact is that the situation must be watched constantly.

U.S. May Explode Several New Nuclear Weapons

No Superbombs Are Expected; Sites Must Be Selected

WASHINGTON (AP)—Officials said today the United States can be expected to explode several new types of improved nuclear weapons if President John F. Kennedy decides to order test firings in the atmosphere.

Kennedy announced yesterday he is determined to maintain the U.S. lead over the Soviet Union in nuclear weapons strength. He disclosed that he was ordering the "necessary preparations" for atmospheric tests if in his later judgment they become necessary.

Although the president is reported reluctant to order such explosions, there is a growing belief in official quarters here that the United States probably will undertake a program of atmospheric testing in a few months.

SMALL SHOTS

Officials reported that U.S. experts do not have in mind exploding superbombs of the kind that the Soviets fired Monday with a force of 50 megatons. On the contrary, they said, the atmospheric explosions would be relatively small, yet larger than tests conducted underground.

Kennedy said in his statement that if bursts in the air became necessary they would be held within limits that restrict the fallout "to the absolute minimum."

Initial preparations which are now beginning, it was learned, consist of a survey of the types of nuclear weapons which are ready or can be made ready for testing and selection of the sites at which the tests would be conducted. The second stage will consist of the physical preparation for the actual explosions.

FINAL DECISION

The tasks of preparation fall primarily on the Defense Department and the Atomic Energy Commission. The final decision of whether atmospheric explosions actually will be carried out will be made by the president.

Officials familiar with the progress of developments said that kinds of weapons which would undoubtedly be involved in any new testing program would include the much discused neutron bomb, an anti-missile missile and improved types of nuclear warheads designed to give greater explosive power in relation to their weight. These informants said government leaders consider it likely that scientific teams working on weapons development will be encouraged to come up with a variety of new ideas as preparations progress.

BEGAN SERIES

The United States resumed underground weapons testing several weeks ago after the Soviet government announced it was ending the three-year-old U.S.-British-Soviet moratorium on test explosions and promptly began a series of atmospheric tests.

The Atomic Engery Commission said the Soviets fired the 29th and 30th shots in their new series yesterday in the Novaya Zemlya test area of the Arctic. The commission said the blasts were of moderate force.

Resumption of tests by the Soviet Union stirred up angry criticism in many parts of the world. Officials here are aware that if the United States goes into an expanded test program of atmospheric blasts, with the inevitable fallout of radioactive material, this country also will be subjected to criticism.

U.N. Committee Approves Test Moratorium

Both U.S., Russ Reject Plan In Advance Of Vote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. political committee gave overwhelming approval last night to a call for a voluntary, unpoliced moratorium on nuclear weapon tests.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have rejected it in advance.

The committee voted 72-21 with eight abstentions for the resolution submitted by India and five other nonaligned nations. It appeared certain to get the two-thirds majority needed in the 103-nation General Assembly.

MORE BLASTS

The ballot came shortly after two more nuclear blasts were disclosed and President John F. Kennedy announced the United States would prepare to conduct new tests in the atmosphere to be ready in case free world recurity demanded them.

Before the vote, the United States and its Western allies said Moscow's unilateral scrapping of the previous voluntary moratorium on Aug. 31 and its subsequent series of test explosions attested to the futility of any agreement that made no provision for enforcement.

The Soviet Union called the moratorium unfeasible unless it was made part of an overall disarmament agreement.

URGES APPEAL

Despite the prior rejection by the nuclear powers, India urged the committee to make another appeal to them to call off further tests.

Some delegates predicted the strong support given the moratorium appeal would place the United States in an awkward position if it resumes atmosphere tests. They argued that the propaganda bonus the Americans won from the worldwide indignation over the Soviet Union's violation of the last moratorium would be canceled out if they follow suit.

The United States and its major allies took the position that it would be better to be unpopular with the smaller nations than to leave the non-Communist world at a military disadvantage because of Soviet advances made in the September-October tests.

Death-Row Rulings Given By State Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The State Supreme Court affirmed yesterday the death penalty for one inhabitant of San Quentin Prison's Death Row, reversed the murder conviction of another and ordered a fourth trial to determine the penalty of a third slayer.

The high court reversed the murder conviction of Robert Lee Kidd, 38; ordered a new penalty trial for Albert Love, 40, a Chico wife slayer; and affirmed the death sentence of Henry Ray Lane Jr., 22, who killed a Menlo Park Policeman last year.

Kidd was convicted of the murder of a San Francisco junk dealer. The Supreme Court, in a 5-2 decision, reversed the conviction saying the trial court was improper in preventing a defense attempt to impeach testimony of Coroner Henry Turkel. The high court also found the prosecutor guilty of prejudicial misconduct in questioning a police officer about Kidd's previous police record.

Lane, a one-armed, one-eyed gunman, was convicted of killing Patrolman John Lyle, 28, in a gun battle at a supermarket parking lot.

The Supreme Court decision for a new penalty trial in the Love case also came on a 5-2 vote. The majority found the Butte County prosecutor guilty of prejudicial misconduct.

The misconduct, the decision said, consisted of the prosecutor stating what the court termed "the vigorously disputed proposition that capital punishment is a more effective deterrent than imprisonment."

Such an assertion by a prosecutor, the majority said, "is apt to be misleading and is therefore improper."

Marin Has New Little Theater

Playhouse 101, Marin's newest little theater group, has been established to perform at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The group is composed of a merger of the Novato Community Players and the Hamilton Air Force Drama Group.

A membership meeting concerning the coming season and operating procedures will be held at 8 p.m. today. Also on the agenda are a children's theater production for the Christmas season and selection and planning of the first major production, to be given early in 1962.

George Wahl is business manager. Other officers currently conducting business for Playhouse 101 are Sandy Reinhart, Linda Harms, Judy Jording, Maggie Feldstein, Vince McGovern and George Wahl.

Head Of W.P. Speaks For Santa Fe

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Western Pacific President Frederic B. Whitman says a concern for the public interest—not self-interest — is the reason he wants Santa Fe rather than Southern Pacific to control the railroad.

Testifying at a hearing before Interstate Commeree Commission Examiner Paul Albus yesterday, Whitman answered S.P. charges that he stands to make a personal profit from the Santa Fe offer.

George Buland, S.P.'s chief counsel, charged that Whitman and other W.P. officers have an option to buy stock at between $16 and $20 a share with the prospect it may yield $35 a share. Santa Fe has offered to exchange 11 shares of its stock for each share of W.P.

Whitman acknowledged the financial inducement but insisted if S.P. wins control, "ultimately there won't be any W.P." W.P., on the other hand, would retain some identity, even as a wholly owned subsidiary of Santa Fe, because of Santa Fe's competition with S.P. through the Utah Gateway, he said.

"Ursus californicus," the California Grizzly Bear, was voted the State's official animal in 1953—it is now extinct in California.

President As Politician Wows Jersey

Helps Underdog In State Race, New York Mayor

TRENTON, N. J. (AP) — President John F. Kennedy wowed New Jersey Democrats last night with a Republican-needling stump speech aimed at helping underdog Richard J. Hughes in the state's race for governor.

Kennedy obviously enjoyed a two-hour respite from the burdens of the presidency as he put on the cap of party political leadership in an outdoor speech in the brisk November air to a rally of about 10,000 of the party faithful. This fell far short of the 50,000 throng that Hughes' supporters had hoped to assemble.

The president flew to Trenton from New York City, where he gave a boost to Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner in the latter's race for reelection.

ENDORSEMENT

Kennedy's endorsement of Wagner in New York was:

"I want to take this opportunity to state with the utmost conviction my wholehearted support for the reelection of Mayor Robert F. Wagner. His experience in coping with the problems of this great city cannot be matched."

The president's motorcade was deliberately routed through such important political areas as Harlem and the upper West Side of Manhattan as thousands watched from sidewalks.

Wagner—handicapped by a Democratic party split his fight for a third four-year term—denied that Kennedy's visit to the city five days before election day was a political rescue mission.

OLD FORM

In Trenton, Kennedy was in old campaign form as he told the cheering crowd that Hughes, opposed by Republican James P. Mitchell, had had "a long and uphill campaign."

With a note of sarcasm in his voice, the bare-headed president, wearing a business suit and no topcoat, told the chilled crowd that Hughes had been downgraded too much.

"He has been written off on more front pages of more papers supporting other candidates than any candidate I know, with the possible exception of myself about 18 months ago," Kennedy said.

BRITISH TO MOVE HONDURAS CAPITAL

New Site Is 44 Miles Inland; Hurricane Death Toll Hits 151

BELIZE, British Honduras (AP)—Twice destroyed by hurricanes in three decades, this capital of British Honduras will be moved inland 44 miles from the exposed Carribean Coast to higher ground.

The government announcement came as the known death toll from Hurricane Hattie rose to 151, and many more bodies were feared buried in the mud and wreckage left by the storm Tuesday.

The rising Belize River threatened floods in the city of 30,000, which bore the brunt of the 200-mile-an-hour winds and tidal waves that crashed in from the Caribbean.

Belize counted 62 dead. An estimated 75 per cent of the buildings in the city were destroyed or damaged. The property devastation was greater than the 1931 hurricane that leveled the city and killed more than 2,000 persons.

There were 38 dead reported in Stann Creek, one at Gale's Point, 29 on Turneffe and 14 on Cay Caulker. The latter two are small islands off the coast.

Five persons were reported killed in neighboring Guatemala and two in Honduras.

As far as could be determined amid the confusion, all the 200 Americans in British Honduras were safe.

U.S. Consul Richard Geppert, who fled with his family just ahead of the storm, radioed from Cayo de San Ignacio that they were safe after being stranded at the Guatemala border by a blown-out bridge.

Hondurans trudged the muddy streets of the devastated capital and even managed a chuckle at their survival—but with heavy hearts.

British troops were flown from Jamaica to help guard against looting as the clearing of the debris went slowly, mostly by hand.

"When we are able to remove the debris from the streets, I fear many more bodies will be found," said Prime Minister George Price. "We are waiting for heavy equipment."

U.S. Negative Thinking Hit By Governor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown warned University of California students and faculty today that democracy is being attacked by a fearful minority, including self-proclaimed guerrillas "who wish to be their own civil defenders."

"Sometimes the cry is against government itself," he said. "Or it may be against the United Nations, or against the income tax, or against integration, or even against the fluoridation of drinking water."

"But it is always something. Seldom, if ever, is it for any constructive government."

Brown said that "not since the heyday of the American First movement, before World War II, has there been such an upsurge of negative sentiment."

Noting he had reports that there are now 23 guerrilla bands in California, with 2400 members, Brown said:

"I have told these people that they must abide by the plans of their local government, the state and nation.

"Today, too many Americans are willing to shut off debate. Too many prefer to label and smear rather than form critical judgments, founded on facts."

Novato Goes For Marin Title Tomorrow

Novato High—the Achilles team of the Marin County Athletic League—will have its turn to worry about its heel through a contest with the spooky Marin Catholic Wildcats on the Hornets' gridiron tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

And that game will be worth worrying about. If Sir Francis Drake beats San Rafael tonight, Novato will have to win it to keep from being in a tie with Drake for the Marin County Athletic League 1961 championship tomorrow. If Drake should lose tonight then Novato can win the championship by beating the Wildcats. (Novato now has a 3-0, won-loss, record, Drake a 2-1.)

The Hornets probably feel that if they are to get the Indian sign, like San Rafael, it will probably be in front of the fans at a home game. And if anybody is going to cast it, it will be Wildcat quarterback John Jones.

If he is on target and can keep his wind and ribs long enough in the onslaught of the Hornets' unmerciful line, some Novato safeties will have their tongues hanging out at the conclusion of the contest. Coach Harry Moore of Marin will try and match wits and skill against Novato's wits, skill—and brawn.

Marin Catholic has a fine tackling team, a dangerous passer, and a coach that loves practical gridiron jokes. But Marlin Olsen's machine—by all the laws of averages—should make it a clean, shutout victory. He has the defensive backfield in Joe Colfer, Don Scribner and Cliff Pierce, stronger tacklers and Olsen himself enjoys practical jokes, one of which is a play called "the banana" and another on conversions that is unprintable when described by an opponent who has suffered under it.

"Any time you play a team that can pass as Marin Catholic can, with passer like John Jones, you can be hurt. We respect the Wildcats. I am especially impressed with their end Paul Kruger," said the Novato mentor.

Tomorrow's battle is either going to be a boring steam rolling affair or a high scoring, "fun" contest to watch.

Probable starters on offense:

For Marin Catholic: quarterback Jones, halfbacks Frank Ubhause and Wally Lourdeaux, fullback Charles Hardeman, ends Don Zimmermann and Kruger, tackles Joe Hebel and John Hassett, guard Hank Ryan (other guard spot uncertain due to Mike Hebel being on injury list), and center Dave Pansini.

For Novato: quarterback Scribner, halfback Craig Bond, wingback Colfer, halfback Dennis McCormick, ends Martin Baccaglio and Mike Fleming, tackles Art Cherry and John Cook, guards Doug Rosenberg and Marshall Taylor, and center Bob Paine.

SUCCESSFUL COACH — Marlin Olsen, head coach of the Novato High Hornets instructs two of his key linemen, tackle Art Cherry, left, and end Martin Baccaglio on offensive blocking. Olsen's team today boast a 6-1, won-loss, record and are undefeated in Marin County Athletic League play this season. Tomorrow at home they clash with Marin Catholic at 2 p.m. Game will be broadcast over KTIM. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

Bulldogs Try Spoiler Role Over Pirates

Jack Sovereign, San Rafael High's top quarterback, will be starting against Sir Francis Drake tonight.

One of the county's outstanding signal callers, Sovereign has been plagued by ankle trouble this season and has not been able to function with the precision with which he is capable. Last week he saw less action than reserves, and in previous games was generally limited to passing and calling.

He has been under the doctor's care and been giving his legs a lot of rest for about the last three weeks. Yesterday he told Bulldog coach Bob Muster that his legs felt better, and he was running better than since the conclusion of San Rafael's first game.

BAD NEWS

Here's some more bad news for the Drake Pirates, who if they can beat San Rafael have a chance at the Marin County Athletic League crown, but if they lose, hand it over to Novato High. The news is that Bulldog lineman Rich Robertson suffered only a sprained neck last week and will be in action tonight. Bulldog Chris Yaeger, top tackle, suffered a muscle spasm in his rib cage and will also see some limited play. (Linebacker John Yeats, however, is still on the injury list.)

"We have not yet laid down and died," said Muster. He said that his troops want to play football these next two games and plan to do some spoiling tonight and some wrecking next weekend when they meet Novato.

2-1 RECORD

The Drake Pirates' noses are re-hardened after being softened by the Novato Hornets last weekend. The Pirates will throw a 2-1 league record and a tough defensive squad, plus backs Rich Bottini and Tom Kolbe at the Bulldogs.

Drake coach Bob Franceschini, who has done an excellent building job with his team this year, says that "whichever team rebounds the best" after last week's losses will sing the victor's song in the showers tonight.

Drake, remembering what coach Harry Moore's Marin Catholic Wildcats did to San Rafael by utilizing the arm of quarterback John Jones, may follow suit. Especially if that Bulldog line gets too tough for the Drake offensive forward wall. Novato has the best defensive safety squad on pass defense in the county. San Rafael's skill is less than Novato's in this area.

KEY PLAYER

So the key to the road to MCAL glory or at least another victory may be in Pirate quarterback Hamish Tyler's arm. It will be the long ones that could be fatal to the Bulldogs.

It all starts at 8 o'clock at Kentfield.

Probable lineups are as follows:

For Drake: quarterback Hamish Tyler, halfbacks Jim Sannar and Rich Bottini, fullback Tom Kolbe, ends Laddie Richardson and Larry Kline, guards Lloyd Stasiowski and Jim Moreno, tackles Ben Ongaro and Scott Kelly, and center Don O'Brien.

For San Rafael: quarterback Jack Sovereign, halfback Finley, wingback John Posey, fullback Mike Shafer, ends Bruce Howard and Bruce McPhail, tackles Chris Yaeger and Rich Robertson, guards Jack Clark and Jim Flanagan, and center Denis Nickel.

Controversy Will Be Waged At F.&G. Commission Meet

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A lively debate on proposed 1962 angling regulations is expected to resume when the State Fish and Game Commission meets in Sacramento Dec. 8.

Dozens of changes were suggested at a meeting yesterday and three of them stirred up controversy.

One was a suggestion that no live fish other than golden shiners, fathead minnows, mudsuckers, red shiners and mosquito fish be used for bait in inland waters.

Some sportsmen tried to persuade the commission to approve of the hitch minnow, which was outlawed as bait two years ago because it can't be reared successfully in captivity. The Fish and Game Department also says other fish are harmed when the minnows are raised in streams.

Commissioner Thomas Richards Jr. of Sacramento touched off another discussion with a proposal that one salmon under 22 inches be permitted in the sport fishing ocean salmon bag limit of three fish.

Backers of his proposed regulation said most salmon under 22 inches are fatally injured when they are thrown back in the water so at least one should be kept.

The Fish and Game Department replied most young salmon live if thrown back properly.

Sportsmen in the Secramento-San Joaquin Delta pleaded for night catfishing during the four summer months. Commissioners replied this would harm striped bass in the area.

The commission indicated it would turn down all three proposals but said a decision would not be announced until the Dec. 8 meeting.

Pro Athletes Will Attend Belvedere Little League Fete

The Tiburon Peninsula Little League will hold its annual father-son dinner tomorrow from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in St. Stephen's Church, Whittaker Hall, Belvedere, according to event co-chairman Fred Mantegani and Lee Larimer.

Awards will be given the winning major league team.

Seals Ice Hockey On TV Tomorrow

The Seals will not open their season on ice in their home town until Nov. 17 at the Cow Palace.

TED MITCHELL GIVES HIS PREDICTIONS

Here are Radio KTIM sports director Ted Mitchell's predictions of football games envolving Marin teams this weekend:

San Rafael over Drake, 1 point.

Napa over College of Marin, 6 points.

Novato over Marin Catholic, 12 points.

San Rafael Military Academy over Lick Wilmerding, 2 points.

(Mitchell withheld an opinion on the Tamalpais-Redwood game which he will be broadcasting over KTIM tomorrow at 2 p.m. from Kentfield.)

49er-Lion Tickets Go On Sale Tomorrow

Unreserved seats for the San Francisco-Detroit game will go on sale tomorrow at noon at Kezar Stadium. The 4,800 ducats are priced at $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12.

Woodson Gets Starting Job On Offense

Abe Woodson and Aaron Thomas will be in the starting lineup when San Francisco plays Detroit in a National Football League battle Sunday at Kezar Stadium.

Woodson replaces C. R. Roberts at one running back post, while Thomas will take over for rookie Bernie Casey.

Meanwhile, coach Red Hickey and his staff have been fretting over Detroit's revised offense which finds four pass receivers splitting off.

Jin Ninowski passed for 249 yards, while fullback Nick Pietrosante, only man behind the quarterback in the new formation, rambled for 112 yards last Sunday as Detroit battered Los Angeles.

And Lion publicist Bud Erickson warned yesterday that "now that the offense is moving, the defense has picked up again."

Clay Substitutes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Philadelphia light-heavyweight Von Clay, ranked among the top ten in his division, today hoped to capitalize on the break which found him substituting for Alejandro Lavorante in tomorrow's nationally televised fight against Billy Hunter.

Clay and his manager Tony Graziano were contacted yesterday after Lavorante, Argentina's latest heavyweight sensation, had to cancel out of the Saturday bout because of a cut lip.

49er Publicist Has It Easy With Shotgun Doing His Job For Him

CONNOLLY

Coach Red Hickey, the San Francisco 49er players and the Bay Area fans may be a bit unhappy about the sudden change of fortune that switched the shotgun into a popgun, but there are two sides to every coin. Let's flip it and take a look.

You take genial Dan McGuire, the 49er publicist for instance. Dan has never had it so easy. With almost every newspaper and magazine in the country giving reams of publicity to the ups and downs of the 49ers every day of the week, Dan's hardest job is to keep out of sight. A tub-thumper's paradise, no less.

And then there are the poor stockholders who are crying all the way to the bank. It's nice to own a winner, but when you can make more money with a loser some of the pain is assuaged. It even hurts.

Think of the joy in Chicago and Pittsburgh. The 49ers gave Papa Bear George Halas and his Monsters of the Midway such a psychological lift they are even dreaming of overtaking the Green Bay Packers, current leaders of the Western Conference. The Steelers aren't going anyplace, but at least they no longer feel like doormats after last Sunday's win.

AND WHAT a field day for the experts. Anyone who ever held a football in his hand has been quoted at length on what is wrong with the 49ers and what they have or have not done right. Coach Hickey has not lacked for advice, both in the public print and by mail.

Surely there must be some good in a team that brings so much joy to so many people. So who is next? If anyone deserves a bit of encouragement it must be the Detroit Lions, who play the 49ers at Kezar this Sunday.

WHEN THESE teams met in Detroit a few weeks ago the "new" shotgun blasted the Lions out of the park by the humiliating score of 49 to 0. So shook up were they, in fact, that a pennant contender was turned into an "also ran" overnight. You can bet the Lions are going for revenge.

Somehow I can't conceive the 49ers playing four bad games in a row. Not with the ability this club unquestionably has. Maybe it's unfair to add another burden to the Hickeymen, but we are picking them to put a halt to all the nonsense. We pick 'em, but not with confidence.

THE HESTITATION comes because we know how stubborn a pro coach can be. I believe Hickey will start this game pattern just as he has the last five games, with the triple barrelled shotgun. And it may work again against these Lions. If not, Hickey must concede to the experts and go back to playing the game according to the book.

Should this happen, this corner will be more than a little sorry. Red Hickey's offense has been the only real attempt to change what was becoming a dull pattern, and it was fun while it lasted. Our only criticism of the shotgun is that the 49ers have not yet exploited its possibilities to the utmost.

Should Hickey lose the Lions game through stubborness and lack of imagination, he has fair warning. This column will come out fighting next Monday. That ought to scare him!

S.F. Seals Play Musical Chairs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—After a losing start, the San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League continue to shuffle personnel. Two new players came onto the roster yesterday.

Added were Tom McCarthy, a 190-pound left wing from the Boston Bruins, and center Jack Martin, a 178-pound fron tlineman from the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Eagles Picked Over Bears In Pro Game Of The Week

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Sooner or later, Sonny Jurgensen and his fine pass-catchers are bound to run into a ganged-up aerial defense, so don't be surprised if the Philadelphia Eagles spring their latent running game against the Chicago Bears Sunday.

The Eagles are favored by 3 points in this national football league Game-of-the-Week at Philadelphia. This is the first clash between these two teams since 1955. Of the 15 games previously played between them, the Eagles have won only once.

Although the Eagles have three excellent running backs in Clarence Peaks, Billy Barnes and Ted Dean, they have preferred the aerial route of Jurgensen to Tommy McDonald, Bobby Walston and Pete Retzlaff for their touchdown drives.

Statistically, the Eagles have gone through the air for 68.7 per cent of their yardage. In edging the Washington Redskins last weekend, they gained 436 yards by passing and had a rushing deficit of 12 yards.

This, N.F.L. buffs agree, cannot go on forever. And coach Nick Skorich of Philadelphia is fully aware of the situation.

"Our running game was allowed to deteriorate for several seasons and it takes time to re-establish it," Skorich explains. "We have to reeducate the backs to throw those crashing blocks for one another. I will continue to stress running in practice and I'm sure it will be there when we need it.

And Sunday could be the day when they'll need it.

The Bears, according to coach George Halas, "are improving with every game." They have won their last four games after a discouraging season start and are only a game behind the first-place Green Bay Packers in the Western Division.

Here is the "line" on Sunday's other N.F.L. games:

San Francisco 49ers 4 points over Detroit Lions at San Francisco; Green Bay Packers 6 over Colts at Baltimode; Cleveland Browns 10 over Pittsburgh Steelers at Cleveland; New York Giants 14 at home over Washington Redskins; St. Louis Cardinals 1 at home over the Dallas Cowboys, and the Los Angeles Rams 9 over the Minnesota Vikings on the West Coast.

San Francisco and Detroit clash in a game both must win in order to stay in the Western Division title race. Each has a 4-3 record and it is unlikely that a club can win a division title this year with more than three defeats.

Green Bay, the Western Division leader with a 6-1 record, comes up for its tough game at Baltimore with offensive guard Jerry Kramer sidelined by an injury; linebacker Ray Nitschke in the Army, and halfback Paul Hornung slowed down by knee and shoulder injuries.

The Colts, thrashed by Green Bay, 45-7, earlier this season, are in good shape, but it may take all of coach Weeb Ewbank's psychology to get them "up" following last Sunday's 21-20 defeat by the Bears.

Redwood-Tam Battle Should Be Hot—Both Teams Are 'Up'

The result of tomorrow afternoon's game between Tamalpais and Redwood high schools will break the status ice of either club in either direction.

Both will face each other wearing 1-2 won-loss records. Both teams picked up their lone win last week, both teams are mentally and physically up, and both teams are Tamalpais School District rivals.

Tam coach James Hanretty would like nothing better than to have backfielder Warren Domino turn on like he did against Marin Catholic last week, and linebacker Paul Farrent stay free from injury for the contest. Another thing that would please Hanretty and his Polar Bears would be a cold day.

Redwood's coach, Bob Troppmann, has his fingers crossed for another defensive effort like last week against San Rafael, that backs Kip Solinsky and Steve Norton continue to be sparkling, that Jim Troppmann throws some more key blocks and completes passes, and that sophomore linebacker (offensive right half) Steve Minutoli continues to shine.

Troppmann's troops, as well as the coaching staff, are out to knock off two victories before the MCAL's final gun. But they also know that Tam feels about the same way.

"We're going for it, but we also know that Tam is really up for the game," said Giant Kip Solinsky.

Probable offensive starters for the 2 p.m. clash at Kentfield will be as follows:

For Tam: quarterback Jack Martin, halfbacks Rich Hamilton and Chuck Muizers, fullback Ron Foster, ends Brian Laurie and Art Foster, tackles Elmer Collett and Greg Taylor, guards Mickey Johnston and Paul Farren and center Pete Hindley.

For Redwood: quarterback Jim Troppmann, fullback Kip Solinsky, halfbacks Minutoli and Norton, ends Doug Houston and Tony Cusimano, tackles Jon Keppel and Larry Koontz, guards Mark Pearce and Buddy Weckel and center Yank Eppinger.

Undefeated Saints Play Kansas City Less Star Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's Saints, undefeated but a man short, take on the Kansas City Steers again tonight in an American Basketball League game.

The Saints, scoring spectacularly in the third period, overcame a halftime deficit and beat Kansas City 100-88 Wednesday night.

But the San Franciscans are down to nine men today. Big Dave Gunther, a 6-6 forward from Iowa, was scheduled to report at Ft. Lewis, Wash., today for Army duty.

Cal-UCLA Tilt May Decide Big 5 Title

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

UCLA hosts California while Southern California invades Washington in Saturday's chapter of the Big Five race while Oregon battles for added prestige in meeting the Stanford Indians.

The two Big Five contests go a long way toward clarifying the Rose Bowl chase as UCLA and USC both boast 1-0 conference records with California and Washington both 1-1.

Independent Oregon, having knocked off the Huskies of Washington 7-6 last week, seeks a second straight Big Five victim at Stanford with the Indians 0-2 in the conference.

Washington State, upset 21-19 by San Jose State a week ago, goes to Oregon State.

UCLA Coach Bill Barnes still seeks to put more passing into his single wing attack. Tailbacks Bob Smith and Mike Haffner have been effective as runners but have completed only one pass the past two games — that one in a 20-0 victory over Stanford a week ago. So Keith Jensen, a fourth stringer, is getting a chance to show how he can throw the ball.

California appears to have quarterback Randy Gold back on the passing beam as he completed 9 of 11 throws in a 33-16 loss to powerful Penn State a week ago.

Southern California could find its passing attack hampered by the weather at Seattle—rain was a good possibility. Fleet halfbacks Willie Brown of the visiting Trojans and Charlie Mitchell of Washington both are reported ready for action. USC, with a 3-3 record, has won its last two outings, over California and Illinois.

Oregon probably must operate against Stanford with the Ducks' No. 1 quarterback Doug Post out of action. He suffered a back bruise against Washington. Ron Veres, who threw the winning touchdown pass last Saturday, gets the starting call.

British Rout AAU Champ Boxers, 10-0

LONDON (AP)—"We used to lead the world in boxing," said Coach Bert Taylor today after his American amateur fighters suffered a humiliating 10-0 defeat to Britain in the opener of a European tour.

"Perhaps last night's result will make some people at home think a little more seriously about the sport."

The British rout of a U.S. team that included five reigning AAU champions left Taylor, as well as his unhappy fighters, more than a bit shaken.

Only four of the 10 matches went the scheduled three-round distance. When it was over, one U.S. fighter was in a hospital, two others had concussions and one of these also needed several stitches to close a bad cut inside his mouth.

"Our boys got together in New York only last weekend, and they have had no chance to do any serious training since arriving here," Taylor said.

The only American fighters who lasted the full three rounds—only to lose on points—were bantamweight Johnny Cesspooch of Fort Duchesne, Utah; light welterweight Jim Caldwell of Shawnee, Wis.; welterweight Phil Baldwin of Muskegon Heights, Mich., and lightweight Woodie Marcus of Pocatello, Idaho.

Light middleweight Roy McMillan of Toledo was taken to a hospital for X-rays of damaged ribs.

Cornelius Perry of Philadelphia, had a concussion and a bad mouth cut after he was knocked unconscious for four full minutes. Featherweight Ralph Ungricht of North Provo, Utah, had a slight concussion.

Now Raiders Owners Doing In-Fighting

OAKLAND (AP) — One of the three principal owners of the Oakland Raiders said last night he disagrees with the other two who have declared they will move the team out of Oakland unless they find a place here to play by next season.

City Councilman Robert L. Osborne, the third owner, accused the other two, Ed McGah and Wayne Valley, of violating a previous agreement against making "any statement which would embarrass or which would leave doubt in the minds of the public as to their intentions."

"I was flabbergasted to read statements made by my associates," said Osborne, who is in Providence Hospital undergoing tests after a recent heart attack.

Valley and McGah said they are unwilling to spend the estimated $250,000 needed to provide 20,000 seats in any of several possible fields. Mayor John C. Houlihan said he doubts the city can legally pay for bleachers, but ordered a survey of existing fields.

The Raiders, leaving town this weekend for a four-week road trip, have played their home games this season in San Francisco's Candlestick Park.

The Raiders say they expect to lose $450,000 this season. The loss last season, the first for the American Football League, was $327,000, the owners say.

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS,
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Salmon Season Ends In 12 Days
Here's Hoping For A Good Finish

STEVENS

With only 12 more days for salmon fishing in the ocean locally, a bunch of the boys are whooping it up and hoping for a grandstand finish.

Could happen, you know. On Tuesday the boats Marion and Maybe, out of Caruso's at Sausalito averaged a fish per rod. But on Wednesday, at 11 a.m. Sid McMullin reported one boat already had 11 salmon in the box. May presage that said grandstand finish. Best locale seems to be southeast of the Lightship. Fish are averaging around 14 pounds each.

McMulling told me of an early riser who has been haunting the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge at dawn the past few days. He spincasts for stripers as the sun pops over the horizon, and shifts to bait when the sun is starting to work. This early bird has been taking limits regularly, and reported seeing huge schools of bass breaking water each dawn.

APPARENTLY the bass fishing on the Marin side of the San Pablo Bay is improving. Alice Quan reported limits or near limits on Tuesday with Ben Hartley of Santa Venetia taking his legal limit from five to 11 points. Best bets, Alice said, have been the Island to the Shell Banks, close in to the boat harbor.

Joe Nerviani of Joe's Launching also believes the fish are coming in. Not many boats out of Joe's place since the storm, but Henry Wallman took a couple of fair-sized bass on Tuesday and in a very short trip on Wednesday landed a nice fish.

STRIPER STRIVING on the east side of San Pablo Bay continues to be productive. Nadine Lessley of Dowrelio's Harbor at Crockett reported really excellent fishing on Monday and Tuesday, and to prove it she mentioned the following: Monday—Little Caesar, 10 bass to 6 pounds; Zatta, 14 bass to 14½ pounds; Millie Linn, 20 to 12 pounds, and the Dowrelio No. 5, 15 to 7 pounds. On Tuesday, not so many fishermen but as good or better than Monday. The Little Caesar had only two passengers but netted limits for each. The Jackpot landed 7 to 7 pounds. The Millie Linn had 19 bass to 8 pounds and the only boat that made two trips, the Happy Days No. 3, had 18 fish on the a.m. trip and 23 to 11½ pounds in the afternoon.

HERE ARE congratulations to Harry Wong and his two buddies, who fished the Suisun Bay Tuesday and Wednesday and took limits of beautiful bass. Wong and his pals used bullheads.

NOT MUCH good news anent the duck kills. Roy Erwin, of The Western Sports Shop in San Rafael admitted he spent two fruitless days back Dixon way. Told me very few birds in that area. It is common knowledge, however, that a great many ducks—lots of cans among them—are rafted in the upper San Pablo areas. Must be lazy birds, eh?

TROLLING IN the Racoon Strait-Alcatraz sector has slowed down, perhaps account of the short tides. Should pick up soon. Goodbye and good luck!

AFL Attendance Is Up Over 1960, But No Profit Yet

DALLAS (AP)—It still isn't paying a profit but attendance in the American Football League is up 7.4 per cent over last year, the league's maiden season.

With 30 games played, the average attendance has been 17,801. The average is 1,243 more than 1960 when 16,558 paid to see a game.

San Diego, the league's unbeaten leader, also tops the circuit in attendance. In three home games the San Diego average has been 27,352 and the Chargers expect to go over the 30,000 mark for the remaining four.

An average of about 25,000 is required to start making a profit although some of the clubs can do so with less.

TV Announcer Bob Kelly Quits Club

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Kelley has quit as one of the radio and TV announcers of Angel baseball games.

Station KMPC announced that Kelley, who broadcasts the games of the Los Angeles Rams, quit the Angel job because his schedule is too heavy.

Don Wells will continue as one of the announcers and the Angels are rumored to be dickering for Buddy Blattner, who formerly aided Dizzy Dean in broadcasting the game of the week for CBS.

OLE! OLE! — It was Mexican Halloween at Bel Aire School yesterday as sixth graders served a Mexican lunch, then staged a "bull fight." The intrepid matador is Dick Mithan; the bull, Randy Stark. Classmates cheered bull and matador indiscriminately. (Independent-Journal photo)

Novatan Indicted In Real Estate 'Swindle'

Sergie Gregoriev of Novato was indicted yesterday, along with a wealthy San Mateo County real estate operator, in what the San Mateo County district attorney described as a swindle involving tax sale property.

Gregoriev moved to 2136 Vineyard Road, Novato, a few months ago from San Mateo County, where he had been a mathematics teacher at Carlmont High School in Belmont. He reportedly also has been a teacher of Russian and Speedwriting (a form of shorthand) at an International Business Machines school.

He was indicted along with Thomas J. Callan Jr. of Hillsborough in a San Mateo County Grand Jury session that lasted from 7 p.m. Wednesday to 3:30 a.m. yesterday. Judge Frank W. Rose of San Mateo County Superior Court set bail at $2,500 cash or $5,000 bond for each.

Callan and his brother, Michael, operate the U.S. Mortgage Corp. in Daly City. Their father, Thomas J. Callan Sr., is a former San Mateo County supervisor. The Callan family reportedly is the largest landowner in San Mateo County.

Gregoriev and Michael Callan Jr. were both named in five counts charging conspiracy to commit grand theft and forgery and conspiracy to make fraudulent transfers of real estate, to record false documents, and to make false notarized certificates. Ghegoriev also was indicted on counts of forgery and filing false records.

Dist. Atty. Keith Sorenson said the arrests resulted from investigation begun last summer when several persons complained that properties they had planned to buy at tax sale had suddenly been redeemed, although in some cases they were properties in the estates of persons who died without heirs.

Investigation by Deputy Dist. Atty. Bryan Rowson, said Sorenson, disclosed that in 20 such cases, fictitious names had been signed to quit-claim deeds conveying the property to Gregoriev, and it had then been deeded by him to U.S. Mortgage Corp. The corporation then filed court actions to quiet title.

Sorenson said Gregoriev had paid $820 in delinquent taxes on 20 lots with a total value of about $20,000.

Gregoriev reportedly refused to testify before the grand jury. Callan testified freely, according to his attorney, Melvin Cohn. The attorney claimed Callan was an innocent bystander, and that Gregoriev was Callan's friend and had at one time worked as a salesman for Callan's real estate firm.

When the district attorney's investigation began, the 20 properties were suddenly deeded back to their former owners, Sorenson related. About the same time, Gregoriev resigned his teaching job and moved to Novato.

HAPPY NOT SPOOKY

School Celebrates Mexican Halloween

By CORENA GREEN

If principal John C. Fitch of Tiburon's Bel Aire School hadn't done his homework yesterday he never would have been served his lunch.

As part of their celebration of the Day of the Dead, Mexican Halloween, the sixth grades cooked and served a Mexican lunch with Fitch and the faculty as guests. However, no one received food who could not ask for it in Spanish and with the invitations went suggested phrases suitable for the occasion. These included such necessary ones as "Thank you, I do not want sauce" or "Please, may I have another skull cookie."

According to sixth grade teacher Miss Helen Kluchnik the children were celebrating a two-day traditional Mexican holiday. On All Saints Day (Nov. 1) dead children are honored; on All Souls Day (Nov. 2) dead adults. To show the dead how happy the living are, special festivities are planned. Part of the celebration takes place in a cemetery.

Two of the sixth grades joined in the celebration. Both Miss Kluchnik's and Pat Pierovich's class learned special songs and dances and during the luncheon wandering marachis (troubadors) serenaded the guests. Special art work decorated the rooms including a simulated cemetery and a floor to ceiling cathedral.

Following lunch the class sang and danced and even participated in a bull fight.

According to Miss Kluchnik the Day of the Dead is a happy celebration in contrast to our spooky celebration of Halloween.

No one in the sixth grade could argue this point. A fine time was had by all.

Service For Parents

Dial-A-Review Available For Ratings On The Films

By BARBARA HOSMER

If Saturday should dawn dull and gray the chances are good that the youngsters will be hankering to go to the movies, and how can the parent resist the pleading "Can we go to the show, huh, can we, aw Dad, please, it's gonna be a real good one?"

And every parent can recall the hours he spent as a child wholly absorbed in the wondrous tales and magical beings of Oz, in crossing the plains in a covered wagon, in Bambi's forest, going on the "Road" with Bing and Bob, a night at the opera with the Marx zanies or Lou Costello being "devoured" by a giant man-eating plant to the tune of child giggles and adult chortles. So, maybe it will be a "real good one" as Johnny says.

But maybe it's a more lurid, "adult" tale. The wise parent checks first to make sure it's something he wants his children to see.

To help the parents check instantly, a new service began Wednesday enabling them to obtain opinions of competent reviewers on all current films and those released within the past two years, rating suitability for children, for teen-agers or adults and telling why.

All a parent or anyone need do is telephone the San Rafael Public Library and ask to hear what the reviewers have said about a certain film. The service is free and fast. The reviews give a synopsis of the plot, the artistic merit and a rating as to suitability for certain age groups, without destroying a film's suspense.

The file has been compiled and placed in the library by the 14th District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, a committee of Marin women having done the work.

The reviews are from three sources: The California Parent-Teacher Magazine, which has a regular staff of trained reviewers who attend the Hollywood previews alongside the national magazine and newspaper reviewers; the National P-TA Magazine and The Green Sheet, which is published by the Film Estimate Board of National Organizations (which is made up of the American Assn. of University Women, the American Jewish Committee, American Library Assn., Federation of Motion Picture Councils, Federation of Women's Clubs, national P-TA, National Council of Women of the USA, Federation of Music Clubs, Daughters of the American Revolution, Protestant Motion Picture Council and Schools Motion Picture Committee.)

These reviews are not the strictest available, in fact they are quite liberal, the local committee states. In the movie guide file a film is not placed in the "adults only" category unless all three review sources agree on it. If just one reviewer feels that a film may be all right for teen-agers it is put into the "Teens and Adults" category.

The idea, the committee stresses, is to provide parents with information about each film to help them make their own judgments.

If a film is considered suitable and worthy of family attendance, the committee urges you to see it, for the P-TA feels that a ticket to any film registers your vote of approval by the Hollywood yardstick. However, if a film is considered suitable for children, but is poorly made and a crashing bore, the reviewers tell you so.

Exceptionally good films in all age categories are lauded in the reviews. One of these is "Fanny"—in the adults teen-agers over 15 category—says the review, "This film is a real treat and proof that unethical situations can be presented on the screen in a manner that does not stress the offensive . . . thought provoking," for example.

Prime workers who have set up the file for public use are Mrs. Douglas Godfrey, San Rafael Council of P-TA motion picture chairman and motion picture chairman of Marin Motion Picture Council; Mrs. George Benoit Jr., Drake High School motion picture chairman and Motion Picture Council secretary; Mrs. Dennis Truelove, Mill Valley Council P-TA motion picture chairman and Marin Motion Picture Council historian; and Mrs. Willard E. Vernon, motion picture chairman of 14th District, CCPT, and vice president of Marin Motion Picture Council. They will keep the reviews current.

Readers Advise Housewife Not To Confess Past To Husband

A woman should not confess her past sins to her husband. She should try to keep him in the dark. That's the gist of letters readers have sent. Do you agree?

Some weeks ago I printed an anguished mother's question. Her daughter had a baby out of wedlock several years ago. The baby had been adopted. The girl had returned home. She had reformed, and lived a moral life since then. Now she was engaged to a straight-laced young man. The question was, should she tell? Nearly all who wrote said no. She shouldn't tell. She should try to keep the truth from him.

One woman said, "I had the same experience, but I confessed to my husband. He said he forgave me, but he didn't. Now we have a family, and should be happy. But he keeps reminding me of my unknown daughter. He even told our children about her. What a man doesn't know doesn't hurt him. No woman should confess her sins to her husband."

A man wrote that his wife had insisted on telling him of her mistakes. "I forgave her," he said "but I can't forget. Perhaps I'm too jealous. But I keep remembering what she used to be, and it sickens me. I wish she had kept her past a secret."

Only a handful of folks insisted on complete honesty. They said solid marriages aren't built on deceit. They insisted that intelligent people can forgive and forget. I side with them. But we're in the minority.

So? So I told the worried mother what the letters had said. Your advice is that the girl should not confess. Thanks friends for writing.

READERS' FORUM

(Q) "Is the birth rate for illegitimate babies higher among Caucasians or other groups?"
J. E.

(A) It is higher among other groups. Probably there are many reasons. Poverty is one, poor housing another, lack of education a third. Religious factors seem to me to be extremely important. Church-going people tend to live up to our traditional moral standards, regardless of race. They're almost the only ones who do.

Attention To What's Cooking In Lab Today

Third of five articles on the foods of the future, from the research laboratory to the dinner table.

By BARBARA HOSMER

The areas now under study by research scientists naturally will have much to do with the success of the meals we'll be eating in years to come. A little attention to what's cooking in the lab today may give us clues to what will be done to foods of the future.

As Dr. Schweigert (Dr. B. S. Schweigert, head of Michigan State University Dept. of Food Science) says, "The pot and pan research in food science is an era of the past. As valuable as it is for providing the art . . . I believe the ultimate success of new food quality control and new research will be through the scientific research route."

His prognosis includes further successes in increasing the keeping qualities of food, the preventing of harmful bacteriological growths and loss of nutrition. "Great strides have been made here," he said.

LEAVE FAT, BONE

"We have preservation methods on the horizon which may supplement some of the existing methods. . . . I believe that all the convenience items will be moving more and more toward less water, or perhaps no water, and leaving the fat and the bone back at the processing level and not in the convenience package."

"I believe the greatest scientific progress is being made now in the exciting field of food flavor research, for it has taken new scientific tools and new trained scientists to begin to grapple with the multitude of chemicals found to have something to do with food flavors. We don't know what they all are yet and we may never really be able to duplicate completely very many of these food flavors, but we will be able to control several key components so that there will be much greater uniformity and uniqueness of flavor possible than we have now."

Dr. Schweigert points out that with the variation of tastes and cultures in the United States a food may be marketed nationally but with flavor variations to suit regional preferences; so he says to look for greater opportunity for local specialty companies marketing the food products they are very good at making to suit local tastes, aided by new ability to control quality uniformly.

VARIATIONS

Obviously this is his answer to persons who raise the cry of "standardization" at the thought of food flavor and quality control — many variations are possible.

The doctor goes on to state, "We will pay less and less attention to the biological origin of food because the proteins, fats and carbohydrates will be used even more inter-changeably in the development of new food items and there will be less emphasis on whether it's a meat product, or a cereal product, or a dairy product, but all of these will be brought into new focus with entirely new products, a number of which I have seen in research laboratories and which you may see some years from now."

San Pedro P-TA To Hear Pemberton

Members of San Pedro School P-TA will welcome Dr. William Pemberton to their meeting on Nov. 8 at 8 p.m.

This first meeting of the fall semester will be interesting for all participants as Dr. Pemberton's semantics course at the College of Marin has gained county-wide acclaim and popularity.

Special emphasis will be put on communication between teacher and parent, diagnosing the failures therein and how to improve techniques in this important relationship.

How To Revive Christmas Posies

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) —Here's how to revive poinsettias you've saved from last year's holiday season.

Clifford W. Collier Jr., landscape architect with the Cooperative Extension Service of West Virginia University, said that the poinsettia develops its blooms when the days are short and the nights are long. To make it bloom again in time for Christmas, start it immediately on the short day-long night regime. Put the plant in the dark at 5 p.m., and remove it at 8 a.m. each day. Even short periods of exposure to night light will interfere with bloom.

It is safe to bring the plant into a well-lighted room once its leaves are out.

St. Anselm's YLI Dance Tomorrow

St. Anselm's Institute YLI will sponsor a dinner dance at the Cabana Club at Hamilton Air Force Base tomorrow at 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Richard Bettencourt is chairman, assisted by Mesdames Jack Benz, Chester Smith, James Turrini, Kenneth Wilson, James Kealey and Louis Lenzi. Proceeds from the dinner will be used for charity.

Square Toe Look

The needle-point is on the way out afoot. The excessive elongation no longer is seen even in the tapered toe for evening. What's in: the square toe. The width of the square determines the heel height. It is wider as the heel lowers, narrower as the heel gets higher.

American Field Service Plans 'Operation Shape'

The San Rafael Chapter of the American Field Service will sponsor a "slim-trim" class in exercise to raise money for its International Scholarships.

The class will begin on Nov-10 and continue through Dec. 15, meeting every Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Mrs. Leland Dellwig will demonstrate exercises designed for all parts of the body. Mrs. Walter Tait will also give instruction in the basic Hawaiian dances. Both Mrs. Dellwig and Mrs. Tait have had wide experience in teaching in these fields. The program is to be known as "Operation Shape."

Information may be obtained through Mrs. Tait, Mrs. Dellwig or Mrs. Robert Walker.

Turkey Whist

A turkey whist will be given Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in Portuguese and American Hall, San Rafael, sponsored by Club No. 1 of San Rafael. Ron Gonsalves is chairman.

Kenneth Loskot Claims Bride

Juliana Montgomery of San Diego became the bride of Kenneth W. Loskot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loskot of San Anselmo, at the Chapel on the Island of Coronado Oct. 15.

The bride donned a two-piece beige satin dress with matching accessories for the ceremony.

After the ceremony the couple left on a wedding trip to Carmel and Marin County to visit family and friends.

The bride attended schools in Trieste and Arizona State University. Her husband is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and Stanford University where he was affiliated with Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Rabbi Praises Authenticity Of Decor At Triple C Lunch

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

A rare occasion on which luncheon decor is news was the Mill Valley Commuinity Church Club's luncheon meeting Wednesday when the speaker, Dr. Morris Goldstein, rabbi of Congregation Sherrith Israel in San Francisco, spent five minutes praising the authenticity of the decorations done by Mrs. John Burnham.

Before he talked on "Jewish Holidays in the Time of Jesus" Dr. Goldstein said that he had never seen anything to compare with them at any of his other speaking engagements.

On the speaker's table were real ram's horns which Mrs. Burnham mounted on driftwood after receiving them in response to a request she made of a friend who owns a sheep ranch in Colorado. Dr. Goldstein said the shofar, or ram's trumpet, is still used in synagogues to usher in the Jewish new year and is symbolical of the voice of conscience.

Also on the speaker's table were a scroll inscribed "Welcome Rabbi Goldstein" in Hebrew as well as arrangements of things significant in the Holy Land, such as bulrushes, pomgranates, dates, figs and figleaves, grapes and sheaves of wheat.

On other tables, together with the bulrushes and wheat, were miniature replicas of a psaltery, the ancient harp David used when he sang his "Psalms of David," as well as a scroll inscribed with the word in Hebrew, followed by an explanation in English of the instrument.

The Jewish holidays with their related Christian counterparts explained by the rabbi were the sabbath, with the same word used in both religions; Succoth — Thanksgiving; Hanukah (feast of lights for children) — Christmas; Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur—new year; and Pesach or passover—Easter.

The couple plans to wed Dec. 16 at St. Monica's Church in Santa Monica.

OWC PLANS HOLIDAY PROGRAM

A program of holiday ideas will be presented Nov. 9 at the Officers' Wives Club luncheon at the club, Hamilton Air Force Base. Miss Virginia Shattuck, home economist for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., will present the demonstration of party dishes and turkey preparation.

Auxiliary Party To Honor Founder, First President

After 20 years of year-round service projects and fund-raising events, the Social Service Auxiliary of Marin has decided to have a no-work-no-profit party "for members and their men" just for friendship's sake. Thus was born the "All in Fun" cocktail party to be at the Meadow Club Nov. 11 from 6 to 8 p.m. Many groups are planning dinner parties afterward.

Calling together "friends of all our happy years," Mrs. Gus Niederholzer, president, and Mrs. Mel J. London, chairman, hope to renew friendships with some who may have been inactive in Auxiliary events in recent years, as well as see the new faces, too. Art work on the gay pink invitation was done by Mrs. Robert Rich.

Reservation chairman is Mrs. Grant Halsing of San Anselmo.

"All in Fun" will honor the Auxiliary founder, Mrs. Powers Symington of San Francisco who was its first president. The other past presidents to be honored include Mesdames Matt Carroll, William Nock, Cletus Fitzharris, E. H. Grimm, Francis McGrath, Robert Grady, Hazel Keller, John Campion, Thomas Mellon, A. Barlow Ferguson, Lois Pometta, Frank Duhme Jr., Arthur Fay, George Geramoni and Roger Yore.

The Auxiliary was originated in 1941 by Mrs. Powers Symington at a garden party on the grounds at Dominican. Her plan was to have 500 women each make a small contribution as a painless way of raising a fund to help the Sisters of Social Service.

In 1946 the Auxiliary took a new slant, initiating its program of services, including the motor corps, the Christmas activities, the welfare committee, clerical help for Catholic Social Service. It was this year, too, that the Juniar Auxiliary was formed, its first invitees serving at the garden installation of new Auxiliary officers in 1947.

The following years enlarged horizons and brought new depth to the services, adding Lucas Valley aid, the toy committee, the doll committee which provides and dresses dolls, the sewing committee, and the salvage committee.

Fund-raising became vital, and the Candlelight Ball came into being, supplemented by the Christmas program, the "Cinema-Antics" variety shows, the rummage sale, "Riches, Not Rags" and other events designed to collect dollars to assist Catholic Social Service in its many needs not covered by United Crusade funds.

But "All in Fun" will be just that, a holiday and a new toast to friendship.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Quick Test On Knowledge Of Entertaining Etiquette

How's your knowledge of entertaining etiquette?

Here is a quick test. You can measure your own knowledge of entertaining etiquette by answering "yes" or "no" to these questions.

Place cards are necessary as a matter of custom on all formal dinner tables and as a matter of convenience when there are more than eight guests.

Children should be excluded from the dinner table whenever you are entertaining more than three or four grown-up guests who are not relatives or intimate friends.

At dinner, the hostess starts the conversation first with the man at her left; the host with the woman at his right.

When the service of dinner is over, and everyone has finished eating, the hostess signals her guests to leave the table by pushing back her chair, standing up, and slowly moving away from the table.

Afternoon tea (or coffee) can be served in the living room from a table covered with a cloth or an uncovered tray.

Food which will be taken and eaten in the fingers should always be served on a doily-covered plate or platter.

In introducing oneself, whether face-to-face or on the telephone, one should be extremely careful to avoid using "Mr.," or "Mrs.," or any other title.

Entertaining one's "boss" is an obligation only after entertainment on his part.

"Cutting in" at a dance is accepted etiquette.

View Show To Mark Anniversary

"The early bird gets the worm" paraphrased to "The Early Christmas Shopper Gives The Best Christmas Present" puts Fashions With a View in a holiday mood on Thursday at the Ondine in Sausalito with a promenade of all things bright and beautiful for holiday giving and wearing.

Thursday's fashionable promenade inspired by the forthcoming Musee de Noel in San Francisco to benefit St. Lukes Hospital Auxiliary marks the first anniversary of the popular Fashions With a View series, every Thursday at 12:30 p.m.

It has been just a year since the familiar white door of Ondine opened for Thursday luncheon and Marion Bellamy began the series of Fashions With a View sparked each week by a special "guest with a viewpoint" to point up the importance of a civic, charitable, cultural event important to the Bay Area.

Welcomed on Thursday as the special guest will be Mrs. John D. Rogers of San Francisco who had the idea for the first Musee de Noel Joining Mrs. Rogers at the gust table will be Mrs. William Pomeroy of Sausalito, president of St. Luke's Auxiliary, returning from a European trip just in time for Fashions With a View, and Mrs. Shirley Zumwalt, chairman of the 1961 Musee de Noel.

Invited to promenade at the anniversary luncheon are Mesdames Clarence Amonette Jr., John Jansheski, Edwin Callan, Robert L. Wood Jr. and Frank Chambers.

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, Nov. 3, the 307th day of the year with 58 to follow in 1961. This is World Community Day.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1783, Congress ordered the Continental Army to demobilize.

In 1917, Americans back home learned of the first deaths of U.S. soldiers in combat at Nancy, France.

In 1936, President Franklin D. Roosevelt was re-elected.

In 1960, President Dwight D. Eisenhower gave Vice President Richard M. Nixon an all out endorsement for the presidency.

A thought for today: Dwight D. Eisenhower said: "In the final choice, a soldiers' pack is not so heavy a burden as a prisoner's chains."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Try To Keep Dangerous Opponent Out Of Lead

Sometimes the outcome of a hand depends on keeping a dangerous opponent out of the lead. The most common reason is to prevent a lead through your king.

Opening lead — ♡ 10

The bidding warns you not to let East gain the lead. He will return a club through your king, and you will lose two clubs, a trump and whatever trick you have given to East.

If you can manage to shut East out, you hope to develop dummy's diamonds and discard your clubs. The trouble is that East may gain the lead with the queen of diamonds.

Now we can see the point of a hand like this. The problem is to develop the diamonds without letting East win a trick.

ANOTHER SUIT: You need another suit to help you. If you tackle the diamonds all by themselves you cannot prevent East from winning a trick with the queen. Fortunately, dummy's hearts are strong enough to help.

Win the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts and return the queen of hearts. When East plays the king, ruff and lead a low trump to dummy's eight. Then cash the jack of hearts to discard a diamond.

This is the most important step. Cash the top diamonds and ruff a diamond with a high trump. You can surely get back to dummy with a trump in time to discard clubs on dummy's good diamonds. West can get his ace of trumps and his ace of clubs, but nothing else.

DAILY QUESTION: Partner opens with one club, the next player bids one diamond, and you hold:

♥ K 7 4 3 2
♦ Q 9 4
♣ 9 8 3

What do you say?

Answer: Pass. You would have bid one heart if the opponent had passed, but the bid relieves you of responsibility. The best way to show your weakness is to pass.

Permit Requested For Boat Landing

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Carstarphen of Menlo Park have applied for a Department of the Army permit to build a boat landing next to a privately dredged channel extending along the east side of Strawberry Peninsula in Richardson Bay.

Announcing this, the Army Engineer District in San Francisco said the boat landing would consist of a platform, gangway and float. The float would be 30 feet wide and would extend about 30 feet into the channel from the mean higher high water line.

Objections based on interference with navigation may be forwarded to the Army Engineer District office at 180 New Montgomery Street, San Francisco, by Dec. 1, said Lt. Col. V. K. Sanders, acting district engineer.

The course will feature the latest information from the Department of Defense on fallout, bomb shelters and defensive planning, he said. Speakers from Hamilton Air Force Base and others from specialized agencies will be heard at the meetings, he said.

FEMININE LOOK

Dinah Reports Girls Are Back In Style

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dinah Shore has returned from the Paris fashion salons with good news: Girls are back in style.

No gal in television dresses finah than Miss Shore, and she works at it. She returned from Paris last week after a frantic 10 days of reviewing all the new styles. Her haul: A dozen stunners from the needles of Balmain and Nina Ricci.

"The trend in Paris?" she said. "It seems to be toward a more feminine look, thank heaven. I mean now girls look like girls. There seems to less designing for the tall, emaciated fashion-model type and more for the rest of us, the ones who are all girl.

"The look is softer, rounder. The clothes show a waist, which most women have. There is no attempt to hide the bust line, which most women have. And the dresses show hips, which—sigh—most women have.

"Hair styles are softer and lower, necklines are more feminine, and heels are coming down. Good thing: those extra-high heels looked ridiculous and uncomfortable. Oh, yes—skirts are higher."

Dinah will be wearing six of her Balmain finds on her TV show tonight.

"I never really cared much about clothes until I started the TV show," Dinah said. "Even now I'm not wild about clothes. I'm nutty about slacks and sweaters, and that's what I wear most. People seldom go out any more in Hollywood. We eat at home most of the time. If we go to friends' houses, I usually wear slacks and sweaters."

But her TV life—that's another matter. "I think I get more fan mail about the clothes than about any other matter," she said. "I realized that when I wore a ball gown on the old 15-minute show. I got 10,000 letters about that one."

Now the gowns get top consideration in her program planning.

"And if they don't like the dress watch out! Once I wore a red leotard—pants, actually—that somehow photographed flesh color. Boy, did I hear from that one!"

Lest you worry about Dinah's closets bulging with costly gowns, I might explain that the designers lend their original models for her to use on the show. They go back to the shops afterward.

TV Roundup Of Week's Coming Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—Danny Kaye will make one of his occasional television appearances within the next few days, but generally network viewing will consist of regularly scheduled programs.

Tonight, however, the sponsor of CBS' "Route 66" will substitute a variety show, hosted by James (Gunsmoke) Arness, for the usual adventure story, in order to celebrate an anniversary. Featured are Art Carney, Nanette Fabray and Tony Randall (8:30-9:30).

Saturday night's NBC movie (9-11) will star Clark Gable and Susan Hayward in "Soldier of Fortune." CBS' "Have Gun, Will Travel" features Odetta, the folk singer, in her first dramatic role (9:30-10).

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India will be the guest on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday (6-6:30), in conflict with "Twentieth Century" documentary on CBS about the career of Al Smith. Jack Benny's guest will be Raymond Burr in his "Perry Mason" character (9:30-10), and NBC's "Show of the Week" will be "Music of the 1930s," a Project 20 documentary.

Danny Kaye will give virtually a one-man show Monday night (9-10, CBS). Mickey Rooney will star in a serious drama, "Somebody's Waiting," on the Dick Powell Show Tuesday evening (9-10, NBC). Fred Astaire will play an escape artist in "Moment of Decision," an hour-long drama (10-11, ABC).

CBS' "Circle Theater" will take a look at charity gyps on Wednesday night (10-11) while NBC's David Brinkley will interview a former Soviet spy on his "Journal" (10:30-11).

Survival in modern war will be the grim theme of Thursday night's "CBS Reports" (10-11), first of two parts in a series called "The Battle of Terror."

Pre-Yule Open House Planned

Many Larkspur merchants will hold a pre-Christmas open house Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Refreshments and gifts will be presented to visitors at the participating shops, which include Gilardi's Gift Shop, Eubanks Florist, Larkspur Pharmacy, All-Channel TV, Antique Shop, Dexter's Television and Radio, and Pete's Clothes Horse.

Gilardi's will feature a "Palace in Wonderland" theme with gift-wrapping demonstrations by Toby Manuel. Eubanks Florist will display a "buttons and beads" Christmas tree.

Prizes will be given at the Larkspur Pharmacy at 5:30 p.m.

Students Learning French Via Video

Fifth and sixth grade pupils of the Dixie School District are studying French with the aid of the first in-school television course of instruction offered on a national basis.

"Parlons Francais," conducted by Mme. Anne Slack using the audio-lingual method of teaching, is presented in this area by KQED from 2:45 p.m. to 3 p.m. twice weekly during the school year.

The video course, primarily geared for the fifth and sixth grade levels, is being utilized at the Bernard Hoffman, Lucas Valley, Santa Margarita and Mary E. Silveira schools, according to Joseph B. Goff, assistant superintendent of the Dixie School District.

The program's representative for the western area is Edward Hornby, former French teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School.

Painting Wins Prize

Dorothy Sayer of 107 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, won a $50 prize from Tia's Coffee Shop and Gallery in Corte Madera for a painting judged the most popular of 12 exhibited in a month-long showing at the shop.

CLUES TO BIRTH OF EARTH

Two Scientists Believe Atlantic Ocean's Bottom Is Made Of Glass

NEW YORK (UPI) — Does the Atlantic Ocean have a glass bottom? Two scientists believe it may well have, and they're eager for other oceanographers to look into the question. The promise is of fresh and important news concerning the birth of the earth.

G. D. Nicholls and V. T. Bowen were believed to be the first scientists to get a sample of the actual ocean bottom with which to make something of. What they made of their sample was that the earth may have been still in a molten state when the hollows began filling with water to form oceans.

They were not dealing with accumulated layers of sediments on the ocean bottom, mind; but with the under-pinning of those sediments which is much closer to the earth's core than anything even remotely accessible to hole-diggers on the continents.

What they had was a small chunk of natural glass, very dark brown, almost black in color, which was so brittle it broke almost from being touched. It resembled natural glass formed by intense heat in the rocky layers of the continents, but chemically it was entirely different.

Its water content was extremely high. This together with other peculiarities of composition suggested the heat which formed it was under water — that the earth was a simmering lump of molten metals at the time it came into existence.

Nicholls and Bowen were part of the scientific staff aboard the research vessel of the Woods Hole (Mass.) Oceanographic Institution last April and May when it was taking samples of deep Atlantic sediments. This is done with a long, heavy cylinder which cuts cores out of the sediments.

At a depth of 14,530 feet, which is almost three miles, the cylinder had barely penetrated a red clay sediment when it struck the hard ocean bottom. Since the bottom was glass, the impact cracked it and a fragment caught in the corner and was hauled to the surface.

By this accident, science obtained what the institution believes is the first sample of the actual bottom of the Atlantic. It came from a section of great depth—from a kind of hillock in a region of hills and valleys where the average depth is 16,072 feet or over three miles.

You could suspect that the corner could have hit a glass boulder in an ocean bottom made of some other rocky substance but Nicholls and Bowen in their analysis produced cogent reasons for believing it was a fair sample of much the Atlantic's bottom if not every bit of it.

There was a high salt content and this could be taken to suggest the oceans were well formed when this glass came into being and the salt got into from the water. But the analysis indicated this was not the case.

Nicholls and Bowen were eager for ocean scientists to concentrate on getting samples of the actual bottom. They're needed to show if this first sample is truly representative or if it is only an unussual type of bottom material which does not form the whole section.

Baseball Should Keep Clear Of Gambling Connections

George Washington said, "Gambling is the child of avarice, the brother of iniquity, and the father of mischief."

Should the faintest taint of suspicion be levelled at the feet of organized baseball next year, the lost weekend at Harrah's Lake Tahoe gambling headquarters could be a damning factor in the public eye.

For the high commissioner of baseball to allow this gathering is about as wise as it would be for Horace Stoneham to openly entertain three or four of the nation's top gambling czars in his own private box at Candlestick Park.

The South Lake Tahoe Youth Development Fund undoubtedly is a worthy and deserving group. But Harrah's Club is no place for over 100 major league baseball stars (including 13 S.F. Giants) to gather together.

And that is what happened a week ago at the stateline.

In his I-J sports column, The Bullpen, John J. Connolly chided organized baseball and particularly Ford Frick, high commissioner, for permitting such off-season activity.

"When you are out on the town," wrote Connolly, "simple laws of etiquette require you to buy a round of drinks in return for the one that was set up for you.

"If Harrah's picked up the tab for this whing-ding, guess who is obligated to the gambling element next year?"

The case of the mountain coming to Mohammed was never better illustrated than when Carl Hubbel, Warren Spahn and Lefty Grove, the three winningest southpaw pitchers of all time, were given plaques by the gambling czars.

And Del Webb, part owner of the New York Yankees, has announced he has purchased a gambling hall in Nevada.

If baseball is to become so chummy with big time gambling, and so utterly unconscious of what happened in 1919 when organized gambling threatened the foundations of our national pastime, then it would seem in order to establish parimutuel machines under the grandstand at Candlestick Park and encourage gambling in the wide open spaces.

But don't say we're proposing it!

It's Chrysanthemum Time

Chrysanthemums must be considered the crowning achievement of Marin's summer and fall growing season.

In Japan, where chrysanthemums are cultivated more extensively than any other flower, the 16 petaled chrysanthemum is the emblem of the Imperial Family. These lovely flowers have been grown in Japan for more than a thousand years.

The first chrysanthemums were grown in China, but were taken to Japan many centuries ago. The flowers first gained public attention in Europe in the 17th Century.

The Japanese like to think the good qualities of their people are reflected in "chrysanthemum culture" — for it requires a great degree of care and patience and, above everything else, thoroughness.

Marinites who grow their own "mums" understand what the Japanese mean.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to all Marin cities, except Novato, for failing to protect their citizens and visitors with proper health inspections for persons handling food in their city limits.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. William B. Newman of Tiburon for winning an honor award of the California Conservation Council. And BOUQUETS too to Dr. Joel W. Hedgpeth, director of the Pacific Marine Station at Dillon's Beach, and William A. Evans of San Anselmo, biologist with the State Division of Fish and Game and a trustee of the Junior Museum, both of whom won merit awards.

A BRICKBAT to the public official who passed the word around that a man had been arrested for selling books about cancer. Turned out to be Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer," hardly a medical volume.

BOUQUETS to four Mill Valley men who will take their vacations next January and go as a public health team to Costa Rica.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

DOCTOR CURES SAILORS' ILLNESS

Do you know why British sailors have traditionally been referred to as "Limeys"?

It all goes back to 1747 when a surgeon in the English navy, Doctor James Lind, proved experimentally that he could cure the dread disease of scurvy.

At that time, scurvy was incapacitating more seamen than all other diseases, naval engagements, marine mishaps, shipwrecks and accidents combined.

Dr. Lind's simple recommendation was the adding of fresh limes, other citrus fruits and fruit juices to the diets of the sailors. Hence the name "Limeys."

The simple measure he suggested eventually saved lives of countless seafaring men.

Other maladies, physical and spiritual may not respond to treatment quite so easily. But God has provided in this world basic remedies for the host of problems that beset us.

What a privilege to play any part in discovering the divine cure for human ills.

"Bear one another's burdens, and so you shall fulfill the law of Christ."

NEEDED COUNSEL FROM ON HIGH

5 YEARS IN LEGATION

Cardinal Mindszenty Still Seeks Asylum

By FRANZ CYRUS

VIENNA (UPI)—Outside the U. S. Legation in Budapest waits an eight man squad of Hungarian secret police. They watch the building day and night.

Two more agents wait in separate patrol cars. When someone leaves the legation, or civilians approach it, they warm up the engines.

They are gunmen waiting for their quarry. Their target —a man who entered the legation five years ago today.

Inside the building, an American diplomatic officer locks himself up every night to watch the man—Josef Cardinal Mindszenty.

ON NOV. 4, 1956, as Russian tanks rumbled through the streets of Budapest, putting an end to the Hungarian revolt, Mindszenty asked for political asylum. He has remained within the legation since that day—a prisoner within the walls of freedom.

Apparently, Mindszenty's case has become taboo for both the Hungarian Communists and the U. S. State Department, since the last official diplomatic move on his behalf was made in 1958.

To the Hungarian regime of Janos Kadar, the Cardinal —in terms of George Orwell's "1984"—has become an "unperson." In 1949, at his trial on trumped-up treason charges, Mindszenty was labeled the arch-enemy of the Hungarian people.

NOW, THE OFFICIAL Communist press has stopped mentioning his name so people will forget he exists.

To the United States, Mindszenty has become a frustrating diplomatic case with no solution in sight. When negotiating for Mindszenty's safe conduct to leave Hungary, the State Department ran into a triple "no"—from the Hungarian regime, the Vatican, and the Cardinal himself.

According to church sources, the Vatican, which disapproved the Cardinal's decision to seek sanctuary in the legation after the revolt broke down, now wants him to stay on, so at least nominally he continues to be the head of the Hungarian Catholic Church.

But as things now stand, the man who fought both the Nazis and the Communists may die ironically as a prisoner on American territory on "Liberty Square" in Budapest.

IN HIS APARTMENT, Mindszenty spends his time reading and writing his voluminous memoires. They deal mainly with his fight against the Nazis and eight years of confinement by the Hungarian Communists, which began in 1948. For the 15 months prior to the 1956 revolution, he was under house arrest after his life sentence based on the treason charges was suspended.

On Sunday, he says mass for the legation staff. Once a day, the Cardinal exercises in the 40 by 20 foot legation courtyard.

The only people he sees are those senior officers of the legation who hold the keys to the heavy iron door leading to his quarters. From the outside world, only his aged mother, who died two years ago, was permitted to see him regularly.

Legation sources say Mindszenty's health is excellent. Western newsmen have not been allowed to talk to him since he entered the legation.

The Country Parson

"Why is it that shortcomings, like signs of old age, always seem to show up more in our friends than in us?"

Marinites Pay $100 To Hear Nixon Talk

By CHAPIN A. DAY

'CHIP' DAY

Marin's interest in hearing Richard M. Nixon speak a week from Monday night has warmed the heart of the county finance chairman. Walter Kieckhefer Jr. went clear out on a limb some weeks ago and purchased a number of tables in the Cow Palace, which he intended to sell seat by seat, to Marin Republicans, at $100 per seat.

When Henry Cabot Lodge, running for Vice President of the United States, spoke there before the November election last year, 85 Marinites paid their C notes and attended. Today in an "off year" and for a speech which was set up when Nixon was not a candidate for anything, more than 85 already have purchased tickets and Kieckhefer is expecting more than 100 will have paid and be present nine days from tonight.

This is particularly interesting to the finance chairman because from now on the county Republican organization gets practically all of the ticket price. For the first 80 tickets, dinner expenses ($15) were taken out and the rest split 50-50; half going to the Marin County Central Committee and half divided between the state and federal GOP organizations.

But after the 80 ticket quota, the county organization gets everything except the $15; that is, they make $85 on each ticket sold.

No wonder he's enthusiastically pushing the ducats.

ANOTHER EDUCATOR widely mentioned as possible candidate for state superintendent of public instruction was in the Bay Area last weekend, although he didn't get across to Marin County.

Dr. Max Rafferty Jr., superintendent of the La Canada School District in Los Angeles County, spoke to a quarterly meeting of the California Federation of Republican Women in the Hilton Inn.

He declared the current "conservative revolution in California education" is being "led, planned and organized, not by educators, but by laymen." And "accomplishments" of the recent legislative session "were achieved not with the help of organized education, but in spite of it."

Rafferty doesn't blame the teachers or principals, but calls for a change in the "leadership of California education" and specifically in the State Department of Education.

He worried that in any revolution "the majority of what is good will suffer with the minority that is bad." But he proposed the philosophy of "survivalism" as the basis for our education. Survivalism's "basic premise is that our nation is in deadly danger and that only education can save it. Therefore, no time can be wasted on trivia," he declared.

"Are you a candidate for state superintendent of public instruction?" he was asked by Mrs. J. Lee Chaille of San Anselmo.

"I have been asked to be," was his answer.

He has not yet announced his decision. But don't be surprised if he does.

TENTATIVE DATE has been set for the Golden Gate Bridge directors to invite San Francisco and Marin supervisors, State Sen. Eugene McAteer and state bridge officials to a meeting to discuss a second crossing of the Bay between San Francisco and Marin, December 8.

SOUTHERN MARIN Republican Women are scheduled to hear Dr. Joost Sluis, a clinical instructor at U.C.'s medical school in Berkeley, who recently completed a tour of Central and South America studying the influence of Communism there. He is also a director of the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade in the north state.

The coffee-dessert meeting is scheduled Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. in Alta Mira Hotel, Sausalito.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Protesting Big Garage Too

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I was at my office in San Francisco yesterday (Oct. 31) when your reporter called our home about the article that appeared in last evening's Independent-Journal titled, Triplexes In Duplex Zone Protested.

At this time would like to give an additional comment regarding our neighborhood gathering. There was also vigorous protest about the detached garage which is being built right off Paradise Drive, way out of proportion (actually the full length of the lot), two stories high with a gabled roof!!! Complaints prior to the meeting had been made to proper authorities.

I am certain most of our neighbors share my opinion that "fragments of Khrushchev's latest monstrosity are trying to bore in on Tiburon's picturesque hillside."

Treat Them As They Deserve

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I have been much impressed on several occasions with your forthright statements (over a period of two years) on subject matters which affect all of us—as citizens, as humans and humane people.

The latest was in connection with the Sequeira Ranch episode. The fanfare, including your "Happy Reunion" picture of today (Oct. 31) gives me pause to the extent of asking: Because these people have been long residents of Marin are they to be excused and let off with an admonition, or are they to be treated as they properly deserve with lawful punishment?

Why is a political adventurer such as Mr. Weissich in a position to reduce an already set bail on the theory that they are responsible citizens . . . Monetary worth is one thing; responsibility is something else.

A. C. LAMB
Lagunitas

(NOTE: Attorney Weissich did not reduce the bail, the judge did; any accused man deserves an attorney and he is, by American law, assumed innocent until proven guilty.)

Only Outcome Is Destruction

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I should like to add my voice to the many others in demanding an end to the nuclear arms race.

The only outcome can be complete destruction. Let us all be adults and negotiate our differences.

We must back the United Nations and our President's disarmament program. I have written my local and national leaders and Mr. Khrushchev to this effect.

Two Men Now In Race To Follow Frank Donohue As Treasurer?

Another man is being rumored as possible candidate for the post of county tax collector-treasurer when Frank Donohue retires next year.

The leading contender mentioned thus far has been Stanley Fontez of the auditor's office. The second man, now being whispered as a possibility, is Lucien D. Miller, who works in the same office as Fontez.

About a year ago, Miller announced his retirement, got himself a place in Lassen County, I think it was, and moved there. But recently, he came back to work for the auditor on an extra-hire basis.

And rumors are that he is looking for a house here so that he can take up residence in Marin once again.

All of which point strongly to the likelihood that Miller is looking for an elective post next year.

Don't be surprised if it's going to be Fontez vs. Miller, and perhaps others, in the race for tax collector-treasurer.

SAN ANSELMO school Supt. Stephen Parodi is a staid educator, but he comes up with some gems once in a while when the school board meeting gets a bit too routine.

Like the time someone asked him what SMSG stood for. "It stands for Schools Mathematics Study Group," said Parodi. "But some people say its stands for Some Math, Some Garbage."

DON'T TELL Paul Richards about this, but there's a quiet movement going on in San Rafael to publicize the city as the "Venice of California." In Venice they talk about sailing a boat up and down main street to do the shopping.

Businessmen along San Rafael Canal claim the same can be done here. For example, you can watch a football game from Dolphin Boatel; then cruise to Dominic's or Pete's Pier for lunch; then paddle up to Purity's or United for shopping; then drop anchor behind Bermuda Palms to put up for the night.

A midwesterner, accustomed to making a business trip once a month to New York, was dismayed when his wife announced one time she was coming with him. "I want to see some night life and have some fun," she told him.

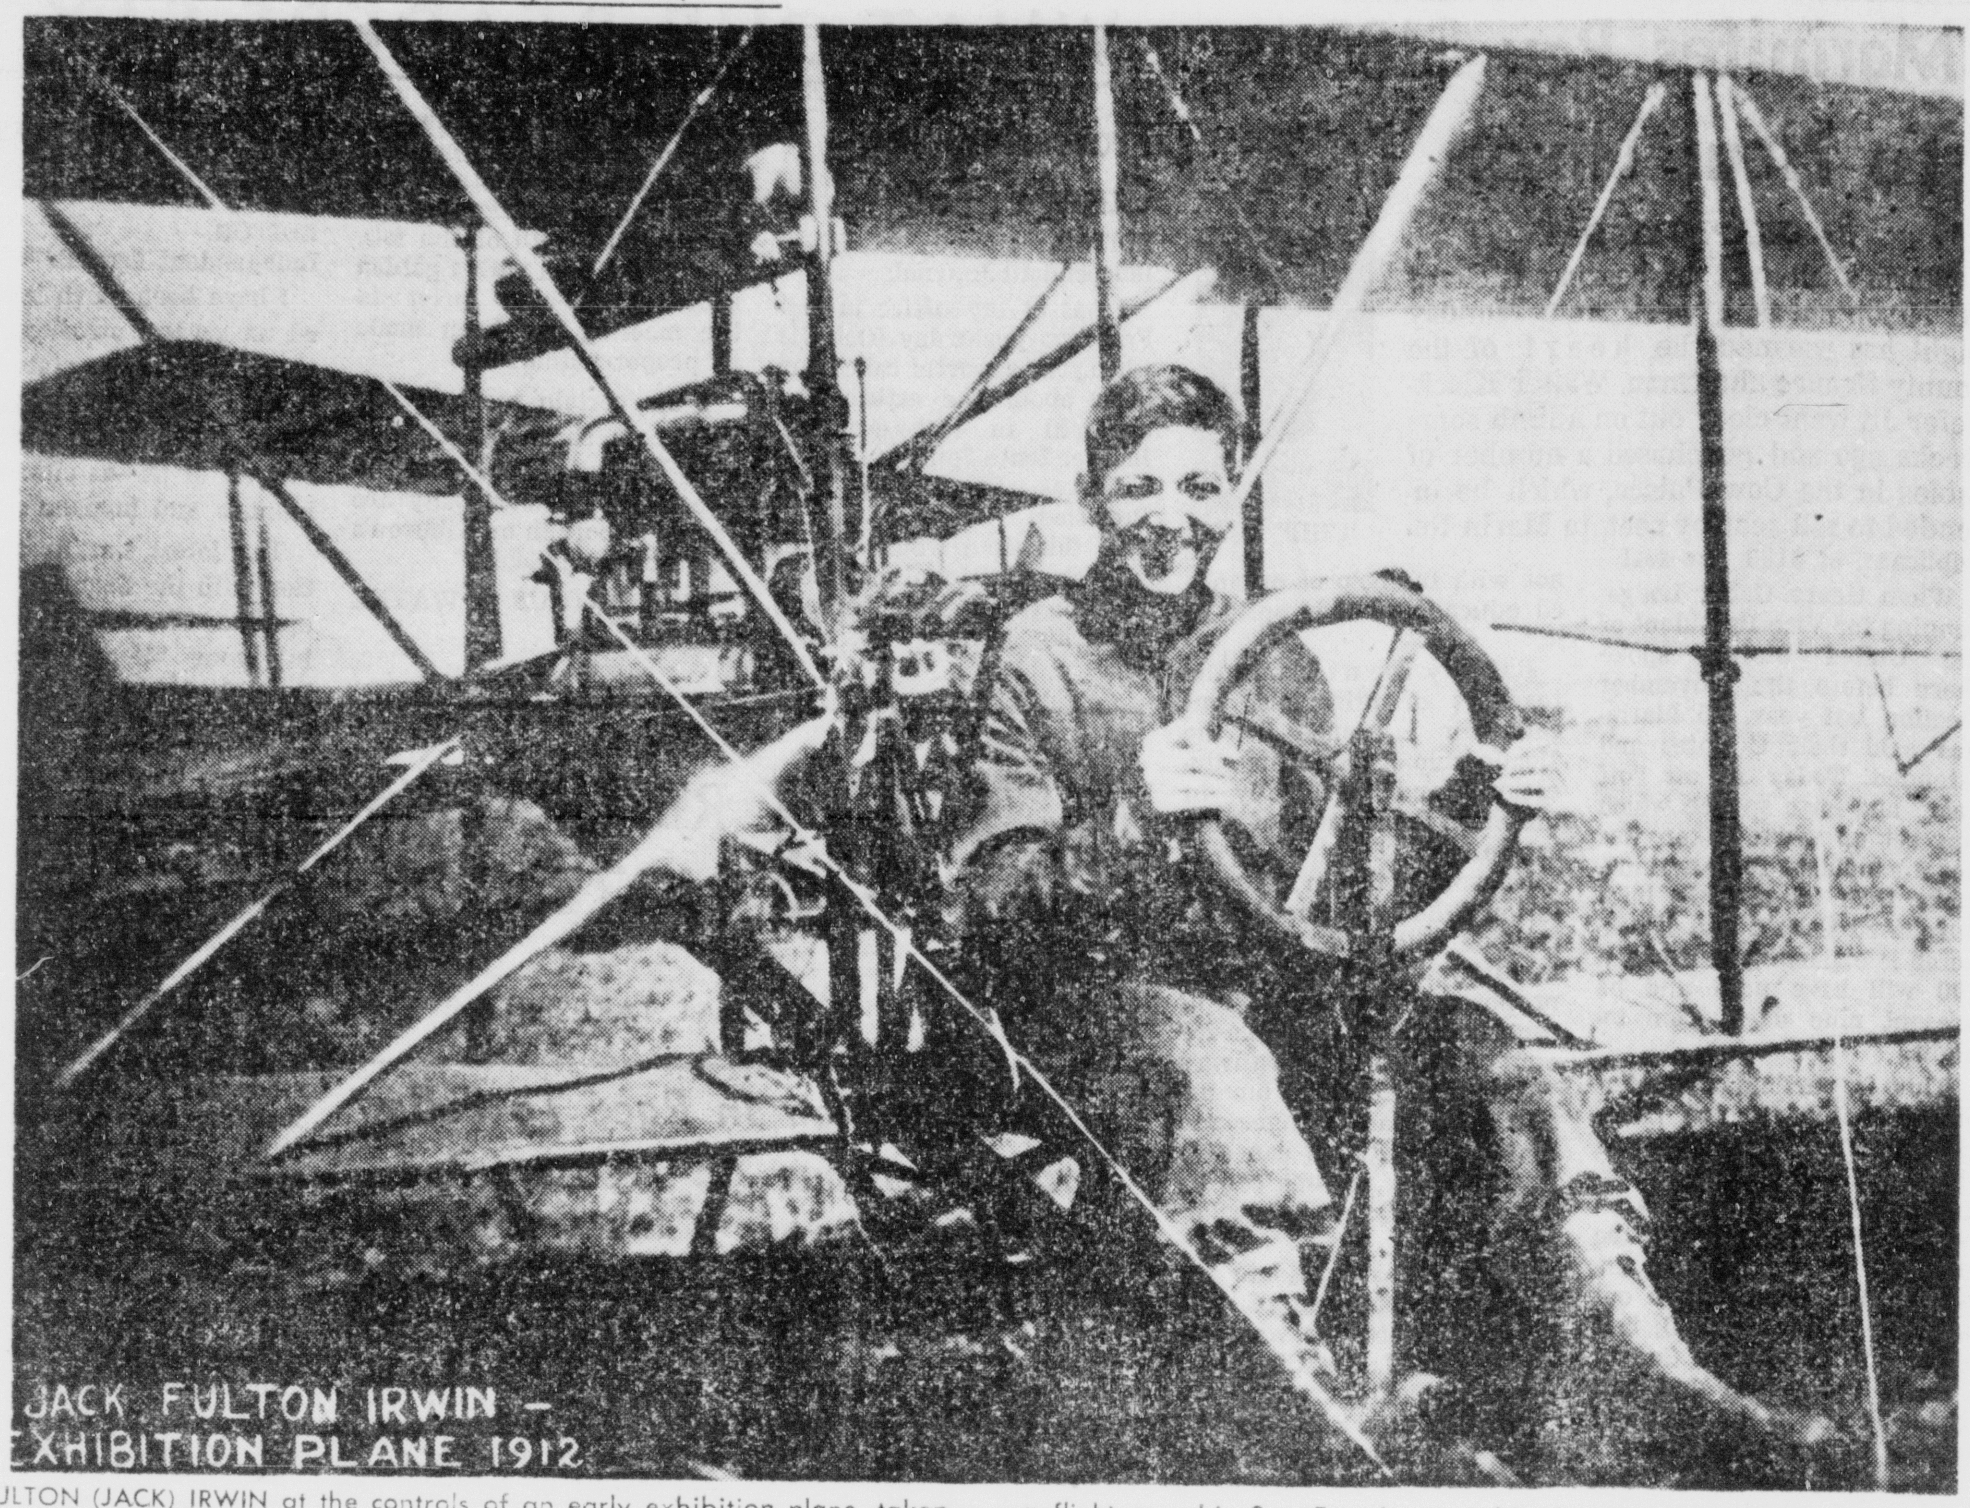
"Honey," he protested. "I never go near a night club in New York. I just work."

"This time," she said, "you're going to a night club!"

They went. And as he was checking his hat, his wife heard the hat check girl say distinctly, "Why, it's old Georgey-Porgey! Welcome back!" The head waiter beamed, "Your usual table, sir?" And the chorus girl with red hair tickled him under the chin as she whisked by and murmured, "Darling boy!"

The wife seized him by the scruff of the neck and threw him into a taxicab. "You double-crossing lowlife!" she cried. "Wait till I get you home!"

The driver turned around and suggested, "George, if this dame is giving you too much trouble, let's throw her out and go back and get another one!"



FULTON (JACK) IRWIN at the controls of an early exhibition plane, taken in 1912. Irwin had flown for several years before this picture was made. He made his first lighter-than-air flight about 1905 and the same year took a flight over his San Francisco neighborhood in a homemade dirigible. Irwin and his wife Ethel are now residents of the Bolinas mesa He is semi-retired.

Meet Jack Irwin: Our Aviation Pioneer

By DICK STEINHEIMER

Fulton (Jack) Irwin of Bolinas isn't a very big man in stature. And he's getting around 70 years of age.

But there's a story in this bright-eyed resident of the mesa that's little known by people of Marin.

It's a story that starts almost with the very birth of aviation and continues up to this present day.

You see, Jack Irwin is one of the earliest pioneers of aviation, constructing dirigibles as early as 1905 and planes as early as 1910.

Perhaps more noteworthy is the fact that he manufactured what was called the world's first light plane and participated in the first known massing of airplanes for use in world warfare.

What's more, one of his early planes now stored in the garage of Ned Spalding of Ross, is headed for the Smithsonian Institute.

The story of Irwin's life is a story both of depression and $1,000 a day jobs. In fact if you were to ask him today he might tell you too, "there's no success ending to my life."

JACK IRWIN was born in San Francisco. At an early age he was taken by his family to San Rafael. Marin was sparsely settled in those days before the turn of the century. The old house the Irwin family moved into was adjacent to the older Pacheco family home, near what is now Fourth and H Streets in San Rafael. In those days the home was the last house in San Rafael west until the San Anselmo city border.

AS A YOUNG BLADE, Irwin is shown next to one of the Thomas-Morse Scout planes manufactured in the United States during World War I. The planes were duplicates of the Sopwith Camel plane of Britain. Irwin was a test pilot for the company and claims to have flown planes that were sabotaged in manufacture.

As a youngster attending E Street School, Jack recalled the walk up the hill each morning parallel to the route of the steam trains of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

It was at the E Street School a number of things happened that were to carry through to the present day life of Jack Irwin.

For one thing he got acquainted with Marin County and the good times he had here playing with the Pacheco children. Here his artistic drawing first made him popular (and uncomfortable) at school. He said when he would do a big drawing for open house or other event he would be so self-conscious he would deliberately play hooky the next day, so he would not have to stand the admiring talk and glances. This love of doing things only for his own reasons stayed with him in aviation.

Always adventuresome, he became one of the few persons to survive the 600-volt current of the NWP third rail.

REGULARLY he used to go down to the old West End depot to wait for his father to come from work in San Francisco. The commuter line was electrified while the family lived there and his interest in the mysterious third rail became almost unbearable.

Signs and persons had told him touching the innocent-looking rail could kill. But with childish sport one day when no one was looking he climbed down to the tracks at the station and began to place one foot up under the platform on the rail.

The 600-volt jolt flipped him into the air and onto the platform. His life being saved only by the wooden platform being above the rail and the dry condition of the ground.

Jack said he ran for home

"like a dog that fell in turpentine."

He nervously avoided the station and third rail for weeks afterward.

Just after the turn of the century he and his family moved back to San Francisco, then to Felton, near Big Basin. One of his recollections in the city was that of his firemen friends rushing to rescue the injured in the collapse of the roof of a glass company during the Thanksgiving Day "Big Game" at which he recalled about 20 persons were killed, causing the end of Thanksgiving "Big Games."

Moving back to San Francisco again about 1903, Jack fell under the spell of Captain Baldwin who was doing experimenting with dirigibles on the mud flats of San Bruno. Unlike children of the era that hung around the trains or stables, Jack hung around the would-be airman and learned the tricks of tying the netting around the balloon portion of the dirigible to support the gondola.

Jack's first flight was in 1905 when he was attending a fair which featured a hot air balloon ascension and parachute drop.

The man scheduled to make the ascension appeared late or drunk, as Jack recalled, and so he volunteered as a lad of only about 12 to substitute for the errant rider.

The hot air lifted the youngster into the air before the throng. Jack said he must have waited until the balloon was about 400 feet above the ground before he took to the parachute. As he recalls he landed in some wires before getting down but recalls the stunt was worth a fat $20.

His parents soon put a stop to his balloon rides, but not before he did an experiment of his own the same year and took the first air ride in a craft of his own.

Filled with knowledge gained from Capt. Baldwin, he sent out a plea to the small fry in the neighborhood to get him sheets and muslin.

He recalls that a certain amount of petty larcency must have gone on because he soon had plenty of old sheets and cloths. Then the Irwin dirigible began to take shape in the basement of the home.

He sewed the sheets together and constructed his own netting from string for support of the "gondola."

The monster was about 80 feet long when brought out into the light for the big test. For a gondola he used an old bike with which he had substituted a propeller arrangement at the back for the normal rear wheel.

Then somewhat quietly he solicited various kinds of hose from the neighborhood and just as quietly hooked it to one of the family gas lines. As he recalls it took two days of continuous gas running to fill the bag, and take care of leakage.

"It started to be shaped like a cigar, but came out in the shape of a lemon," he recalls.

When full, his host of neighborhood friends came for the launching.

The boy of 12 climbed in and the craft was released and became airborne.

The balloon he recalls was little affected by his attempts to power it with the bicycle contraption. So he just drifted about the housetops until coming to rest against the side of one of the hills bordering the Castro Heights area.

THE experiments in lighter than air craft were definitely cancelled by father when the gas bill came.

Nevertheless it attracted newspaper attention and he became known as the local "boy wonder." Also it gave the youngster faith in his own inventiveness and designs.

Jack's aviation interests got a boost soon after when the family left the city for a somewhat quieter location, Auburn, in Placer County.

Here in 1907 he again began his feud with schoolteachers who required exact performancce of all his studies.

Perhaps as one of his releases he constructed a glider of 10 to 15 feet wingspan. The glider was of the type that was held by the arms and shoulder and the occupant rode with feet hanging down, acting as the landing gear and steering apparatus. His first flights were from roof tops, graduating to sides of cliffs near the town.

AT THIS point Irwin admits that the neighbors and even his own mother were BACK BEDROOM of the Irwin home on Bolinas mesa is filled with the mementoes of early days of aviation. Here Jack looks at the model of a Curtiss JND-4 "Jenney" similar to those in which he instructed pilots during the first World War. Several years before, Irwin paricipated in what was probably the first known massing of planes for warfare in history. At his feet is a four cylinder two-bank opposed engine of his own design that powered his Meteorplane, the first commercial light plane (engine displacement of less than 80 cubic inches). (Independent-Journal photos by Dick Steinheimer)

SEEING OFF a visitor is Jack Irwin standing by the gate of his Bolinas mesa home. Talking with Irwin is Ned Spalding of Ross, a friend who is storing an original Irwin Meteorplane in his garage to be fixed and sent to the Smithsonian Institute. Spalding met Irwin through his San Anselmo hobby store.

The Last Survivor Awaits Restoration In Ross Garage pretty well convinced that he was crazy.

The payoff in his glider flying days came the day he and friends carried his wood and paper craft over to the brink of the canyon of the American River.

Here was a descent of around 1,000 feet to the sandy bottom of the river.

HE TOOK OFF from the bank and for a few minutes sailed like the bird he was. However near the bottom he apparently stalled or made some other mistake because he ended in a nearly broken heap at the bottom. He was relatively unhurt, but again a phase of his early flying career came to an end. This was the end of the glider era.

The powered plane era started for Irwin around 1910 when he moved to Sacramento and built his first plane from miscellaneous parts in a basement. He flew from the field at Target) between Sacramento and Woodland. His first engine was a four cylinder Mitchell which he cut down in weight to fit his homemade plane.

By 1912, long before the automobile even had supplanted the electric interurban car and jets damaged rail passenger traffic, Irwin was making flights at exhibitions and county and state fairs.

SURPRISING in this early day of aviation was the high price the flyers could command. Irwin earned $1,000 per day at one fair in Carson City for exhibition flights.

"Why, in those days we could even charge them 10 cents a head just to come in the tent and see the airplane," Irwin mused.

"Every dog has its day, and those days we really were the heroes!"

Then around 1914 came the history-making application of airplanes for warfare.

Irwin along with 200 other aviators in the U. S. were asked to gather their planes, exhibition types and all, and meet at El Paso for possible use to U. S. forces fighting in Mexico against Pancho Villa. They became the first U. S. airmen.

The U. S. men were never used, according to Irwin, but one American pilot was hired by Villa and used, probably for reconnaissance.

This perhaps made this man the first known soldier-aviator.

"We didn't have anything to do in El Paso, but we sure drank a lot of liquor," Jack recalls.

At the start of World War I, Irwin became a signal corps instructor, training men for the embryo air force. He taught at fields all over the country, using mainly the famous old JND-4's, the Curtiss Jenneys.

At the end of the war he got the idea that if he could build a cheap enough plane, with a motorcycle type engine, some of the other younger persons would be able to take up flying.

This was the start of the then - famous Meteorplane factory he opened in Sacramento. Since the industry was in its infancy and he was relatively isolated from the large population areas of the eastern United States, Irwin decided to construct his plane entirely from his own designs and manufacture. This would be almost an impossible feat today.

Irwin, with the aid of some machines and machinists, designed and made castings for the motor, wheels, controls and even the tires.

The frame of the Meteorplanes was of wood with fabric covering.

From the year 1922 until the start of the world-wide depression, he and his firm turned out 200 factory built Meteorplanes and sold do-it-yourself kits for more than 1,000 more.

The planes were all biplanes, some with longer top wings than others; some with the wing control surfaces on the top wing and some with them on the bottom. Generally the top was favored because of the common chance of damage to the bottom wing on landing on the rough fields then in existence.

The planes factory - constructed cost $1,150. If purchased by unassembled kits, the plane, sans motor, was $750. In this way some of the younger men of the era were able to buy their airplane in installments, in keeping with the most modern do-it-yourself manner.

The engine Irwin designed and built (including sparkplugs) was a two-bank opposed job weighing only 56 pounds and developing a conservative 20 horsepower.

After the depression knocked his business into a tailspin Jack went to work as manager of the Watsonville airport.

During World War II he worked as a final Navy inspector at Consolidated Aircraft Co. where he came to know the PBY's and B-24's of that war.

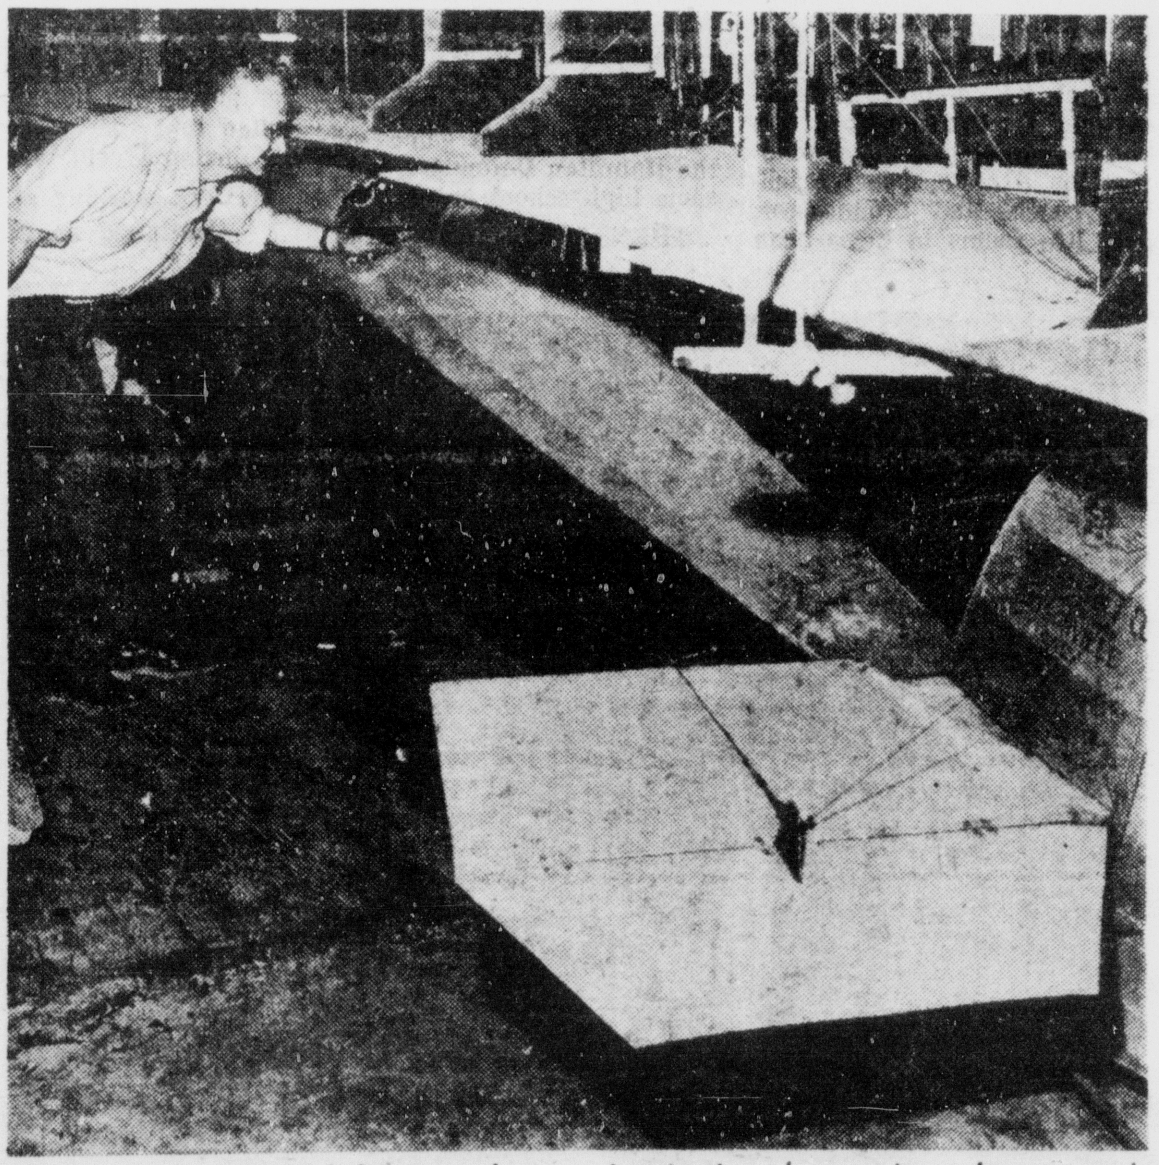
Jack worked until recently as caretaker for the Bolema Club but now devotes most of his time to fixing up his property and seeing that the old Meteorplane in Ned Spalding's garage gets to the Smithsonian Institute.

Help has been offered in restoring the plane by several persons at the San Carlos airport, but nothing has yet been done.

If nothing else, Jack will go back to the old days himself in fabricating parts for the old plane. United Airlines has already agreed to fly the plane east to Chicago when it is ready. Jack said the institute has already agreed to take the plane as an exhibit.

When Jack Irwin's Meteorplane with its broom handle joystick is safely in the institute it may be that its designer will feel he can amend his saying, that his life has ended successfully.

JACK IRWIN proudly holds one of his trophies won during the barnstorming era of aviation, when aviation was still sport. This trophy was for first place in 1927 in the Fly to Visalia Race, a win based on aircraft and pilot performance. He still wears the leather flying jacket and wings of his earlier days.



LAST KNOWN survivor of the more than 1,000 Meteorplanes constructed by Irwin in the 1920's is in the garage in Ross of Ned Spalding, left. Irwin hopes to get help in restoring plane so it can be sent to the Smithsonian Institute. The Institute has accepted it and an airline has agreed to fly the plane east as far as Chicago.

SCRATCHING his nose, KTIM broadcaster Ted Mitchell asks, "A yard for a first down, will they make it?"

"IT LOOKS like a first down near the goal!" is the comment of Mitchell in one of this series of camera studies by Karl Barron.

"OUCH, he was really hit;"

They Broadcast Marin's Sporting News

Sports broadcasters seem to come in pairs—and the pair that's a watchword with Marin listeners is Mitchell and Barron.

Since 1954 this KTIM team, a high school teacher with lots of sports savvy and a professional radio man with 27 years experience, has covered everything from Little League baseball to swimming meets.

Theodore R. Mitchell, a teacher as Tamalpais High School with a sports index for a brain, and Karl Barron, who in his 47 years has done every conceivable job in radio, are a "ham and eggs" combination.

As they work together, sorting out the meat and bones of what's happening on the field, there seems to be a kind of telepathy at work. The microphone moves from one to the other with no obvious communication.

As "Mitch" reaches a drop in the action, he smoothly introduces "the Barron of KTIM," who as smoothly feeds the listeners a commercial before they realize the action has stopped. Then, adlibbing about the game, Barron watches for the action to resume and slips it back to Mitch without missing a beat.

"MITCH knows the score," says Barron.

He tells of the first broadcast of Little League they did from San Rafael in 1954.

"Just before the game, a guy came up and said 'Mr. Mitchell, will you keep the official score book?' "

" 'Sure,' said Mitch.

'Hey, you've got to broadcast this — without worrying about a score book, Barron warned him.

'So,' he said, 'I'll know what the score is!' "

And that's the key to Mitchell's success. Now sports director of KTIM he knows the score, no matter what the sport may be.

As he broadcasts Marin County Athletic League football each Saturday afternoon, Mitch has a pair of spotting boards in front of him, with cards containing the player's names.

BARRON is on one side and and a spotter on the other. They point to the names of players involved in the scrimmage, but Mitchell seldom looks. He knows the players by sight—knows their nicknames, their weights, in most cases their scholastic records.

The 29-year-old speech teacher at Tamalpais High School has a perfect background for the competent job he does in play-by-play broadcasting. Athlete, speech teacher, coach, and broadcaster, his life seems to have been preparation for sitting before a microphone.

A 1950 graduate of Oakland Technical High, where he played quarterback, Mitch went to College of Marin for 2 years, calling the signals for the Tars.

He went to San Jose State for a year and finished his academic training at San Francisco State, graduating in 1955. During his school years he played also in American Legion baseball competition.

In the spring of 1954, a mutual friend, Harry O'Shaughnessy, introduced Mitch to KTIM manager Hugh Turner. Turner was just contemplating Little League broadcasts, and Mitch fitted right into the job. He's been doing it ever since.

As Little League broadcasts became more popular and were extended to a five night schedule each week, Turner decided to try football. For two seasons Mitch and Barron did the home games of the Hamilton Defenders, plus some high school games.

THEN four years ago the KTIM Sportsmen's Club was formed, giving a solid sponsorship basis for 15 high high school athletic events each season. Ten Marin business men each chip in pro rata to cover time and line charges, more with the idea of publicizing the teams than themselves.

At the end of the school season, the Sportsmen throw a banquet, with the two outstanding athletes from each school as guests of honor and a notable from the sporting world as a speaker.

Sportsmen's Club members are Fred Enemark, Peter Cazassa, Ray and Harry Cerutti, Lloyd Grandi, Jim Kilpatrick, Len Proaps, Irv Chapman, Frank George, Tony Taveggia, Rome Brusati and Larry Mayer.

Barron, whose playing experience was limited to sandlot baseball and football in Baltimore, was literally catapulted into sports broadcasting during World War II.

He was working at KSRO in Santa Rosa. The manager came in on a Friday afternoon to announce:

"I've sold tomorrow's football game. You do the play-by-play—and the commercials!"

"I've never done play-by-play," said the horrified Barron.

"YOU'VE been in radio since 1935. You can do it," said the manager, and handed Barron 20 pieces of commercial copy. The station was short-handed, so Barron took the equipment to the field, set it up, tested the phone line, and picked up a couple of youngsters for spotters.

"With their aid, I managed some sort of identification, read commercials, described half-time activities — talked incessantly for two and a half hours. Then I went home and died."

"It must have been pretty bad, but no one said anything, so guess what I did every Saturday for the rest of the season?"

With this background, it was natural that Barron should draw the assignment of being the "commercial and color" man for Mitch.

Mitch uses quarterback logic in his general approach to life. Decisions are quick and once made, followed through. During last year's Little League season, an uproar erupted between parents and umpires with the chief umpire finally walking off the field.

As the game and the broadcast came to an untimely end, Mitch made some very pointed remarks about the parents' behavior.

He followed up on his morning show, with the result that several things that had contributed to the tension in the particular league have been corrected.

Earlier this year he predicted that Marin Catholic would abandon football, based on the lack of player material, and the fact that Terra Linda would be moving into the Marin County Athletic League next season.

The extent of his listening audience was pinpointed by the prediction. The entire Marin Catholic student body arose, demanded that he appear at a rally, and did everything but lynch him in effigy.

There may not be any relationship, but the Wildcats started the MCAL season by sneaking a win over highly favored San Rafael. The day after the game saw Mitch eating his words with typical candor.

January, 1956, was a red letter month for Mitch, the budding teacher. After celebrating his birthday on the second, he received his teaching credentials on Jan. 27, celebrated his second wedding anniversary on the 28th, was presented with Theodore Jr. on the 29th, and began to teach on the 30th. Perhaps doing a basketball game the next day!

MITCH met Genevieve on a blind date in 1952, and captured her in 1954. They have two children, Ted Jr., 5½, and Douglas, 1. They live in San Rafael's Sun Valley district.

Barron's wife is known professionally as Gwen Stone, a painter of abstract art. They live in a rambling rebuilt Larkspur home, but are building a 40-foot houseboat, which they hope will be their home within a year. They celebrated their 24th anniversary in October, and have two children: Gregory, now living in Sausalito and working for the Larkspur post office, and Stephanie, of Larkspur.

Their name, incidentally is von Buchau, Barron's hard-to-pronounce legal name.

THE REAL name is Baron Karl Heinrich Sylvester Bogislav Prinz von Buchau.

Greg's wife, the former Carol Evans of Mill Valley, increased the family in April with Erik Dean. Stephanie is circulation manager of Contact Magazine of Sausalito and in March will begin an extended tour of Europe, "to hear every opera they've got!"

Mitch keeps up with sports in an active way by serving as an official. He is much in demand during the football season, and is a familiar sight on the gridiron, racing into the middle of a pile-up to find out who recovered the fumble.

Mitchell's background led him into the coaching staff at Tam. Several seasons he worked both baseball and football, but last year quit because of combined pressure of broadcasting and teaching. In addition to his play-by-play activities, Mitch airs a popular sports roundup every morning at 7:30 and a repeat highlight at 12:15 p.m.

"OK, Mitch, go to work!" is the familiar identification of all broadcasts. Barron said it one day and made it a regular introduction.

One morning he forgot it, and fans proved it was popular by complaining in large numbers that the broadcast didn't sound complete without it.

The Strange Case Of The Missing Art

By JOANNE DREJES

In October of this year Lotte McWatters and Eva Kamp of the Marin Society of Artists reported that a total of $200,000 in paintings had been missing from the racks of the Frances Young Gallery in Ross.

Furthermore, is was apparent that a subsequent survey of the loss to be held November 11th would put the figure considerably over the $200,000 mark.

Unlike the host of recent art thefts, this loss is cause for celebration, and all 983 members of the "art ring" are to be congratulated.

The $200,000 figure represents the value of original painting out on loan during 1961 from the rental gallery operation of the society. This "art ring" has been successful in making the volume of Marin's art rental service the largest in Northern California.

This "seizure" of art has been going on for six years at the Frances Young Gallery. In its first year of operation, 1955, the gallery rented 100 paintings. This has grown to its present rental of nearly 1,100. While in Northern California the society is unique in being the only non-profit, self-supporting art group to operate and maintain its own gallery, it is only one of the many galleries and institutions nationally to have adopted the rental service.

FOR THE ART LOVER the rental plans satisfies three requirements. These are the reasons for its success. It allows anyone the opportunity of enjoying in his home an original painting that he could not afford to purchase. It provides the prospective buyer a chance to "live with" the painting in order to determine if it is really what he wants. It gives the home decorator and businessman the opportunity of a changing decor for less than $2 a month.

While an original Rembrandt, Picasso or Grandma Moses is not to be found in the racks of the Frances Young Gallery, you will discover the fine work being produced around Marin. More than 100 Bay Area artists stock the gallery with work of varying techniques and media. The growth of the gallery speaks for the quality of the work being exhibited.

It was in 1954 that Adalaine Cadogan, Anne Schultz, Helen Steinau Rich and Verna Rogers began to explore the possibilities of adding the rental service to the society's established series of monthly art shows.

THE FOLLOWING year the plan was approved on a trial basis.

While the public responded well to the new operation, the artists were not so easy to convince. In the first months of the experiment only eight artists supplied the paintings for lease in the gallery. To overcome the artists' fears of damage or loss of their work the gallery chairmen delivered each painting to the home or office of the renter. At this time the society was unable to keep the gallery open on week-days and appointments had to made to see the stock. But, before the end of the second year the experiment won over the artists and public and the art rental gallery was a success.

Today, with the membership of the Marin Society of Artists nearing 500, there are many volunteers to maintain the daily staffing of the gallery. With six years of experience the art rental service operation moves smoothly—with practically no red tape.

IT REMAINS the only real dilemma facing the gallery staff is how to get those great big, huge paintings in those little tiny cars.

Art students and parents with an eye towards giving their children an experience with art find that painting rental gives them a chance to view many approaches to art. The Sisters at Marin Catholic High School come twice a month to the gallery to borrow paintings for their classes. In addition to teaching art appreciation the Sisters have also used some of the paintings to help illustrate philosophical points.

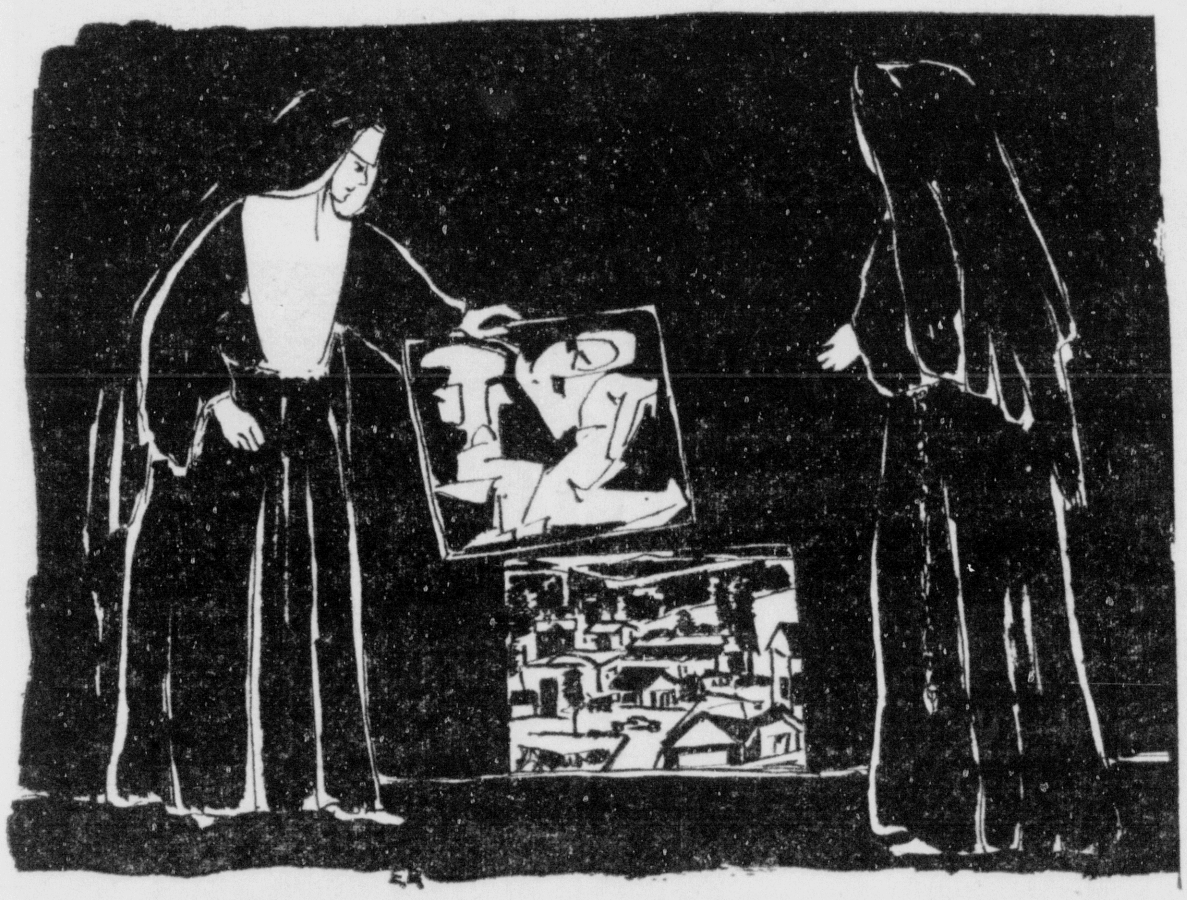
Decorating remains the major use of the painting rented from the gallery and a service is available through the art rental plan whereby paintings of a particular color, size or subject are "rounded up" by the staff and presented for viewing by the patron with a difficult problem in decor.

TOMORROW from 2 to 5 p.m. the rental gallery will preview its fall show.

It is the largest rental show of the year, and oils, watercolors and graphics of all sizes and techniques (all framed and ready to be hung) will be displayed.

The fall show will continue through Nov. 30 at the Frances Young Gallery in the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross. The gallery is open daily from 2 to 4 p.m. and Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Rental shows of the Marin Society of Artists can regularly be seen at the Ross Valley Clinic, Novato General Hospital, the Town House in Ross, Ross General Hospital, Racquet Club in San Rafael and the Blood Bank in San Rafael.



THE SISTERS from Marin Catholic High School look over rental paintings at the Frances Young Gallery.

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

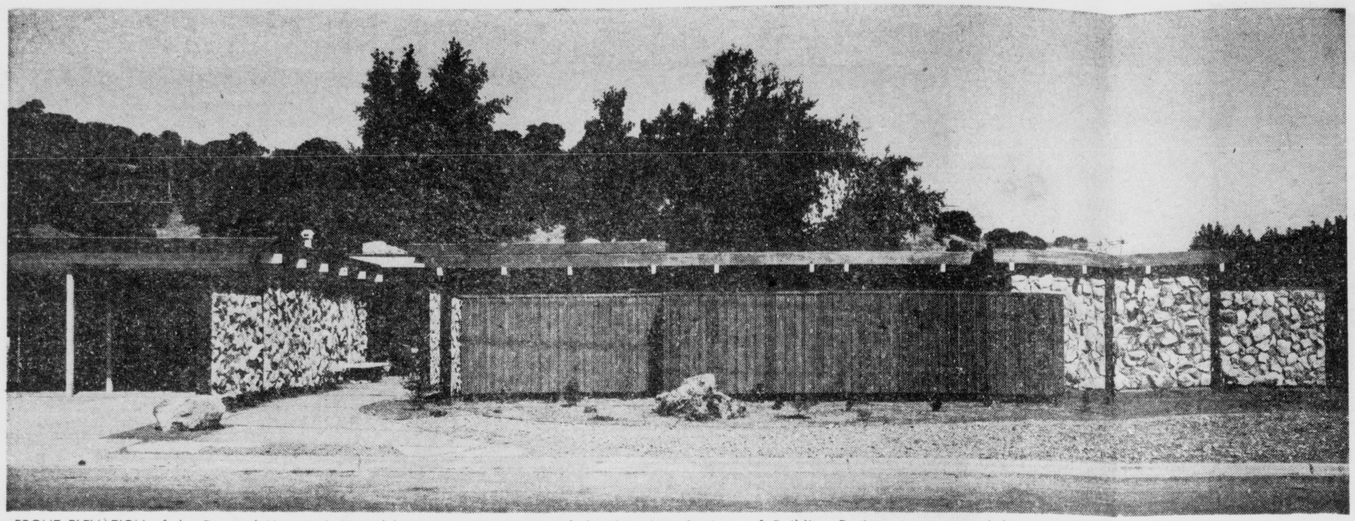
"Did Drycleaning Make Holes In My Summer Silk Dress?"

The damage to your summer silk is not unusual. It is possible that the action of cleansing the garment called attention to damage that was caused in the manufacture. Had your summer silk been properly cared for in manufacture, there would have been no damage in cleaning.

Here is how the damage came about. In manufacture, certain silks are dyed a solid color. Then the design is applied by printing on the fabric with a discharge paste. This discharge paste removes the color and leaves the desired design. When, in printing the fabric design, the discharge paste is not completely rinsed or neutralized, the areas to which it was applied may weaken. Sometimes it causes a change in color of the design which you may think is a bleeding of the base color into the design. However, when the discharge paste is not completely removed or neutralized, the slow oxidizing effect of the atmosphere plus exposure of the fabric to sunlight, weakens the design and the mild action of the cleaning process causes the fabric to fall apart in holes or splits.

Drycleaning may have revealed holes in your summer silk, but they were certain to appear in any case because of the manner in which the design was applied.



FRONT ELEVATION of the Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Kristal home at 450 Fairway Drive, Novato. The design by Robert E. Eklund Jr. won the award of honor presentation at a recent convention of the American Institute of Building Design. In Eklund's words, "This picture represents the front elevation, designed so as to create an interesting form. The exposed beam ends are strong in detail to break the monotony of the lengthy facia, replacing instead a rhythmic line." (Photos by Ken Molino)

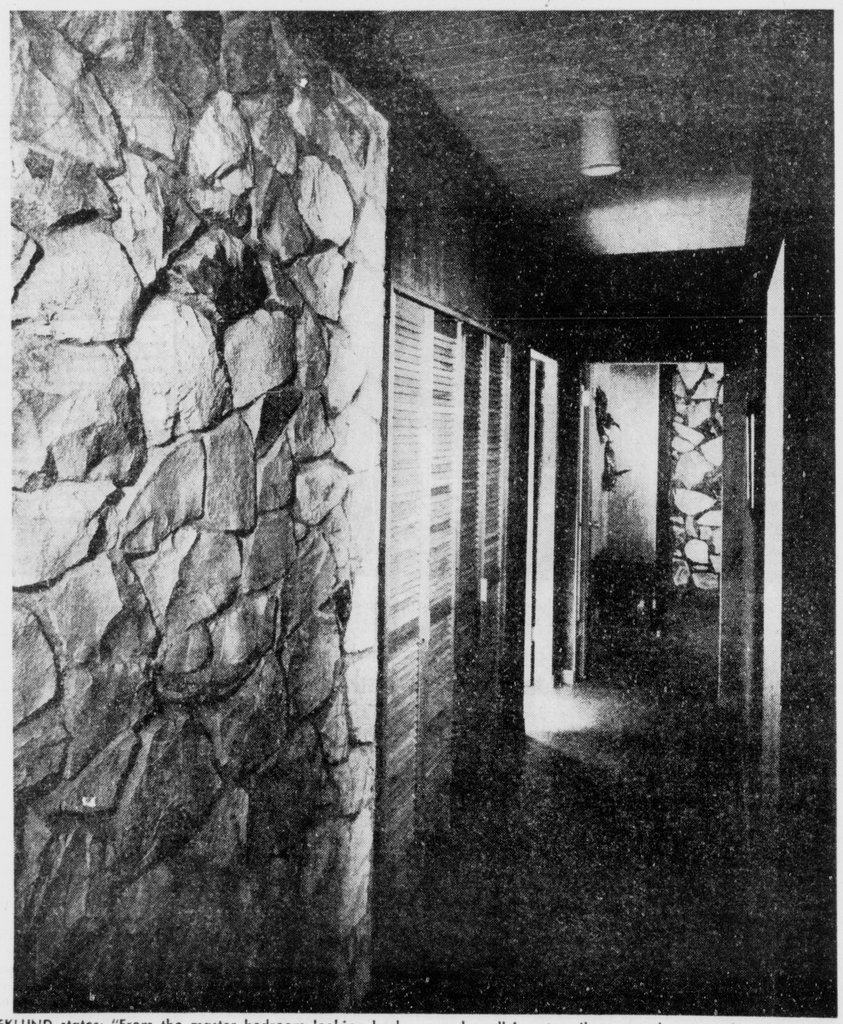
Rock, Glass And Redwood Form This Prize Home

This unique home designed by Robert E. Eklund Jr., of Edward Hageman and Associates of San Rafael for Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Kristal of Marin Golf & Country Club Estates, Novato, recently won the award of honor in the American Instiute of Bujlding Design's annual convention in San Francisco.

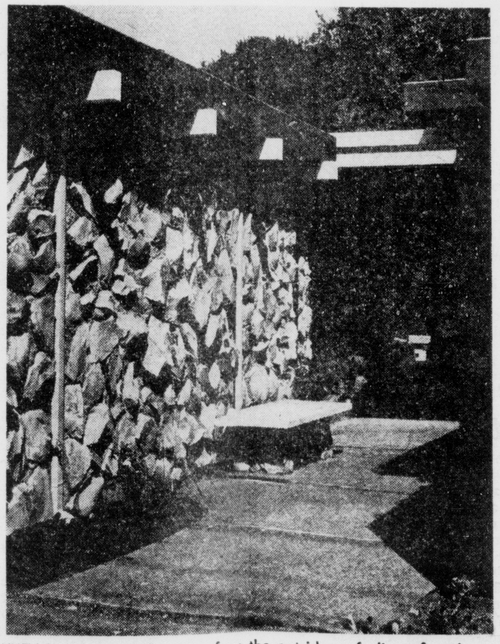
Judges cited the Kristal home at 450 Fairway Drive chiefly for its adaptability to comfortable outdoor living and because it allows each member of the family secluded areas of privacy. Yet it permits ready accessibility to the patio and pool area.

The most interesting feature of the L-shaped residence is the unusual exterior of rock-embedded concrete tilt-up panels, which after hardening were raised to form both exterior and interior walls. Glass panels are interspersed with the rock panels, forming contrast accented by redwood supports.

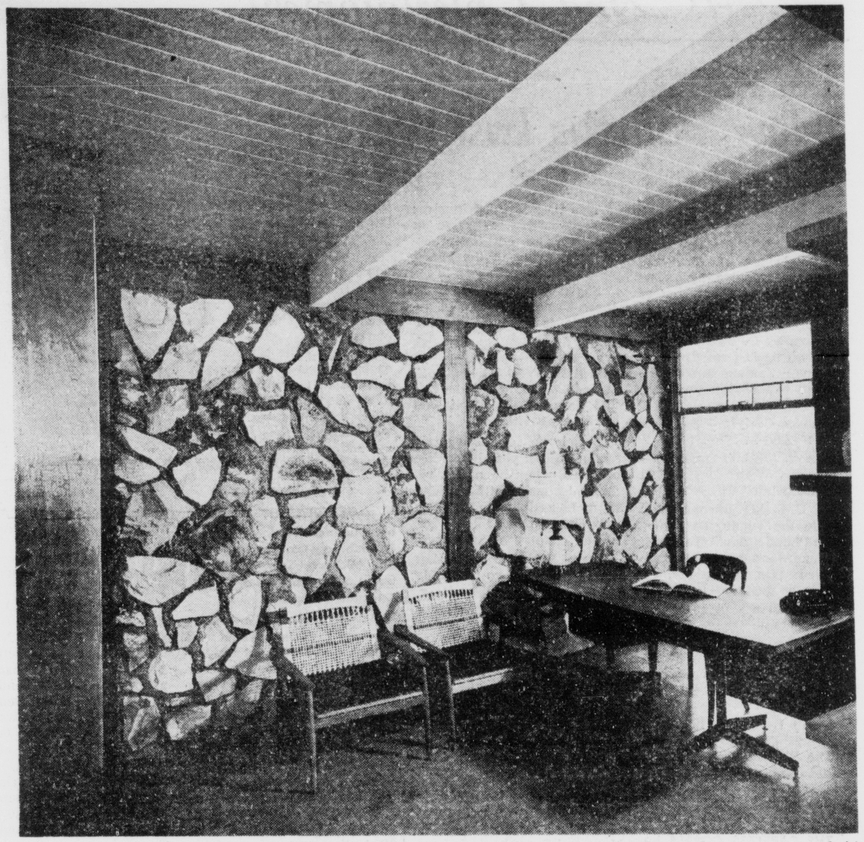
Says designer Eklund, "Although one might refer to this residence as a contemporary or modern house, it is my impression that, due to the simplicity and nature of materials used, the design will not become dated to one period, but, instead, shall hold its dignity and character through the years."



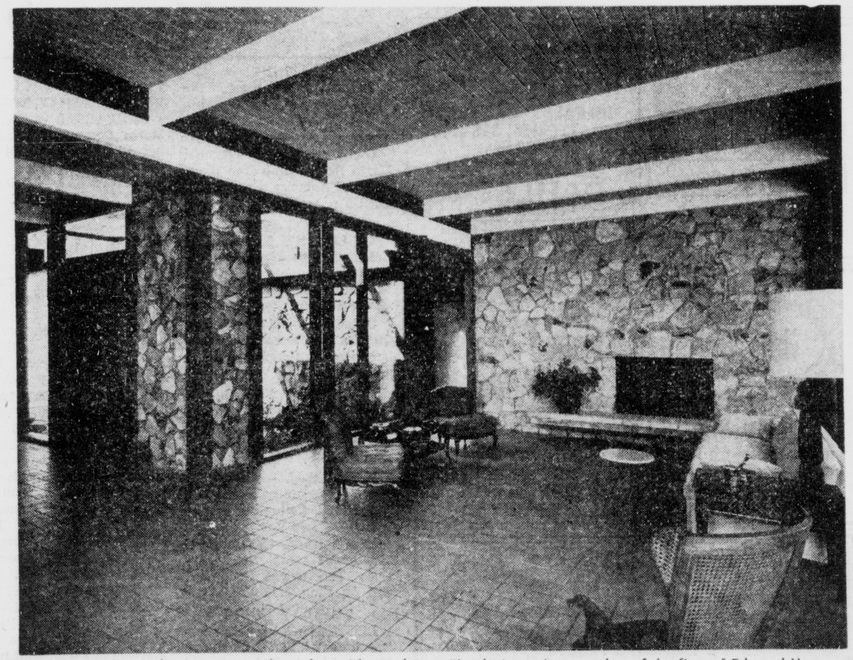
EKLUND states: "From the master bedroom looking back toward the study, one is not conscious of a hallway. The rock wall is not a tilt-up panel, as are the others, but a part of the fireplace in the master bedroom."



"WHEN WALKING to the entry from the outside, a feeling of excitement is realized due to the relief created by the extruded rock panels."



"MOVING from the living room into the study one becomes warmed by the amber light cast through the cathedral glass and realizes immediately the intention of this room," says designer Eklund.



"THE LIVING room and entry as seen through a wide angle lens from the formal dining area," according to Eklund. The designer is a member of the firm of Edward Hageman and Associates of San Rafael. The home is located in the Marin Golf and Country Club Estates area of Novato.

New 'Famous Last Words'

FAMOUS LAST WORDS by Barnaby Conrad, Doubleday and Co., 208 pages, $3.95 Reviewed by Michael Percy.

We've all wondered what we might say in our final hour, perhaps composing something brave, touching, or humorous. Here is a collection, by writer-artist-bullfighter, Barnaby Conrad of Belvedere, of the last words of the famous, infamous and not-so-famous — all brave, touching, or humorous.

Thomas Carlyle—"So this is death—well . . . "

Clifton Webb's mother — "How is Clifton? Has he had his luncheon?"

W. C. Fields (unconfirmed) —"On the whole, I'd rather be in Philadelphia." (To which a friend was supposed to have replied: "On the whole, I'd rather be dead!")

Which brings us to an excellent game suggested by Clifton Fadiman in his foreword. That if inventing deathbed utterances for the living:

Marilyn Monrie—"I'm not quite ready."

Henry Luce — It's time, life."

The Phoenix — "It is my wish to be cremated."

This is a "grave" book, but highly entertaining.

Auther Larier has picked 500 of the best illustrated cartoons from the last 20 years of the American press and wrapped them up in 200 slick pages.

JEWS WITHOUT MONEY by Michael Gold, Liveright Publishing Co. (hardback, $3), Midwood-Tower (paperback) 50 cents. Reviewed by Carleton Williams.

A poignant, moving autobiography of a savage, yet gentle, humorous, yet sad adolescent on New York's lower East Side of the 1930s where pushcart peddlers howled, women screamed and gossiped, parrots cursed, dogs barked and prostitutes laughed shrilly while life pass through the doors of Jake Wolf's saloon.

"The earth's trees, grass, flowers could not grow on my street," the author recalls. "But the rose of syphillis bloomed by night and by day . . . in that vast playground under the management of Tammany Hall."

The reader comes to know the Gold family, their friends and their enemies: Nigger, leader of a gang of seven little Yids; Dr. Solow, a bachelor medic who did not send bills and advised his patients to sleep with their windows open and join labor unions; Baruch Goldfarb, organizer of the Goldfarb Benevolent, Sickness, Social and Burial Society; Zechariah Cohen, the elder Gold's boss whose wife's shirtwaists cost $30; and Mrs. Tannenbaum, a roly-poly agitator who exhorted her neighbors to "hack out the walls, smash the windows and move away."

Mrs. Gold, in the beginning, could think of no worse fate than sharing a tenement with Christians. Before the end of the book she tells her husband, with the astonishment of one who has learned a great truth, that an Irish Catholic neighbor "used to gather mushrooms in the forest in Ireland, just the way I gathered them in Hungary."

Her philosophy, if universally adopted in these nebulous times, might well solve a good many seemingly insoluble problems.

AL CARR of Sausalito, right, plays the prince in the dance-play "Puss In Boots" which will play tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Nourse Auditorium, San Francisco. Also starring in the children's show are Angene Feves as the princess and Bob Chiappari as the cat.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

MAN, THE BUILDER

The bridges he built had strength and grace;
swung high from towers with cables, looped from space to space,
as if to stars.

Dams took shape
where rivers led;
Tunnels were drilled
and over his roads
the millions sped across the land.

His great planes soared, and his mind went on to larger things
that Man could know.
Soon, he shall say to the mountain,
"Be removed;" and it shall be gone;
or, on pressing a button,
Lo! it shall be so.

ROSS AGNES MILLER

SHOE SHINE BOY

Gonna clap mah hands n' shuffle mah feet
Gonna dance n' sing all over dah street
'Cause I feels like laughing n' I likes to dance,
Throw me some pennies n' I'll ruffle dese pants.

Clickity click click,
Clickity, click clack,
Clickity click,
Clickity, clack.

Grinning and shaking his kinky head,
He flashes his teeth, white as bone;
Lifts his chin to assure himself,
Flesh-pink lips broaden and moan.
Chinky pin eyes marble side to side,
He lifts his arms, starts to stride;
Then, clack clack backwards as his zoot suit flaps,
(The beat he heels makes men collapse).
The pale-faced sigh, wipe sweat from their cheek
(This boy knows how to pick up his feet).
He straightens up into a strut,
The shoe shine boy is out of the rut.

Shoe shine boy is faking fun
Tapping tunes on the concrete sun;
Gets more pennies in this kind of play
Than shine shoes a livelong day!

ARROWS IN THE AIR, 1956 VIRGINIA LINDE

(Extract From) OH BURY ME NOT!

To build or not to build, I ponder,
A shelter of concrete to ward off the crash.
First there's an item bigger than the atom,
Where do I get the cash?

Then, being a woman, I answer that question
With another question—it's inherent, you know.
If we should get it and decide to spend it,
Just where does this money go?

None of us can answer this for sure,
But I'm suspicious, I must confess.
To find the bums in the bomb shelter boom,
We need Mark Richman or Elliott Ness.

Still the obstacles rise to perplex,
It seems you just can't win.
In our yard we hit water two feet down,
And only four of our six can swim.

No, I think I will stick to the worries I've got,
Where I can see the sun by day and still sleep at night.
And believe in my country and trust our leaders
Will eventually make things right.

My decision? "I do not choose to run."
Thus endeth my poetic thesis.
I'd rather live in a peaceful world,
Than survive in a world in pieces.

'WHY ENGLAND SLEPT'

Kennedy Book Republished

WHY ENGLAND SLEPT, by John F. Kennedy. Wilfred Funk, Inc., 246 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Twenty-one years ago, as a senior at Harvard University, a rich and thoughtful young man wrote a book tracing Great Britain's reluctance to arm against a rapidly growing threat from Nazi Germany. It won him graduation honors in international relations, and was published by Wilfred Funk, Inc., of New York. Henry R. Luce, the Time, Life and Fortune publisher, wrote a laudatory foreword.

The thoughtful young man, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, is now President of the United States. The original publisher decided the time was ripe to bring out another edition of his 1940 book, "Why England Slept." And Luce wrote another foreword, again laudatory.

The Great Britain of the '30s clung until too late to belief in "collective security" through the League of Nations. Until war was forced upon her, she spent only a small portion of her budget on arms. The United States spent an even smaller share.

Today, the western nations —and particularly the United States—are spending on arms sums so vast they would not even have been considered in the '30s. The arms race now is with Soviet Russia.

If there is a lesson for the present in "Why England Slept," perhaps it is in Kennedy's words in his concluding chapter:

"We must always keep our armaments equal to our commitments. . . . We cannot tell anyone to keep out of our hemisphere unless our armaments and the people behind these armaments are prepared to back up the command, even to the ultimate point of going to war. There must be no doubt in anyone's mind, the decision must be automatic: if we debate, if we hesitate, if we question, it will be too late."

THE SPORTS CAR POCKETBOOK by William Boddy, Sports Car Press, distributed by Crown Publishers, 254 pages, $1.95. Reviewed by Carleton Williams.

This compact (4½x5½ inches) hard-cover volume is just the thing to haul out of your pocket if someone happens to inquire as to the final drive ratio of an Isotta Fraschini.

It succinctly covers, with text and pictures, in the author's words, "... most of the cars which deserve the name of sports cars ..." From Abarth to Wolseley, with pit stops by way of Bristol, Dailmer, Fairthorpe, Lagonda and Stanley (and including more familiar jobs such as Austin Healey, M.G., Citroen and Fiat). The author is to be congratulated on a painstaking job.

An assist from Anthony Harding, who must have spent more than a little time collecting the hundreds of pictures, does much to increase the value of the reference.

(In the event the question comes up, and you find you have left your copy in the glove compartment, the final drive ratio of the Isotta Fraschini is 3.25 to 1.)

Illustrated in color by Ivan Chermayeff, the book has as its theme the imaginative thoughts of children about a new-born baby.

The 8 by 10-inch book is well done and will be of value to the child who loves his books.

Here in poetry is the next best thing to a trip to the zoo for the child in the 2 to 5 age bracket.

Miss Benton's catchy rhymes make good use of the characteristic sounds of the various animals to be found at the zoo—the roar of the lion, the screech of the parrot, the bark of the seal, and so on.

Illustrator Millman contributes colored illustrations of the animals that are bold and attractive.

This book, in addition to being highly entertaining, can serve the added function of teaching words and sounds to the child if the parent wants to use it as such a tool.

What kind of tests do we perform when we are servicing one of our customer's components? The amplifier-preamplifier section of the home music system has some important functions to provide. It must accept the extremely low signals coming from a record player, or a tape recorder, or an AM-FM tuner and build these signals up (amplify) to a level large enough to move a loudspeaker. It must amplify all sounds from the very lowest tones to the very highest tones with equal intensity or with a flat frequency response. It must amplify these sounds without adding coloration, noise, hum, or distortion. Lastly, the preamp section must allow the user selection of program material, control of tone for room acoustic correction, and control of volume.

To check the frequency response for flatness (equal volume throughout range) and power output (available volume), we use a test instrument called an audio signal generator to feed pure tones from the very lowest to the highest required at a constant low level input volume into the amp-preamp under test. An oscilloscope and a vacuum tube powermeter are placed across the output of the amp-preamp. The oscilloscope is likke a miniature scope is like a miniature us to see the pure tones even though they may be below or beyond our hearing range. This visual aspect allows us to immediately spot faults in the appearance of the wave (distortion) and the appearance of unwanted signals (noise and distortion). The oscilloscope and powermeter accurately indicate the amplification and power output throughout the entire tone-range (frequency range).

Future articles will describe distortion measurements.

It Will Be Art Week In Colorful Tiburon

"Art Week in Tiburon," might well be applied to the forthcoming week, which ends with an art auction on Sunday, Nov. 12, 7:30 p.m., at the Tiburon Peninsula Club.

The auction, sponsored by the Tiburon Peninsula Democratic Club, features as auctioneers Tro Harper; Elizabeth Rudel Smith, treasurer of the United States; Rep. Clem Miller; William Winter, news commentator; George Culler, director of the San Francisco Museum of Art, and Eben Neal Baty, author of "Citizens Abroad."

Over 50 artists will be represented, chosen by the selection committee, whose chairman is Culler. Working with him were Edith Heath, of Heath Ceramics; Julia Pearl Majdrakoff, secretary of Artist's Equity; Ivan Majdrakoff, instructor at the San Francisco Art Institute; Michael Goldberg, visiting professor of art at the University of California, and Walt Conner, industrial designer.

Sunday's auction on Nov. 12 culminates a week of art activity. Next Wednesday, the monthly luncheon given by the ladies' auxiliary of the Tiburon Peninsula Club will hear Culler on "What Is Art?" Thursday night a discussion of contemporary schools of painting will include over 15 artists as members of an informal panel. This meeting, to be held at 8:30 p.m., will also be at the Tiburon Peninsula Club.

On Friday night, at 8 p.m. a champagne preview will present the works of art that will be offered at the auction. Several of the artists will be present. Saturday, from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m., and Sunday, from 1 to 4 p.m., the art will be on exhibit.

"One of the aims of the auction, and the whole week's activities, is to create an art consciousness among people; scheduled at this time, too, it will provide an answer to the Christmas shopping problem for many of us," says Mrs. Walt Conner, auction chairman.

Described as "one of the most gifted young painters working in the U. S.," Noriko Yamamoto has had one-man shows at Gumps Gallery, Oakland Museum, DeYoung Museum, and galleries in Tokyo. Currently a teacher of art at Dominican College, she has studied with Richard Diebenkorn, Sabro Hasegawa and Afro. "Her style combines the boldness and large scale of modern abstract painting with the serenity and sense of harmony of traditional Japanese Art," says Lloyd Goodrich, director of the Whitney Museum of American Art.

Lucienne Bloch, of Mill Valley, has submitted "Agates Beach" and " Blue Valley," a watercolor and tempera, for auction. Educated at Ecole Des Beaux Arts, Paris, she has studied with Bourdelle and Andre Lhote, was an assistant to Diego Rivera. She is a member of the San Francisco Art Bank, a collection of current work by major fine artists, which is assembled for viewing by visiting dignitaries and for traveling exhibitions of Bay Area art.

"Proud Bird," an oil, and "View," a water color, have been submitted by Ellwood Graham of Santa Rosa. A winner of 15 major awards, Graham is represented in permanent collections of Whitney Museum, San Francisco Museum of Art, Chicago Art Institute, Los Angeles Museum, Santa Barbara Museum, De Young Museum, Brazilian Embassy, and several senatorial offices in Washington, D.C.

BORN IN TSINGTAO, CHINA, Noriko Yamamoto is the granddaughter of one of the leading painters in Japan. She teaches art at Dominican College in San Rafael. Her work will be among that offered for auction at the Tiburon Peninsula Club Nov. 12.

ANOTHER MARIN ARTIST who will play a prominent part in the "Art Week" activities at Tiburon is Henry Rasmussen of Mill Valley, listed in "Who's Who In American Art," "American Painting Today," and "Mallett's Index of Artists."

TIRED OF TV

New Dining Room Interest Seen

Now that the novelty of television has worn off, more and more TV-jaded Americans are returning to the dining room — or returning the dining room to their homes.

"People who used to gulp food from trays so as not to miss a minute of their favorite program are now able to tear themselves away from TV, and are therefore more interested in going into the dining room to dine," observes A. L. Margolis, executive vice-president of a furniture company.

"Even when they don't have regular dining rooms, they are setting up separate dining areas, which demand turning their back on TV and relaxing over a gracious dinner," Margolis adds.

Margolis thinks Americans' new - found willingness to turn off TV is a big factor in the comeback of the dining room — a trend which is changing the home furnishings picture.

Space age Americans are demanding space for gracious dining — and bringing back the dining room with all the trappings that modern home planners had just about relegated to the attic category.

They are even doing it in space - cramped apartments and small homes where there is no dining room as such, and not merely by putting a dining table in a corner, either. They give a special area its own decorating scheme, with tricks like raised floors or special wallpaper, to make it seem like not merely an eating area but a separate dining room.

"The demand for full-scale dining furniture, from tables and chairs right on through buffets, breakfronts and the like, is higher than it has been for years," Margolis reports.

"Where not too long ago the biggest interest was in dinette size dining tables and in midget-scaled hutches, the trend today is toward full-sized pieces to outfit a real dining room."

A lot of Provincetown dining furniture is still going into space-age living rooms — even here there is evidence of the new trend.

"The apartment crowd used to go for drop - leaf tables whose living room look, when not in actual use, concealed the fact that anybody in the household ever ate, and they scorned buffets or anything that looked like a dining room. Now they are out to create a dining room atmosphere, even if they have to give up a part of the living room to do it," Margolis asserts.

The Dearborn executive thinks the return of the dining room has been "inevitable," and TV is not the only reason.

Gracious dining is very much a part of gracious living, which Americans are reviving in all its varied aspects.

"When President Kennedy wants to pull out all stops in entertaining foreign dignitaries, what does he do? He invites them to dine at the White House, because a formal dinner is considered the ultimate in gracious entertaining," points out Margolis.

The White House itself, in fact, has felt the "back to the dining room" trend. One of Mrs. Kennedy's first moves as first lady was to redecorate the state dining room, where foreign dignitaries are entertained.

Interior designers throughout the country are increasingly asked to create dining rooms that will be elegant settings for entertaining, as well as for relaxed family dining— and they are coming up with everything from plush formal surroundings complete with chandeliers to perky provincial-styled rooms, Margolis notes.

Similarly, builders and architects are more likely to incorporate dining rooms—or if space doesn't permit a separate room, a dining area more clearly defined than previously

"The comeback of the dining room is a part of the new emphasis on gracious relaxation at home — and more and more Americans seem to be turning to a charming, homelike setting in reaction to the hectic pace and pressures of modern living. Early American furniture with its warm, homey feeling, lends itself especially to this return to gracious dining," Margolis concludes.

Try Built-In China Space

It doesn't take a whale of a lot of space to provide a world of china storage in the dining room.

Almost any dining room can spare 13 inches of depth, and that's all it takes for a built-in china closet which, properly designed, can give you twice as much usable storage space as grandma had in her entire pantry.

The wonderful thing about built-ins is that they can be tailored to fit whatever wall space is available, and ofentimes can solve acute design problems in a dining room to boot.

For example, if a door is centered on one wall, the result is usually a chopped-up appearance with adjacent wall space completely wasted. But what more perfect space for china storage could be found? Floor-to-ceiling closets can be added to flank the doorway, making the passageway itself more important and decorating that neglected wall at the same time.

WOOD IS COZY

New Light, Golden Woods Lead The Paneling Trend

Decorating with wood is here to stay, according to the nation's top architects and interior designers.

In recent years, wood has become a demand item for the family room, den and kitchen where cozy, warm decor is especially desirable.

Now decorators are putting wood in the living room to give that once starchy parlor new hospitality. One wall of paneling is almost a prerequisite for a livable living room, and often times all walls feature warm, wood paneling.

Why the rapidly increasing use of wood for home interiors?

Decorators give some practical reasons. For one, wood walls are permanent; future expenses of repainting or repapering are eliminated. Another reason is that wood is always neutral, yet never dull. Color schemes and furniture styles are easily changed when the background is wood paneling, and for this very reason, a home decorated in wood has high resale value, for the new buyers know one great expense—redoing the walls—won't be in the budget.

Of special interest in the trend is the turn to light, golden hued woods which are finished with clear plastic lacquer, beeswax, tree wax, or flat varnish to preserve and capitalize on the wood's natural characteristics: its natural variations in coloring, its handsome grain patterns, and its depth and texture.

In some cases, prestige woods like West Coast hemlock are installed absolutely raw and never feel the touch of a finisher's brush.

There is paneling to suit any taste. The home owner can buy panel boards that are absolutely clear of knots, pitch pockets or checks, or they can buy panels with occasional natural "defects" appearing.

SOME folks like the real knotty panel grades, and others have found that there is nothing more intriguing than a wall paneled in "reject" lumber, which is streaked with natural stains running in color from green to purple on the golden beige background.

Still other families will choose white pocket douglas fir, a panel wood cut from a fir tree that was infested, in its growing stage, with a fungus which caused tiny white pits or pockets in the wood. Finished clear or with metallic paint rubbed into the pockets, white pocket paneling makes as elegant and unique a wall as has ever been seen.

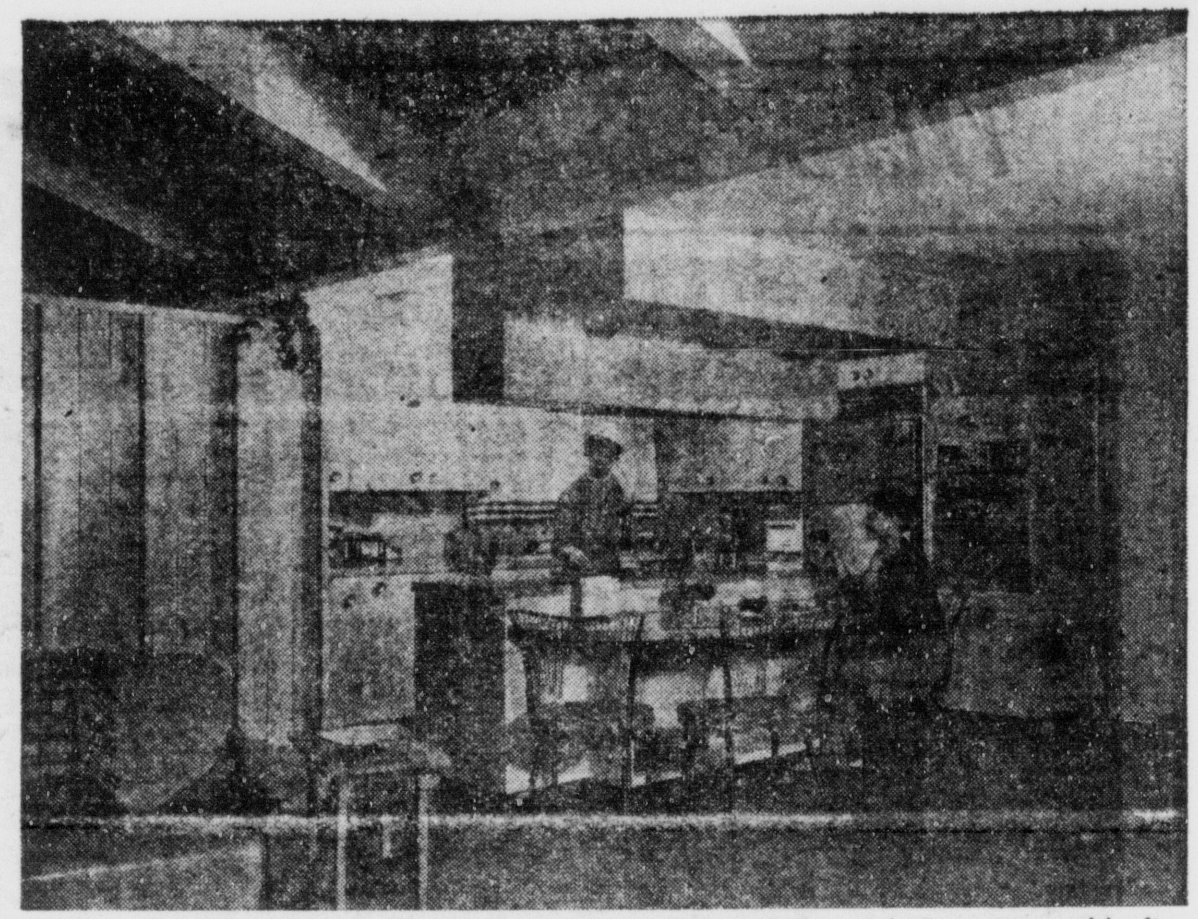
Most people prefer surfaced wall paneling which is silky smooth to the touch, but for those who like the unusual, resawn paneling and rough-sawn siding are worth investigating. The texture is incomparable, especially for an accent wall. Though you wouldn't want to rub your cheek against it, resawn paneling is not splintery and is easily dusted with the vacuum cleaner.

For panel patterns, the home owner can choose from literally dozens available. Always the favorite are tongue-and-groove panel boards which fit together so snugly that joints are hardly visible. For those who want more pattern and heavier texture, V-joint paneling might please them, or they might select channel paneling.

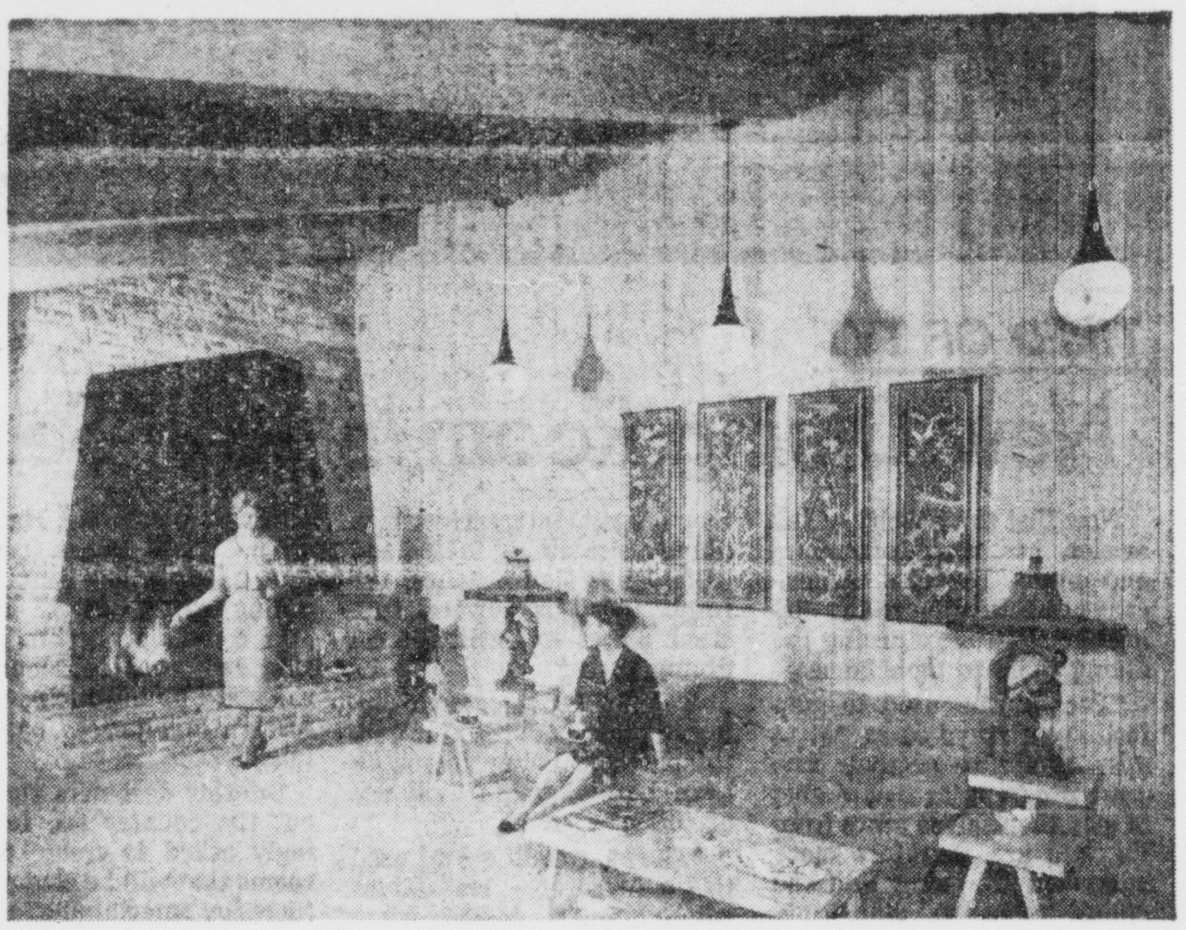
Some folks even like to use boards and battens for interior paneling, and the result is as sophisticated as you please.

Generally, panel boards of matching width are used, but for a subtle touch, consider random width paneling.

Panel boards are most commonly installed vertically, but for a room with extra-high ceilings, horizontal paneling is often in order. To get a bit of sheer drama, paneling can also be installed diagonally.



CHAMPAGNE-COLORED walls of hemlock add to the interest of this formal living room. The impressionistic wrought iron hood over the pink Georgia marble fireplace echoes the ceiling's exciting thrust, which is accented by exposed laminated beams and hanging lamps.



THIS kitchen-family room combination is divided by this cooking island which has countertop burners. The ceiling fan is concealed in the suspended dish cabinet, and the back of the island becomes a handy breakfast bar. The golden color of the hemlock cabinets is accented with tangerine color.

Combined Kitchen Den Is New Home Buyer Demand

Nearly every one building or buying a new home is asking for a combined kitchen and family room.

The reasons are practical. The combination lets the children play while mother works—always within range of her watchful eye. And, when Dad comes home, the whole family can get together even while mother is preparing dinner, yet not be under her feet.

The open kitchen-family room combination calls for skillful designing, especially regarding a division of the two areas. A popular and smart way to effect the division is to use a cooking island as a divider. With new, sleek countertop cooking units, the divider can be as you please.

The island divider can be a long, low rectangle, with under-counter storage cupboards for pots and pans. Adequate counter space should flank the burners to let mother work without stepping to another counter area.

This arrangement also calls for a ceiling fan to draw off grease and cooking odors.

The fan can be a dramatic metal hood or it can be the simple type installed flush with the ceiling.

Another idea is to install the fan within cupboards suspended from the ceiling over the island.

The cupboards should be high enough to allow the cook to see under them without stooping.

These overhead cabinets, though shallow, will be ideal for spice and dried foods storage.

The back of the cooking island, facing the family room, will make a mighty handy spot to install an attached breakfast bar. This should be a few inches lower than the top of the island—at a good sitting height. And when designing the breakfast bar, make it a half moon instead of the conventional rectangle. You can seat more people around a curve than you can in a straight line.

Appearance is an important thing to keep in mind when having plans drawn up for the cooking island divider—and for the rest of the combined kitchen and family room. With the kitchen exposed to view, you'll want it to look as elegant as possible, so have cabinetwork designed in prestige woods. West coast hemlock, with its shell beige coloring and delicate grain, will look luxurious and wear like granite.

You'll be smart, too, to use hemlock for the family room wall paneling so that there's coördination between the two areas.

Countertops and kitchen accessories should work into the family room's color scheme.

Guide To Control Of Tree Diseases

Home owners often ask if it is worth while to treat their shade trees for disease control unless neighboring trees also are treated.

Definitely it is worth while, for the best means of controlling most tree diseases consists of applying preventive measures. An individual tree can be given protection against disease regardless of nearby conditions.

According to the National Arborist Association, the means vary by which disease-causing organisms are carried from infected to healthy trees. The most common carriers are wind and insects.

Control of wind-borne diseases consists of applying one or more fungicidal sprays to susceptible trees before infection occurs. Knowledge of the life cycle of the disease is required to apply the spray at the proper time. In general, fungicides provide protection, but have little or no effect after a disease becomes established in a tree.

With insect-carried diseases infection normally occurs as the insect feeds on the tree. Control measures are directed at the insect, rather than the disease itself.

An insecticidal spray, such as DDT or methoxychlor, that provides long - lasting protection is applied to susceptible trees prior to the feeding stage of the insect. Thus, the insect is destroyed before it can transmit the disease.

The insects against which these materials have been used successfully include leaf miners on birch, holly and boxwood; aphids on hawthorns and roses; lace bugs on rhododendron and azaleas, and scale on holly. Most of the systemic insecticides are highly toxic; extreme care must be exercised in their use.

A material that has gained considerable recognition as a plant growth stimulator is gibberellin acid. Commercial products containing this material are available at garden supply stores, which offers home owners a chance to try their luck at producing plants of exceptional growth.

Gibberellin produces different results in different species of plants. Tests have indicated that with some garden plants, a number of ornamentals, and such trees as oak, tuliptree and maple, its use produces a market increase in height growth. In some fruit-bearing plants, application of gibberellin results in production of better quality fruit.

As the National Arborist Association points out, these and many other plant-treatment materials are still more or less in the experimental stage. Until they are fully perfected, the use of standard methods and materials in treatment of valuable shade trees is advocated.

In purchasing a shade tree for planting near your home, use care and good judgment in your choice of species.

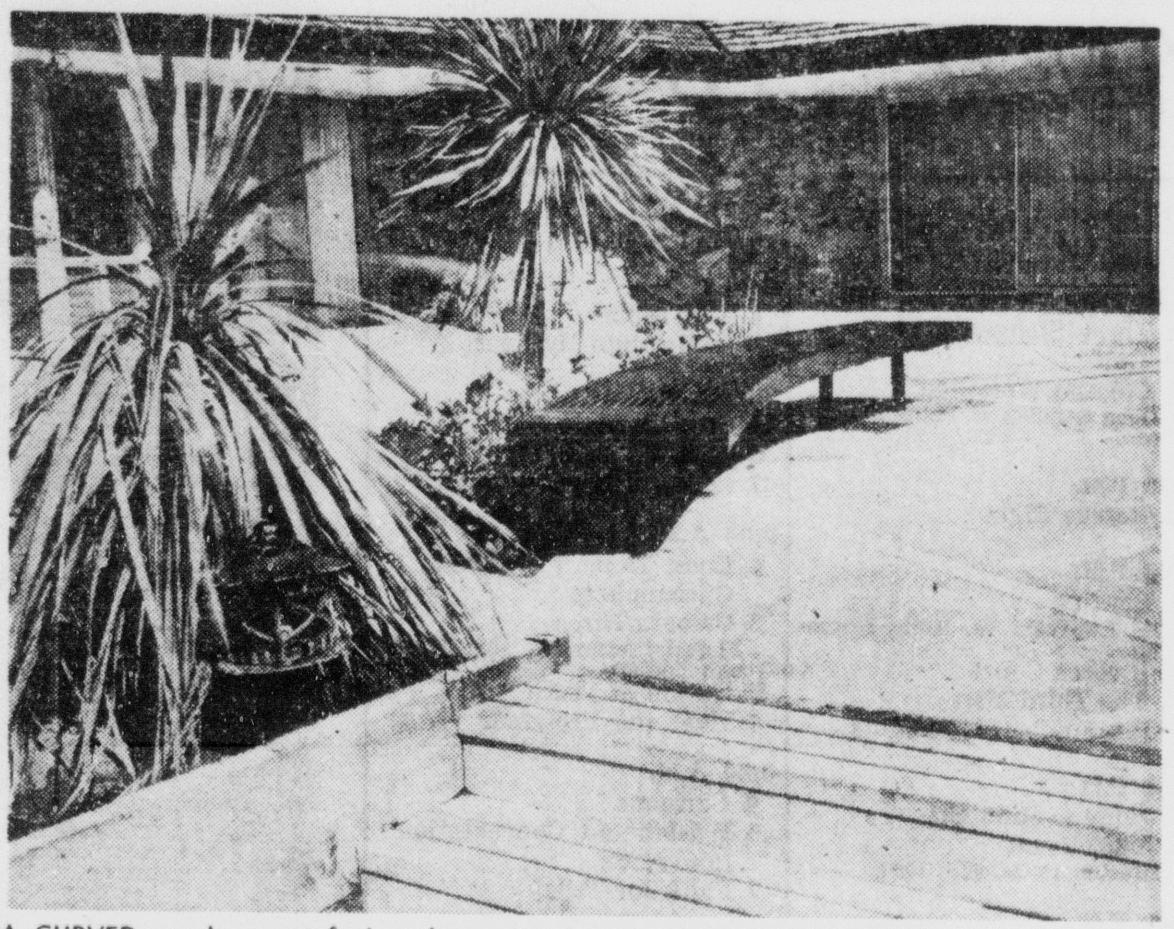
Conditions at the planting location and the species growth characteristics should be considered when you make your selection.

Among the many good shade tree species available, some grow to heights of 75 to 100 feet at maturity while others never exceed 40 feet in height. Some develop high, wide-spreading branches; in others, the branches grow low and close to the ground. To attain maximum beauty, all must have ample room for both root and top growth.

Some species have large leaves, or produce seed pods which result in a great amount of litter on the lawn. In some of the fast - growing species the wood is weak and brittle; these trees are especially susceptible to storm damage.

A well - drained soil is essential to survival for some species; others will tolerate less favorable soil conditions. Some species are especially subject to insect or disease attacks, while others are almost free of such pests.

Visit an arboretum or a park where you may see various species. Learn all you can about the growth habits and requirements of the species you may be considering for purchase. Then you are in a position to make a wise choice.



A CURVED garden seat facing the swimming pool is featured in the tropical setting of this home along the San Rafael canal. The home belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hoyt. The landscape design was by Claire and Scott Tilden of San Rafael.
